

This winter's flu bug different—and more deadly

Elderly, ill may be especially susceptible to Port Chalmers strain, but there is a vaccine for it

It's coming out of New Zealand this winter, supposedly packing a bigger punch than usual and more potential for felling large numbers of people, especially the elderly and the chronically ill.

The annual flu season is approaching and reports that a deadlier strain of influenza is heading this way is being downplayed by the Cook County Dept. of Public Health.

Dr. Colette Rasmussen, chief of the division of preventive medicine, said that it is too early to tell exactly what kind of flu will hit the Chicago area or how widespread it will be.

Explaining that it is more important to determine the potency of a flu bug rather than what kind it is, Dr. Rasmussen predicted that if an epidemic hits the Midwest this year it likely would be caused by a Type A, or deadlier form of bug, as opposed to the Type B more common to this area.

The Type A expected is something called Port Chalmers Flu, initially located in New Zealand last year. It is similar to the London Flu that swept the United States in late 1972 and early 1973, causing more than 1,000 deaths a week at its peak.

THE NATIONAL CENTER for Disease Control reports a "significant" outbreak of Port Chalmers Flu is expected in most parts of the nation for the flu season, which normally runs from November to February.

Dr. Rasmussen recommends persons more than 65 years old and the chronically ill should get flu shots as soon as possible because it takes a while for the vaccine to take effect. She added she doesn't know how badly the flu will affect persons in the Midwest since it partly depends on when the last outbreak of this type of flu occurred. The mid-Atlantic and Northeast areas of the country are not expected to be hit hard because they had outbreaks of Type A flu last winter.

Flu bugs are transmitted from person to person, Dr. Rasmussen said, and usually brought to this country by travelers. O'Hare Airport is a logical place where flu bug carriers pass through but no special precautions are taken to check the disease.

Meanwhile, area doctors have enough vaccine available to handle any major flu problems. The cost of a flu shot by a physician is about $5 to $7, they say.

Dundee Road open to 4-lane traffic by Nov. 1?

by JOE FRANZ

State officials Tuesday said work on Dundee Road is ahead of schedule and predicted four lanes will be open to traffic by Nov. 1.

Howard Westphal, project engineer for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, said, however, that progress will depend on the weather and availability of construction materials.

State officials earlier predicted the road would be finished by late November, but Westphal said good weather has permitted workers to move ahead of schedule.

The $3 million project consists of widening Dundee to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53, through Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

WORKERS BEGAN PAVING at Elmhurst Road and as of late Tuesday had completed four lanes to Arlington Heights Road.

In addition to the paving, Westphal said workers are pouring curbs and gutters, working on the realignments of Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove roads and installing traffic signals at several locations.

Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove roads are being realigned where they intersect Dundee Road. The realignments are expected to alleviate traffic congestion and make for safer travel on the road.

Westphal predicted Arlington Heights Road will be hooked up to Dundee Road about Nov. 1, while Buffalo Grove Road will be connected between Nov. 15 and Dec. 1.

BESIDES REALIGNING the roads, the state will put in new traffic signals at both intersections.

Westphal said he expects work crews to complete installation of a traffic signal at Schoenbeck and Dundee roads between Nov. 15 and Dec. 1.

Wheeling officials have been pressing for a traffic signal at that intersection for several years and recently criticized the state because the work had not been done.

The state earlier approved plans for

Gas station busy—but only as a 'highway'

The owner of Bob's Union 76 station at Arlington Heights and Dundee roads Tuesday said construction on Dundee Road is ruining his business.

"My business is almost completely gone because of the inconvenience caused by the road," said station owner Bob Stoberl. "People don't want to come into the station because of the condition of the road."

Getting motorists into the station Tuesday was not a problem, however, but getting them to stop for gas was another matter. Stoberl said with the temporary closing of the south leg of Arlington Heights Road, adjacent to his station, cars were using his station as a thoroughfare.

"If I had put a gate on the entrance to my station and charged everyone that went through, I'd be a millionaire," Stoberl said. "Cars were cutting through the station all day."

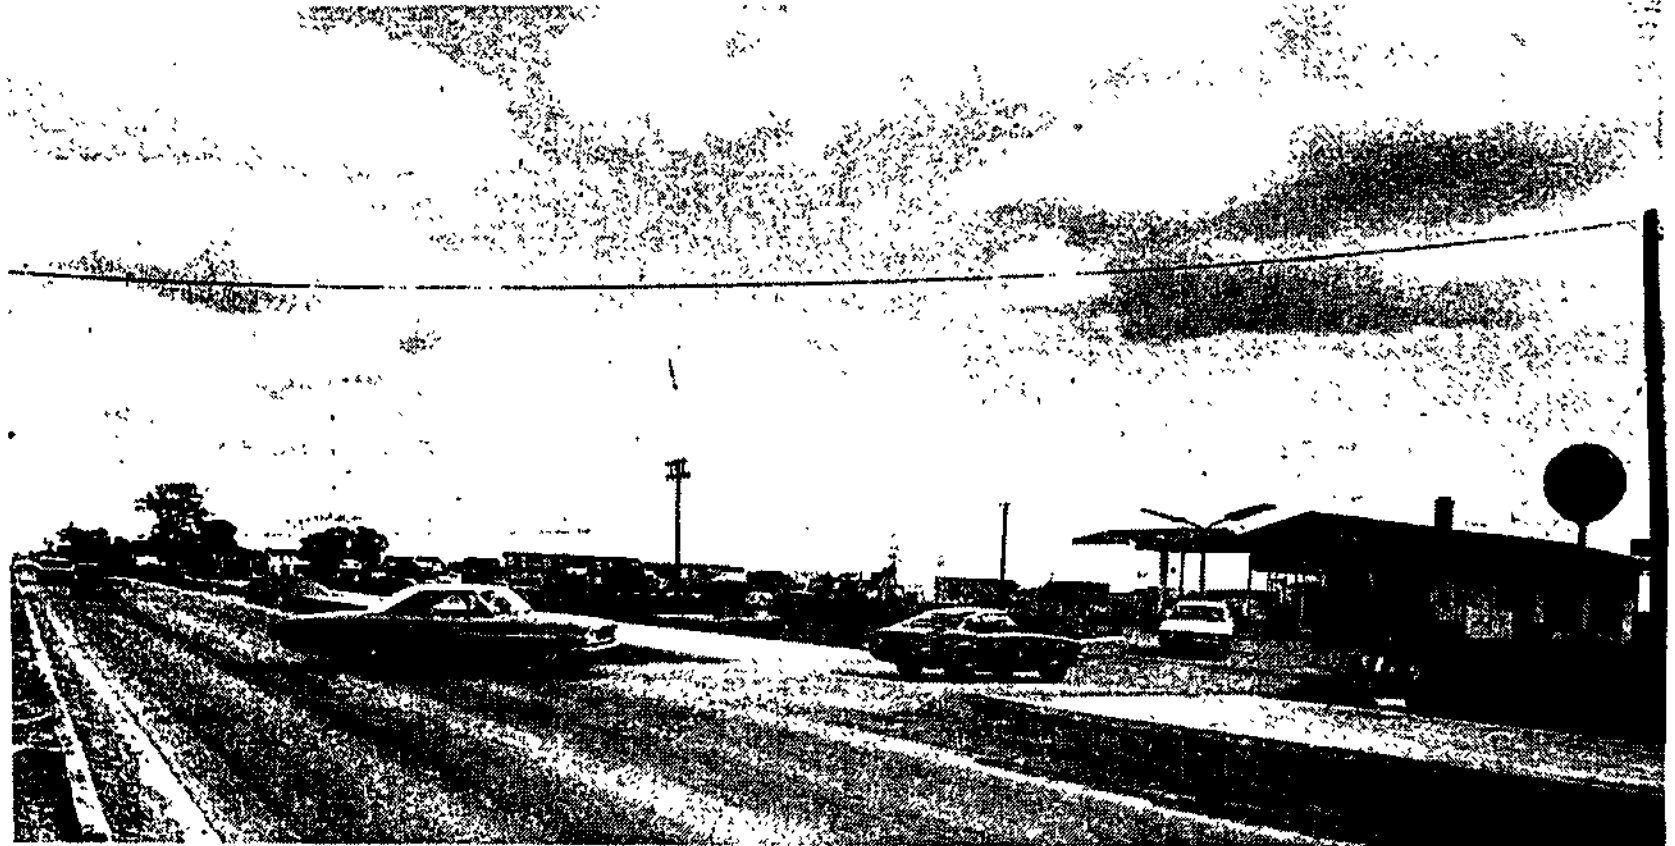

State officials Tuesday denied that Arlington Heights Road had been closed, but Stoberl said it has been opened and closed several times in the last week.

Late Tuesday, he said the road had again been reopened, and his station was again free of traffic and customers.

the signal, but said it could not be installed until construction on Dundee Road was completed.

Westphal said some work already has been done on the median strip, but that it

JUST LIKE THE MAN at the gas station said, "They're using my gas station as a street." This photo shows cars going through the Union 76 station at Dundee and Arlington Heights roads, while the latter road is blocked for construction. State officials said Tuesday that they were unaware of the problem and would try to find out why Arlington Heights Road has been closed.

Separate bids for sports complex

Rather than trying for a general contractor only, the Prospect Heights Park District has decided to seek bids from the separate trades that will be needed to build the district's new community center/sports complex.

Bids will be received until 8 p.m. Oct. 21 in 12 categories, said architect James Deal. The areas in which bids are being sought are general contracting, wrecking, plumbing, heating and air conditioning, electrical, swimming pool, carpet, tennis courts, fencing, lockers, bleachers and basketball backboards.

Deal explained the choice was made to enable local tradesmen to bid on parts of the $650,000 center. "There's a lot of local people who could handle some of the work and we want to give them that chance," Deal said.

The Lions Park pool building, on Camp McDonald Road east of Elm Street in Prospect Heights, has to be raised. The pool then will be renovated and the community center built. The tennis courts will be located at both the community center and at the park on the Commonwealth Edison Co. right-of-way, east of Schoenbeck Road and north of Palatine Road.

At a park board meeting at 8 p.m. Oct. 21, the bids will be opened. The bids will be reviewed and contracts may be made at a second board meeting at 8 p.m. Oct.

24. Both meetings will be in the park district office, 13 Prospect Ct., Prospect Heights.

Teens' garage sale to fight cancer

A garage sale to benefit the American Cancer Foundation will be held by a group of teen-agers at 216 Downing Rd., Buffalo Grove, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Judy LasPina, 14, and her brother Tony, 13, decided to raise money for the American Cancer Society after watching the Jerry Lewis Telethon for muscular dystrophy. Their uncle died recently from cancer, Judy said, and they wanted to do something in his memory. She said First Lady Betty Ford's bout with breast cancer brought more of her friends into the garage sale's work.

The group of six young people started working toward the sale last week and have gathered a variety of items for sale. Local stores donated such items as garden goods, stationery and shower caps.

Family of Honduran woman reported 'all right'

by JOE SWICKARD

"I am so happy. There were millions of responses. I don't have time for my children or my housework, but I don't care because so many people have been just so good," said Maria McGowan.

Mrs. McGowan, 1014 Crab Tree Dr., Arlington Heights, has been overwhelmed with gifts and offers of aid for victims of hurricane Fifi that blasted through her native Honduras two weeks ago since the story of her relief efforts appeared in The Herald Friday.

With most communications cut off to her homeland, Mrs. McGowan had been unable to learn the fate of her family, which lives in San Pedro Sula, hard hit by the storm and floods that followed. Rather than spend her days stymied with worry, she began collecting food and clothing for the thousands of Hondurans left destitute.

Maria McGowan

IN THE MIDST OF the offers for Honduras came a personal one for Mrs. McGowan from Frank Atchison of Wheeling.

"I called Mrs. McGowan and asked her if she had been in contact with any ham radio operators to try to get in touch with her family," said Atchison, an amateur radio operator for five years.

"Mr. Atchison in Wheeling got through to Honduras and my family is all right. I can't believe it," Mrs. McGowan said, her voice cracking.

Atchison said he reached a woman operator in Honduras through an international amateur-radio network based in Miami. The woman, it turned out, worked with one of Mrs. McGowan's brothers and the word was they were alive.

Atchison's efforts for Mrs. McGowan are not finished yet, he said.

"Wednesday I have the relay scheduled with the operator so I can contact her mother directly," he said, adding that until Monday no personal messages were allowed through because of the emergency food and medical priorities.

MRS. MCGOWAN'S message did not stop there. The officers and wives at Glenview Naval Air Station heard the plea for help.

"We had an abundance of clothes at the thrift shop run by the officers' wives and we didn't know what to do with them. I saw the story of Mrs. McGowan in the paper and said why don't we donate them to Honduras," said Mrs. Stephanie Dunlavy of Buffalo Grove.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Dunlavy and Dottie Berk of Mount Prospect, the thrift shop's donation swelled to fill 15 boxes with clothing.

"We started out with primarily women's clothes but when we were finished we had clothes for just about everyone," said Mrs. Dunlavy.

THE BASE'S involvement does not end there, though. This morning at 10 a.m.

the Marine Air Reserve stationed there will fly out 30,000 to 35,000 pounds of food and clothes to New Orleans, where it will be forwarded to Honduras.

Maj. Greg Lee of Palatine, the operations officer, said the flight is being made with the cooperation of the Honduran Consulate and will double as a training mission. Another flight is tentatively planned for next week if details with Marine Command in Washington and the State Dept. are worked out.

"I can't believe this," Mrs. McGowan said. "We've had to move everything to the garage so we could walk in the house. All the churches have gotten behind us and all the people. One lady gave $200 worth of food. All these people wanting to help. I just can't believe it."

"I want to thank you so much. You have saved my life."

Mayor uses city gear in sales

A corporation owned by Mayor Roland J. Meyer of Rolling Meadows is using city equipment in sales demonstrations put on for its customers. Customers of the company, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., have been shown city equipment at the city garage and have examined trash-compacting mechanisms in garbage trucks and in the city compactor station during special tours. Meyer, who formed the firm last December with two associates, refused to discuss sales volume or previous customers, saying: "It's none of your business." He added: "I didn't go into business to lose money." A spokesman for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., whose equipment is sold by Midwest Environmental Systems, referred to the firm as a "successful operation."

Female may cost club charter

The Elk Grove Kiwanis Club may lose its charter for violating a Kiwanis International rule banning woman members. Mary Clark, a librarian at the Elk Grove Village Public Library, was inducted into the local chapter in February and is described as a member "in good standing." Kiwanis International on Sunday revoked the charter of the Cheyenne Mountains Kiwanis Club in Colorado Springs because it failed to comply with a directive to bar woman members.

New sewage plant fight?

Some Des Plaines officials are laying plans to continue the fight against Metropolitan Sanitary District plans to build a sewage treatment plant in the city. A city council committee has decided to delay consideration of an MSD request for an easement to lay sewer lines that would tie into the plant. The Illinois Supreme Court last week rejected Des Plaines' attempt to keep the treatment plant out of the city through its home rule power.

Centex to share in repairs

Centex Homes Corp. has agreed to pay for replacement parts and for a share of the estimated $85 installation cost to repair defective furnaces in Elk Grove Village. Village Pres. Charles Zettek announced Tuesday that Centex "has indicated they will put a plan to remedy the furnace situation in effect as soon as possible." Earlier proposals by the company, which built the 1,700 homes where furnace failures are suspected had been rejected by the village.

Prospect library vandalized

An "ice-creaming" of the Prospect Heights Public Library over the weekend was the final straw. It capped more than $3,000 worth of vandalism to the library in less than two years, and prompted Margaret Lusk, board president, to offer a reward for information leading to the arrest of the vandals. Melted ice cream bars, mixed with candy, were used to smear several windows and doors and was poured down the book-return slot, damaging more than a dozen books.

Different standards for track

Land development at Arlington Park Race Track will proceed according to standards substantially different from those applying to other properties in Arlington Heights, despite the expiration Oct. 20 of the race track's annexation agreement. A zoning ordinance waiving height restrictions on the property will remain in effect but it is not certain whether the agreement requires the village to accept the plan for 5,000 housing units already proposed by the track owner.

Post office escapes cuts

A new main post office for Des Plaines has escaped a massive slash in the construction budget of the U.S. Postal Service. Plans for the long-delayed building should be completed by Dec. 1, with construction possibly under way by Feb. 15.

Dundee Road ahead of schedule

Work on Dundee Road is now ahead of schedule and officials predicted Tuesday that four lanes will be open between Ill. Rte. 53 and Elmhurst Road by Nov. 1. Meanwhile, the owner of a Union 76 service station at Dundee and Arlington Heights roads, said the project is ruining his business. A road closing Tuesday sent Dundee traffic streaming through the station to go south on Arlington Heights Road. "If I had put a gate on the entrance to my station and charged everyone who went through, I'd be a millionaire," said Bob Stoberl, owner of Bob's Union 76.

Watergate coverup trial gets under way

The Watergate cover-up trial got under way yesterday with ninety of the first 153 prospective jurors being excused after saying they had reasons they could not serve on a sequestered jury. Judge John Sirica then questioned the remainder and directed another contingent of 175 veniremen be summoned today. Sirica said the trial will last from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Senate votes Turkey military aid ban

The Senate yesterday defied President Ford's threatened veto, and approved legislation to ban all military aid to Turkey because of the Turks' use of U.S. arms in Cyprus. Ford said he would veto the bill because it would "destroy hope for success in settling the Cyprus dispute." The Senate also approved an amendment to suspend all military assistance in Chile. Meanwhile, Senate-House negotiators reached a package compromise clearing the way for approval of the sweeping political campaign reforms prompted by Watergate. A final session was slated for Thursday.

Ford given choice of days to testify

A House Judiciary subcommittee — surprised by President Ford's offer to appear before it — offered him a choice of three days next week to testify on why he pardoned Richard M. Nixon. Chairman William Hungate, D-Mo., told reporters the questioning of Ford would be confined to the pardon.

Mayors appeal for transit subsidies

A group of 22 big city mayors joined business and labor leaders in Washington yesterday to appeal personally to President Ford for his support of emergency legislation to provide federal aid for operating subsidies to public transit systems. Among the mayors who met with Ford in the Cabinet Room at the White House were Chicago's Richard Daley, Abraham Beame of New York and Joseph Alioto of San Francisco.

2 Elmwood Park officials plead guilty

Two former Elmwood Park officials pleaded guilty yesterday to charges of threatening the owner of a tree-removal firm into perjury before a grand jury. Howard Olson, former village manager, and Joseph Scimone, former superintendent of streets and alleys, both pleaded guilty before Judge Thomas McMillen in U.S. District Court for threatening James Lynn.

Special prizes at lottery drawing

Illinois lottery Superintendent Ralph Batch said yesterday the 150 persons who qualified for this week's millionaire drawing may win a special bonus prize if they attend the drawing. Batch said 10 prizes ranging from $300 to $2,500 will be awarded at the drawing. He said, "The prizes were added to assure attendance of qualifiers in our first millionaire drawing."

Republic of China celebrates anniversary

The Chinese, in traditional dress, walked through parks and celebrated the 25th anniversary of the People's Republic of China Tuesday. Most top Communist party and government leaders turned out for subdued garden parties in Peking. Similar celebrations were held in other major cities throughout the country. Premier Chou En-lai reportedly even left his hospital bed to host a massive reception.

Thieu: Americans not keeping promises

President Nguyen Van Thieu said yesterday American people "are not living up to their promises" and have cut aid to South Vietnam "back below our lowest expectations." Thieu said the withdrawal of U.S. and other allied troops has contributed to a bad economy and the deteriorating military situation in South Vietnam.

Move to consolidate Portugal power

Portugal's left-leaning new strongman, Premier Vasco Dos Santos Goncalves, and his Armed Forces Movement moved quickly Tuesday to consolidate the power they won in a government crisis that led to the resignation of President Antonio de Spínola. The new leadership reaffirmed pledges of free elections and decolonization in Africa.

Trading extended, but prices plunge

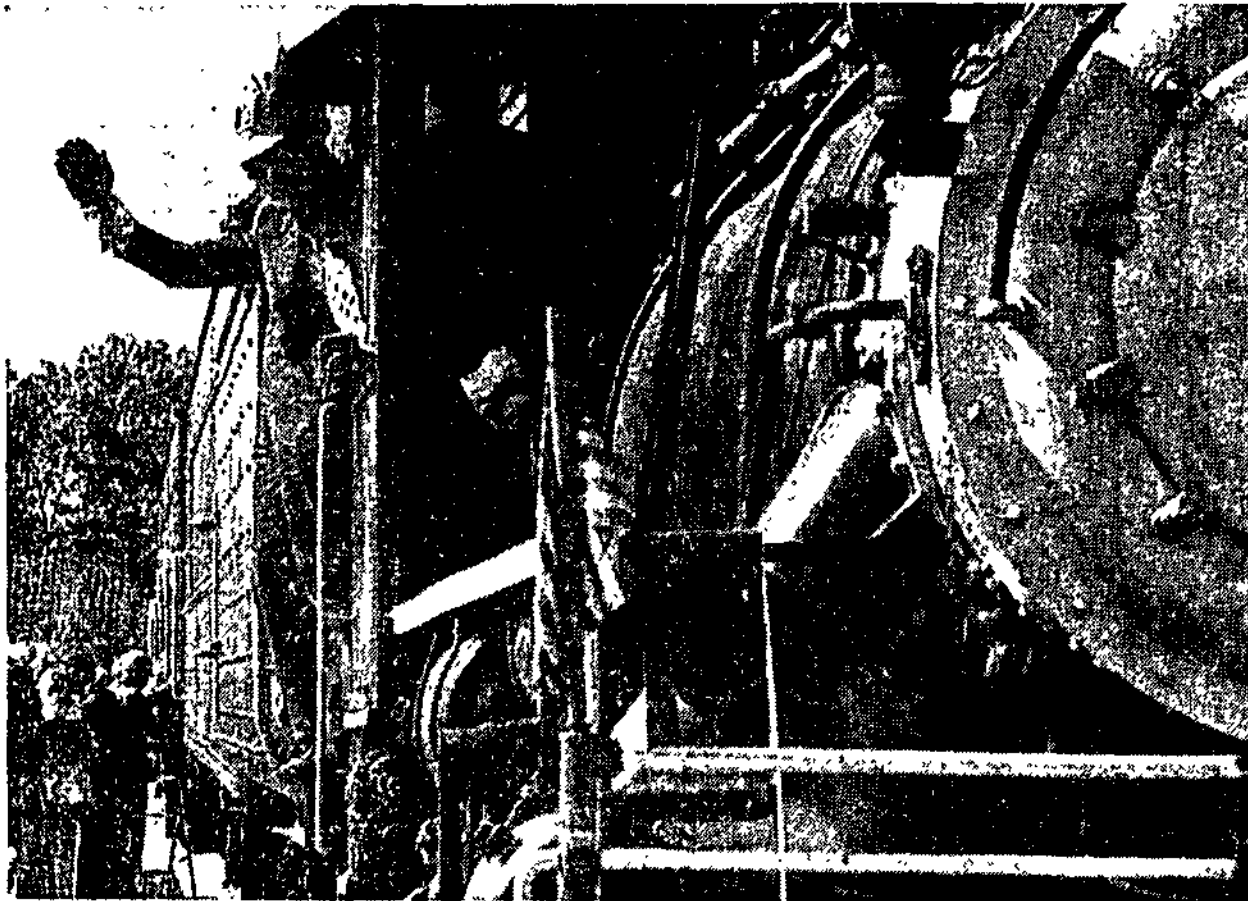

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange plunged Tuesday on the first day of extended trading to increase business for brokers. The Dow Jones index closed off 3.05 at 604.82, the lowest since Nov. 2, 1962 when it closed at 604.50 during the Cuban missile crisis. The Dow, which started the year at 850, has steadily fallen as confidence in the economy eroded.

Several oil firms reduce gas prices

From United Press International
Several oil companies Tuesday reduced gasoline prices slightly, but oil men and government officials warn the lower prices are temporary and will rise again because the oil-producing nations are "thumbing their nose" at President Ford.

Standard Oil of Ohio, Skelly Oil of Tulsa, Okla., and a major independent, Clark Oil Co., Tuesday lowered prices on all grades of gasoline. Late last month, Mobil Oil Co. reduced its prices, and Exxon said it is reviewing its price structure.

But at the same time, Gulf Oil Co., citing higher costs for foreign crude and refined products, raised its pump prices 1.5 cents a gallon on all grades.

Sohio reduced its prices by one penny per gallon, Skelly prices dropped prices 2.5 cents per gallon, and Clark Oil cut prices by two cents a gallon in the 13 Midwestern states it serves.

But one oil executive who asked not to be identified cautioned motorists not to view the slightly lower prices as the start of a trend.

"They should not go out and buy a 3,000-pound car thinking that the clock has been turned back," he said.

The major oil exporting countries are not bowing to President Ford's pressure for lower prices and in fact want even higher crude oil prices, and these will be passed on to the consumer, he said.

Venezuela Tuesday hit U.S. and other foreign oil companies with a $440 million retroactive tax bill in a move aimed at keeping companies from passing on the additional taxes to consumers.

Mines Minister Valentin Hernandez told reporters after a 5½-hour cabinet meeting with President Carlos Andres Perez that the government had decided to impose a 165 per cent tax increase.

He said the hike, aimed at erasing what the government considers excess profits by companies during the first nine months of the year, would increase its per barrel take from $8.83 to $9.06. Venezuelan oil revenue this year is expected to be around $10 billion. The country is chief supplier of U.S. oil imports.

In New York, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Tuesday was reported to be convinced that the only hope for lowering world oil prices is through negotiations by united Western industrialized nations with oil-producers.

Prior to Corbett murder sentencing:

De Mau Mau pair stab pal

From Herald news services

Two alleged members of the black militant "De Mau Mau" stabbed an inmate in a neighboring cell at the Cook County Jail with homemade ice picks Tuesday just before the two were to be sentenced on four counts of murder, authorities said.

The victim, Willie Clark, 27, suffered superficial wounds in his neck, arm and stomach and was listed in good condition at Cermak Memorial Hospital.

Jail Warden Richard English said the alleged assailants, Michael Clark, no relation to Willie, and Donald Taylor, both 23, were cleaning up before their sentencing for the 1972 murders of four members of a suburban Barrington Hills family when the stabbing occurred.

"They asked to see Willie Clark, who was being held in isolation across the tier from them, in order to get a clean shirt to wear to court," English said.

He said the two were locked into Willie Clark's cell and moments later a guard lieutenant heard screams and returned to find Michael Clark and Taylor "stabbing Clark with homemade ice picks fashioned from mop bucket handles which were sharpened on the concrete floor."

"The apparent reason for the stabbing is an argument between Willie Clark and a friend of Donald Taylor and Michael Clark," English said. "Willie Clark said he was told 'someone will get' him.

"However, it is quite unusual for someone who is going to be sentenced for murder to try to murder someone else the day sentence is passed. I believe they tried to kill Willie Clark in order to keep from being sent to the state penitentiary," English said.

He said that if the two defendants had been charged with murdering Clark, they probably would have been held in the jail pending trial and not sent to the penitentiary.

The two and Taylor's brother, Reuben, 24, were convicted Aug. 12 for fatally shooting Paul Corbett, 57, his wife Marion, also 57, Mrs. Corbett's sister, Dorothy Derry, 60, and Mrs. Corbett's daughter by a previous marriage, Barbara Board, 22, at the Corbetts' home.

Michael Clark wore a bloodstained T-shirt when he appeared for sentencing before Judge Richard J. Fitzgerald. The judge postponed sentencing until Nov. 30. Donald Taylor and Clark were acquitted earlier this year of charges that they murdered Nathaniel Burse and Edward Moran, both 23, who were found strangled in their cell in the Lake County Jail in Waukegan on June 13. Clark and Taylor were awaiting trial in the same cell block as the two victims.

Federal employees to get 5.2% pay hike

From Herald news services

Inflation dominated much of the activity in Washington and across the country Tuesday as government and industry attempted to respond to pressure from wage earners.

In Washington, President Ford reluctantly ordered an immediate 5.52 per cent pay raise for 3.5 million federal government employees and military personnel. Ford had hoped to postpone the pay hike until Jan. 1 on the grounds it would contribute to inflation, but the Senate refused to allow the delay. Ford did scale down the pay raise from the original 8.4 per cent requested by federal employees and 7.22 per cent suggested by an advisory committee.

The President also took what he termed an anti-inflationary step by pledging to cut the federal payroll by 40,000 employees through attrition this year, thus trimming $300 million from the federal budget.

Talk of inflation influenced other events Tuesday:

• In Washington, Treasury Sec. William Simon said the U.S. campaign against inflation will not jeopardize world access to this nation's resources.

Addressing the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, Simon pledged this country to open commodity trading even though, as predicted, Americans will begin to want to keep their enormous resources.

• In Chicago, economist Milton Friedman says there is "not a chance in a million" that the United States will have a depression in the next few years, but he expects inflation to continue.

Friedman, a prominent conservative economist, says the nation is sick and like any sick person will take time to recover, but recover it will.

• And in San Francisco, a leading automobile industry executive called for a five-year moratorium on new auto safety and emission standards as an inflation-fighting measure.

Lee A. Iacocca, president of the Ford Motor Co., told a convention of UPI editors the auto industry can best cope with inflation if the demands on the industry are lessened.

Most mail opposes Rocky

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Thousands of letters, running heavily against the nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president, have been received by the Senate Rules Committee, Chairman Howard W. Cannon said Tuesday.

Cannon predicted that the "tremendous opposition" shown in the mail would be reflected in the Senate vote, but the committee would approve Rockefeller "overwhelmingly."

Cannon scheduled a committee meeting Oct. 9 and said that he hoped final audits by the Joint Taxation Committee and the Internal Revenue Service on Rockefeller's finances would be completed by then.

Asked whether the Senate might reject Rockefeller's nomination, Cannon replied: "I can't say I don't see any possibility."

Nixon, Betty eye hospital releases

• Richard Nixon's doctor said yesterday the blood clot in his right lung has grown smaller and there is no evidence of any new clots. Dr. John Lungren said there was a good chance for Nixon's release from the hospital by the end of the week. Lungren also said the former President may be well enough to give a written deposition in the Watergate coverup trial. His condition, however, is serious enough to prevent his personal appearance from one to three months.

• White House Physician Dr. William Lukash told President Ford Tuesday that First Lady Betty Ford is making an "excellent recovery" from major weekend surgery for breast cancer. She expects to be released from the hospital next week and will then begin six to eight weeks of therapy. . . . Meanwhile, the White House reported that President Ford still expects to visit Japan and South Korea next month despite his wife's bout with cancer.

• In Madrid, Spain's Generalissimo Francisco Franco celebrated the 38th anniversary of his rise to power Tuesday, looking sprightly and recovered from an illness which forced the 61-year-old leader to delegate his powers for six weeks this summer.

Nixon views hospital halls

• From Hollywood comes the news that actor George Hamilton, 35, and his wife, Anna, 29, are parents of a 7 pound, 3 ounce son, Ashley Steven, born Monday night. It is the first child for the couple who were married in 1972.

• Not everyone is pleased with the recent Havana meeting between Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro and U.S. Sens. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I. "I was not very proud of what you did there," said Meany. "Instead of waiting 24 hours to sit at his feet, you should have gotten on a plane and flown home." When school opened this week, the scales proved Hogness had reduced to a svelt 224 pounds.

Carey to push for interest on county funds

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey will seek court authority for interest-earning investment of nearly $30 million in county funds.

Carey's aides began investigation Tuesday of County Treasurer Bernard Korzen's banking policies after the Better Government Assn. contended that more than $10 million is deposited in non-interest-bearing accounts at "politically connected" banks.

"The correct amount is close to $30 million," an aide to Carey said. "The least we'll do is ask for a court order to take the money out of special funds and put it into general funds so it can be invested."

THE BGA ESTIMATED Cook County is losing more than $1 million a year by depositing the funds, mainly from probate and condemnation accounts, in non-interest accounts.

In another county government controversy — use of employees in the assessor's office for political campaigning — Carey "lacks jurisdiction" to intervene, the aide said.

Republican candidate for assessor Alice Ihlig revealed Tuesday that employees in the assessor's office have received a Sept. 25 memo from Robert A. Moran, chief of administrative services in the assessor's office, that orders election work for Thomas Tully, Democratic candidate for assessor.

The memo, which was addressed to individual employees by ward, states that "I have selected you to represent Tom Tully, our candidate, in your respective wards and townships. The full cooperation of every employee is necessary for a victory in November."

THE MEMO ENDS with a postscript — "your full cooperation is expected."

Mrs. Ihlig said she is "shocked . . . disgusted" at the apparent violation of a federal court antipatronage decision. In 1971, a Chicago federal court prohibited the forcing of political work by government employees.

Carey's aide said that "because the decision came from a federal court, there's nothing we can do about it."

The aide said "we're working on getting that money invested" and that a two-year-old Illinois law requiring investment of county funds can be "interpreted" to allow noninvestment of the funds.

The law was written by Wayne Andersen, a Des Plaines attorney who is the Republican candidate for county treasurer. Andersen has suggested that Carey file suit against banks which hold the non-interest accounts to collect possible back interest.

A STATEMENT by Korzen, who is not seeking reelection, on Tuesday said that "Under the Constitution and all legal precedents, I would be in legal violation of the law if I tried to invest these funds."

Andersen told The Herald Monday that the statute, which was introduced by State Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Chicago, when Andersen was a staff aide, directs county treasurers to invest all funds, regardless of ownership, if the money will not be withdrawn within 30 days. The law also allows treasurers to pay condemnation funds 31 days after a claim.

The non-interest accounts pinpointed by the BGA contains fund amounts that have changed little since March. Between $2.9 and $3.4 million has been deposited without drawing interest in the Bank of Commerce and Industry in Chicago, Korzen reports of March, May and August show. An account at Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago has held exactly $30,978.46 in condemnation funds since March.

Other accounts include Jefferson State Bank, the First Trust and Savings Bank, the First Commercial Bank, Oak Park Trust and Savings Bank, Amalgamated

Woman could cost Kiwanis Club charter

by LUISA GINETTI
The Elk Grove Kiwanis Club may be in danger of losing its charter for violating a Kiwanis International rule banning woman members.
The international voted Sunday to lift the charter of the Cheyenne Mountains Kiwanis Club, Colorado Springs, Colo., because it failed to comply with a directive to revoke the membership of five women.
Although it has received no directive from the international, the Elk Grove Kiwanis technically is also in violation of the rules because one of its members is a woman.
MARY CLARK, librarian at the Elk Grove Village Public Library, was inducted into the local Kiwanis in February. Miss Clark said no attempt was made to conceal that she is a woman when her membership application was processed by the international.

"I received a formal invitation to join Kiwanis as part of some bulk mail," Miss Clark said Tuesday. She said she is a member of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce and surmised her invitation to join Kiwanis came from being on the association's mailing list.
"I would like to stay on as a member but if the local asked me to leave I would honor their request," Miss Clark said. "I would much prefer to stay and I would be willing to work with the local to try and work out an alternative if that's what they want."
A Kiwanis official who was an officer at the time Miss Clark was inducted said the local club was aware that the international rules barred women.
"We brought her in with our eyes wide open," said the former officer, who did not wish to be identified.

THE FORMER officer said he personally would support Miss Clark if an attempt were made to oust her. "I'll stick with Mary all the way and I would support her even if it meant my membership."
Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis, said Tuesday. "There is no doubt that Mary is a member in good standing." He said he has received no word from the international about the situation but he said the international technically was apprised of the situation when it approved Miss Clark's application.
Harrell said the matter will be brought up at Kiwanis meetings. The club meets each Friday at noon at the Salt Creek Country Club in Itasca.
A SPOKESMAN for the Kiwanis International said Tuesday no other cases of women membership in local clubs have come to the attention of the international.

The spokesman added that the situation with the Colorado Springs local arose this summer at the international's convention in Denver. An amendment to the charter seeking to permit women members was proposed but was defeated, he said, prompting the Colorado Springs local to declare its intention to defy the rule and continue to allow women members to remain in the club.
The international reacted by ordering the Colorado Springs' Kiwanis charter be revoked, effective this week.
The spokesman added that the international would probably take similar action against any other local that defies the rule banning woman members. "We have no choice but to take this action unless and until the bylaw is changed," he said.

Rolling Meadows official's practice 'not illegal'
Mayor uses city equipment to demonstrate sales line

by NANCY COWGER
A corporation owned by Mayor Roland J. Meyer of Rolling Meadows is using city equipment in sales demonstrations for its customers, a Herald investigation has disclosed.
The company, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., was started last December by Meyer and two associates, Harry Triunfo of Pompano Beach, Fla., and Eugene E. Campion, 4502 Sycamore Ln., Rolling Meadows.
Since then, the firm's customers have been shown city equipment at the city garage, 3200 Central Rd., and have examined trash-compacting mechanisms in garbage trucks and in the city compactor station during special tours.
The equipment, purchased before Meyer's company was formed, is "identical" to equipment now distributed by the firm.

Meyer refused to discuss sales volume or previous customers, saying, "It's none of your business" but adding, "I didn't go into business to lose money." A spokesman for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., whose equipment Meyer sells, described Meyer's firm as a "successful operation," but referred specific questions on finances to Meyer.

POTENTIAL CUSTOMERS representing the municipality of Griffith, Ind., plan to visit Rolling Meadows this week or next. Glen Reymore, public works director for the Indiana community, said he hopes to examine everything from the compacting mechanism on city trucks to Rolling Meadows' records of manpower and operation costs.
The tour will be conducted by James McFeggan, former Rolling Meadows public works director, who quit that job two years ago. McFeggan now works as a salesman for Midwest Environmental Systems.
The city bought its three trucks in 1969 from St. Regis Paper Co. at $19,000 per vehicle, adding a compactor station in 1971 at a $103,000 cost. The total refuse system was originally proposed by McFeggan. Rolling Meadows' trucks used Mercedes Benz chassis, but Orbital's have German-made chassis. Both have German-made bodies.

study the city's equipment, so do other salesmen, and he and McFeggan are treated no differently than any other sales representative, said Meyer. He said he has asked for no favors and received none.
Meyer's other business venture, R. J. Meyer & Co., a scrap paper brokerage firm, has not held any city sales or purchase contracts, he said. Meyer also is a self-employed private investigator.
Meyer said his business activities do not violate state conflict of interest or ethics laws. City Atty. Donald M. Rose, whom Meyer consulted before establishing the business, said there is no apparent violation of the law. A spokesman for the State's Attorney's Office agreed.
MEYER LAUGHED at any question of a conflict of interest, citing advice of Rose as his assurance no conflict exists, and saying he is not gaining financially because of his public office.
"To my knowledge, the activities of the mayor in that corporation do not constitute a conflict of interest," said Rose. Such a conflict arises when a governmental official buys or sells property, merchandise, equipment or services to the agency in which he holds office, and when the official has voting power over that agency's contract to buy or sell, said Rose.
The law states, "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws or constitution of this state, may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly, in his own name or in the name of any other person, association, trust or corporation, in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or vote."

Insurer may appeal verdict for malpractice

Attorneys for the Hartford Insurance Co., representing Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in a malpractice suit, say they have not decided if they will appeal last week's jury verdict awarding a Wheeling couple more than $1.2 million in damages.
Richard French of the Chicago law firm of Howard and French said the hospital and five of its officials, named as defendants in the case, have 30 days to appeal the decision of Sept. 24 that granted Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barzycki what is believed to be the largest malpractice sum ever awarded in Illinois.
The Barzyckis' suit charged that the hospital was negligent in treating Mrs. Barzycki when it failed to cut down her dosage of cobalt treatments starting in January 1969, when the hospital's cobalt machine was increased in power.
The suit said other patients had their treatments correspondingly reduced when the machine's power was increased while Mrs. Barzycki was kept on the same dosage. She was being treated for Hodgkins Disease.
The excessive treatments caused Mrs. Barzycki, 31, to become permanently paralyzed from the waist down, the suit charged.

Buffalo Grove sets parley on fire district referendum

The first in a series of public meetings to explain a proposed referendum on fire service in the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Kilmer School, 655 Golfview Terr.
The sessions are to explain the purpose of the referendum, tentatively set for Oct. 28, and to allow residents to ask questions on the transfer of fire districts, according to Edward Osmon a Buffalo Grove village trustee.

most notably several members of the village board, say the referendum is a vital first step toward the formation of a municipal fire department.

Long Grove officials oppose the transfer of districts, saying their department can provide adequate service to the area and their station is closer, making response times quicker than Buffalo Grove's.

Petitions to hold a referendum have been circulating in the Lake County area for the last several weeks and Village Atty. Richard Raysa said he has filed a request for a hearing in Cook County Circuit Court for permission to conduct the referendum.

Dundee Rd. may open to four lanes Nov. 1

probably will not be completed before the end of the year.
AFTER THE STATE finished the median strip, Buffalo Grove officials are planning a beautification project through the village, planting trees, shrubs and grass on the median.
Dundee Road motorists have been inconvenienced by various construction projects since September 1972. Before road construction started in the summer of 1973, workers were installing sewer pipes along the right-of-way.
Late last year, residents, village officials and merchants along Dundee Road protested to Gov. Daniel Walker and several state legislators about what they called a "lack of progress" on the road.
Motorists complained that the road was not only an inconvenience, but also had caused damage to their cars. Businessmen said the condition of the road has reduced travel on the road and hurt business.
Following the protests, the state designated Dundee Road as the No. 1 road construction priority in the northern part of Illinois.

Tony Berg, a trustee for the district, said a representative of the Long Grove department also will attend the meetings.
THURSDAY'S SESSION and another slated for Oct. 17 at Cooper Junior High School, 1050 Plum Grove Rd., are Cook County locations while the other two, Oct. 10 and 24 will be in Lake County, with locations to be announced.
Residents from both areas of town are invited to attend any session.
"They're all the same explanation of the why and wherefore of the referendum," said Osmon, chairman of a special village committee appointed last year to study the referendum.
"We'll expose as much information as we have available to the people," he said.
Osmon said he expects a larger turnout at the Lake County meetings because the 4,000 to 5,000 residents there are the ones who will vote on the issue.

Offer $3,000 reward for library vandals

The "ice-creaming" of the Prospect Heights Public Library Saturday night has prompted Library Board Pres. Margaret Lusk to offer a reward for finding the vandals who have done $3,000 damage to the building during the last two years.
Mrs. Lusk said melted ice cream bars, mixed with candy, was used to smear several windows and doors and was poured down the book return slot, damaging more than a dozen books.

Other acts of vandalism at the building, 12 N. Elm St., have included the breaking of all front windows and several thermopane windows, as well as outside lights.
"It is really getting out of hand," Mrs. Lusk said. "It is so discouraging when the community has such a nice building and they are paying taxes for it. It is disgusting."
She said the library has been put on an added security list, which means Sheriff's Police patrol the area more often. Mrs. Lusk said several residents living near the library have told her they see youths congregating in the area often, around midnight.

The only solution Mrs. Lusk could suggest was that the library hire a night-guard. However, she added the library board did not have enough tax money to hire a guard.

State should move to end RTA deadlock

More than half a year has passed since voters in the six-county Chicago metropolitan area reluctantly approved formation of the Regional Transportation Authority. We have yet to see a single result of that action, primarily because the eight board members have not been able to select a chairman.

Suburban members of the board have tried to get the RTA moving because of the urgent needs of suburban rail and bus systems. Temporary chairman Joseph Tesson of Riverside originally supported the idea of holding off all action until the chairman was selected, to give him a clean slate on which to begin. Tesson reversed his stand and proposed hiring a consultant or temporary staff member to sift through and investigate the funding requests that have been pouring in, but the effort was thwarted by the four Chicago board members.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that a deliberate deadlock built into the RTA board may lead to its undoing unless the Illinois General Assembly can correct the problem.

Legislators should consider a bill that would place a deadline on the RTA board. Unless a chairman is hired by that date, the task of selecting him would pass to the gov-error. That process would still take many months, but the RTA board is just completing its interviews and may have a long period of arguments and political deadlock ahead.

Approval of a chairman requires at least six votes, and four of them are publicly committed to CTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky — a choice many suburban residents could not accept because of his obvious connection with the city. Pikarsky has excellent credentials, but the General Assembly designed the RTA to insure a non-partisan chairman who would speak equally for the needs of the city and the suburbs.

Commuter railroads and bus lines are pleading with the RTA for help, because an emergency fund established by the state to get them through the RTA's formative period has run out. The funds helped the carriers survive the legal debate that ultimately established the legitimacy of the RTA. That delay was necessary and expected.

The other delays are not necessary. Indeed, transportation plans for the Chicago area are swirling around with the RTA board helpless to comment on or control them, even though the RTA is to be the ultimate transportation authority in this area.

Selection of a chairman is critical because there are further steps to be taken before the RTA becomes active and effective. A staff will have to be selected, research will have to be done and the financial system will have to be established.

The people of the Chicago area deserve an effective mass transportation program, as soon as possible. They voted for it, the General Assembly improved it with a series of amendments, and rising inflation demands that it be accomplished.

The RTA is the General Assembly's baby, and the legislators may have to take a stronger hand in raising it.

Clark Mollenhoff's 'Watch on Washington'

'Kissinger should depart'

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger should gracefully exit from the Ford Cabinet before he is further scarred by more disclosures of CIA involvement in the fall of the Salvador Allende government in Chile.

The handwriting is on the wall of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, where lame duck Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., will no longer be able to defend Kissinger from tough public questioning he has never faced.

Kissinger's role as chairman of "The 40 Committee" that approved CIA policies which undercut the Allende government has prompted criticism from many who were previously his closest friends and supporters in liberal circles.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, a longtime Kissinger admirer, vigorously questioned him about three State Department Latin American affairs specialists under investigation for perjury on testimony before Church's Foreign Relations subcommittee on multinational corporations.

Church is making an issue out of the fact that several high officials of the government "lied" to Congress about the U.S. role in Chile, but he stops short of accusing Kissinger of giving false testimony. He says that Kissinger gave "artful answers" which were deceptive. Only the interference of Chairman Fulbright kept Church and other members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee from even tougher questioning of Kissinger.

Rep. Albert Quie, R-Minn., has suggested that President Ford sweep out the whole Nixon Cabinet, including Kissinger. Quie later made one exception to the clean sweep: Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton.

Quie could suggest no one else to replace him, but said that "Dr. Kissinger is not the indispensable man" and that President Ford could probably find some bright young man to serve in another Kissinger role, director of the National Security Council, while Kissinger is eased out.

Those who believe that Kissinger is indeed an indispensable man and would like to see him remain throughout Ford's tenure find little solace in Ford's carefully phrased praise of Kissinger at the United Nations General Assembly on Sept. 18:

"As a party leader in the Congress of the United States, as vice-president, and now as President of the United States of America, I have had the closest working relationship with Secretary of State Kissinger," Ford told the UN. "I have supported and will continue to endorse his

For four years, Kissinger was director of the National Security Council and President Nixon's personal advisor on foreign affairs, before becoming Secretary of State. In that capacity, he was able to claim executive privilege and defy requests by members of the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs Committees to testify under oath.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers was sent to the Senate and House Committees as the official spokesman, and because he wasn't kept informed by Nixon and Kissinger he could testify as to what he knew without giving away any of the Nixon-Kissinger game plans.

In that period, Fulbright met frequently with Kissinger at lunch, and arranged cozy little seminars for members of his Foreign Relations Committee where Kissinger could explain what was taking place on his own terms and not under oath.

From that time a warm mutual admiration developed between Fulbright and Kissinger. Fulbright has been his protector as charges have flown that Kissinger gave false testimony when he said he did not "initiate" the wiretaps on press members and National Security Council employees.

Under the guiding hand of Fulbright, a report was written clearing Kissinger of misrepresentations.

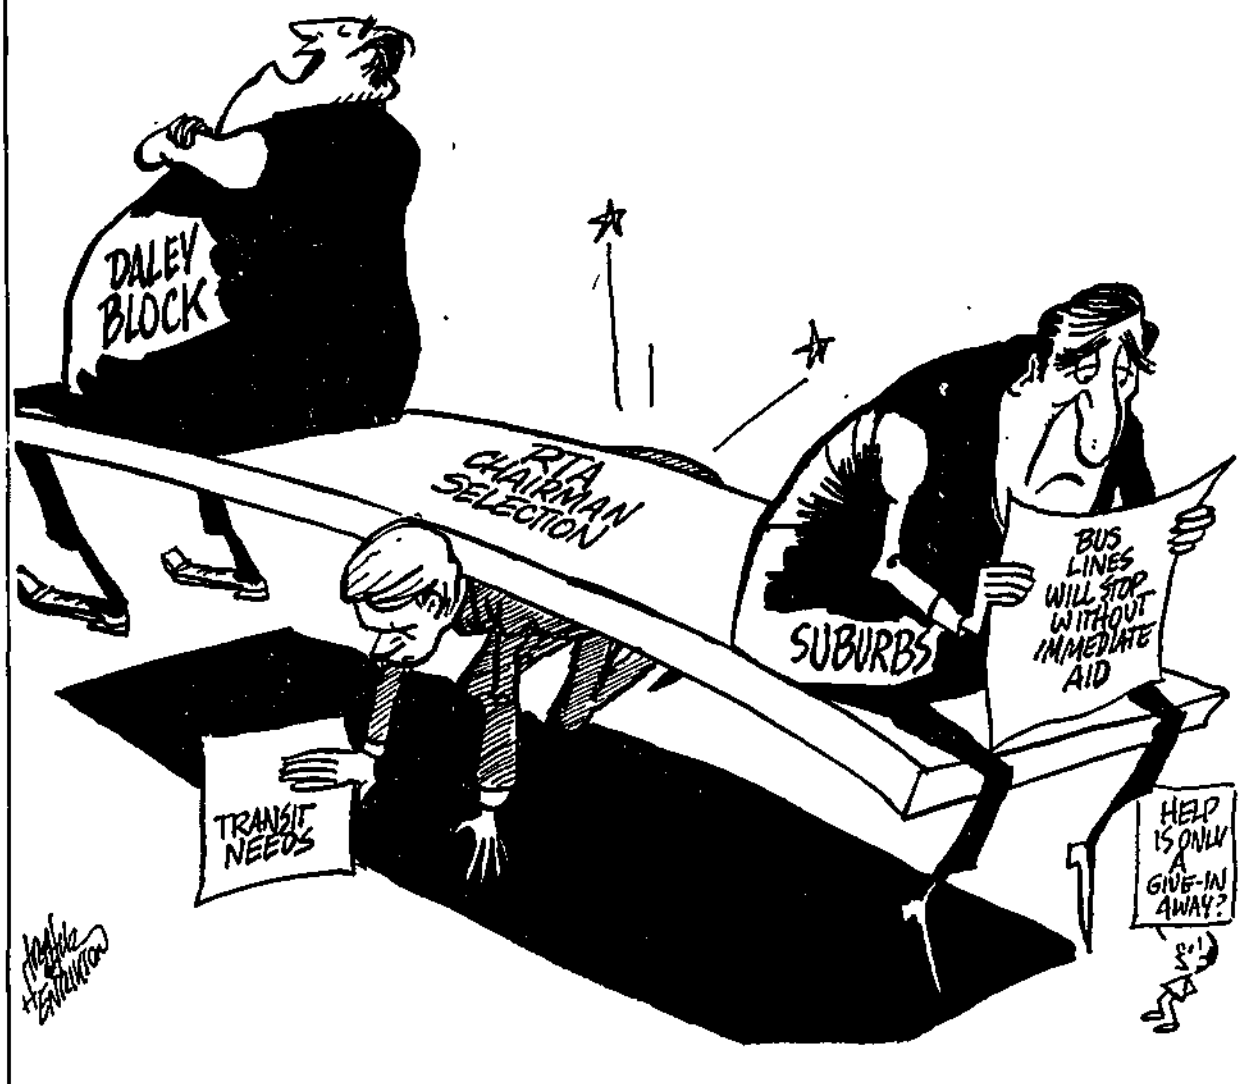

That put Kissinger back on top, but he now has nowhere to go but down. He should remember that the great image of Robert S. McNamara as Defense Secretary suffered when he stayed too long. His artful answers finally caught up with him.

Democrats seek Ohio power

by LEE LEONARD

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Autumn in Ohio generally means geese flying south from Lake Erie, another football powerhouse at Ohio State and no World Series in Cleveland.

In the not so distant past, it has also meant another beating for the Democrats in November. But no longer.

This year the Democrats are campaigning from an unaccustomed position of strength. They control the statehouse, the political donations are rolling in and their organization is the finest in memory.

Even the post-Watergate atmosphere seems to favor their stance of openness, ethical reform and campaign finance disclosures. And the ticket is led by "Mr. Clean" himself, former astronaut John Glenn, who never held political office and appears more popular in Ohio now than when he circled the globe in a spaceship a dozen years ago.

Glenn, 53, is seeking to become the first Democrat from Ohio to be elected to the U.S. Senate in a decade. His ticketmate, the less popular Gov. John J. Gilligan, is running for re-election to a second four-year term.

Republicans, who were recovering nicely from Watergate until a case of "pardonitis" set in, are countering with a pair of veteran politicians, Cleveland Mayor Ralph J. Perk for the Senate and former Gov. James A. Rhodes for an unprecedented third four-year term.

Should Glenn and Gilligan win, they would have to be considered potential national candidates. Glenn has led Perk by at least 2-1 in early polls, but Gilligan has his hands full with Rhodes.

Rhodes, governor for eight years until he was beaten by Gilligan in 1970, turned 65 in September, but shows no signs of slowing down. He is barnstorming across Ohio, driving Gilligan frantic with such statements as:

"Everything's looking up in

James A. Rhodes

John Gilligan

Ohio . . . taxes are up, welfare is up, unemployment is up and state debt is up." Under Rhodes, taxes, unemployment and the state payroll and services were kept down.

Gilligan, 53, prides himself on the accomplishments of his administration, including enactment of a graduated income tax, an environmental protection program, an end to the "warehousing" of mental patients and a 54 per cent increase in state aid to education.

"We have made Ohio the finest place in the country to work and raise a family," Gilligan says.

The governor has gone beyond the ethics and campaign financing requirements enacted during his administration by making detailed personal financial disclosures and releasing voluntarily several pre-election reports on his campaign funds.

"I will comply with the requirements of the law," Rhodes says. Rhodes' staffers scoff at what they call Gilligan's "holier-than-thou" attitude: "You've got to be sure of a guy who walks down the street wearing a button that says 'I never told a lie,'" said one, "because that's at least one."

In contrast, the Glenn-Perk race is a yawn. Perk, 60, was hand-picked for the Senate by state Republican leaders who thought he would be the ideal opponent for Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, wealthy Cleveland Democrat appointed by Gilligan in December to succeed William B. Saxton when he became attorney general.

But Glenn upset Metzenbaum, Gilligan and the Democratic organization which wanted to keep the former astronaut off center stage. Ironically, it appears Glenn will lead the ticket. He has not hurt his image by releasing a 183-page disclosure of his personal finances, including income tax returns dating back to 1965.

Glenn is pushing an anti-inflation program, energy conservation and the idea of a non-lawyer, non-politician in the U.S. Senate.

Perk was the first Republican mayor of Cleveland in 30 years, overcoming a heavy Democratic registration advantage by appealing to the "little people" and the many Clevelanders who — like himself — are of Czech and Slovak descent.

But there is evidence Perk cannot transfer his own popularity downstate, where even Republicans may regard him as just another big city mayor. Conversely, they all know John Glenn is a bona fide hero, and up to 30 per cent of the GOP votes have been going to Glenn in early public opinion polls.

'Coronets rate stories'

I am responding to a letter submitted by Michele Smith and Joyce Cassidy (Fence Post, Sept. 11) asking for more publicity and support for the Coronets.

I am in total agreement with these girls. They deserve better coverage.

My oldest daughter (class of '74, Arlington High School) was not a member of Coronets, but she did have several close friends who were. We know how hard these girls worked, how many, many hours of their free time they have spent in a worthwhile and wholesome pastime, striving toward excellence. They have met the challenge and attained their goal many times.

Unfortunately, if they had chosen to spend this free time pushing drugs or stealing bicycles, the press would have seen fit to give them front page coverage, right? I think they deserve better coverage than all the Stavroses, Kerners and Niksons of our generation, don't you?

These girls are part of the future of our country. We need those who work toward excellence. How about a "hip, hip, hooray" for the good kids, in this case the Coronets. And most of all, how about a "thank you."

Reader moved by flag's story

To a mother of a deceased veteran: My daughter, a first grade student at MacArthur School in Hoffman Estates, told me a story the other evening that was told to her by Mr. LeRoy, the gym teacher of the school. This story deals with the history of the flag in the gym. Briefly, it is as follows: this flag was donated to the school by you, that this flag was the one that draped your son's coffin. Mr. LeRoy tells the children this not only to teach them respect for the flag, but for what this one in particular means. My daughter ended her story with a question. "Could we pray for this boy and his mother?" I was greatly moved by this story.

I couldn't get your name from the school, but the story was verified. In this day of amnesty, I am sure that you must question the meaning of your son's death. I can't lessen your grief, but for what this flag means to us, thank you.

Televised hearing on '1995' leaves questions unanswered

Public seeks more transit plan facts

by STEVE FORSYTH

Residents of the Chicago area seem to want more details before they endorse the proposed 1995 transportation plan presented in a two-hour, televised public hearing Monday night.

The plan calls for improved freeways and arterial roads, extended rapid transit and commuter lines, bus service for almost everyone, coordination of small airports, (including public purchase of Palwaukee) an area freight handling system for trains and trucks, and grade separations at 80 per cent of the area's railroad crossings.

Questions phoned in to Channel 11 (WTTW) Monday night indicated a desire for more specific details. Several residents of Indiana's Lake and Porter counties, included in the transportation plan along with the six metropolitan Chicago counties, asked about bus service, freeways and rail lines destined for their use.

A mixture of experts answered several questions, although they got to only a portion of the 350 calls that came in while the Monday Night Football game and ratings leader "Rhoda" played on other channels.

THE NORTHEASTERN Illinois Planning Commission set up the hearing, held for the first time on television instead of scheduling meetings in strategic locations throughout the area. NIPC has review powers over the plan and over federal grants for the area, and will make a recommendation after the results of the hearing are tabulated. The Chicago Area Transportation System and the Northwestern Indiana Regional Planning Commission have approved the plan.

Further comments will be accepted in writing if they arrive at NIPC offices, 10 S. Riverside Plaza, Chicago, before Oct. 11. A continued session of the hearing will also begin at NIPC offices at 3:30 p.m. Oct. 9, for anyone who was unable to comment Monday night or who has an unanswered question about the plan.

Representatives of the League of Women Voters of Illinois have criticized the plan because it has no priority schedule of projects. The league also objects to continued expansion of freeways in relation to land use goals.

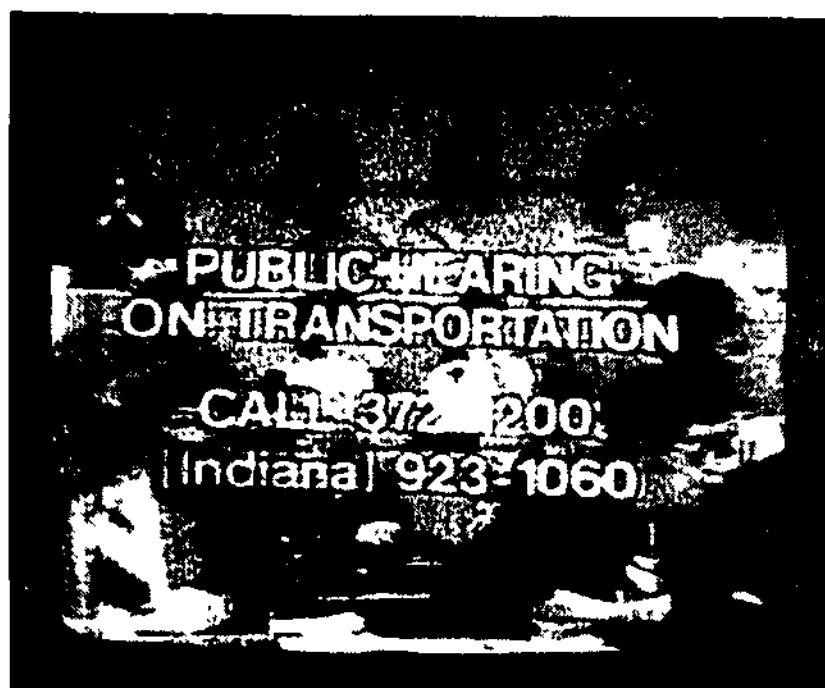

THE PLAN is expected to reduce air pollution by removing cars from the highways or moving them more efficiently, the transit experts said. They added that it will allow control of suburban sprawl by regulating access to transportation. Part of the regulation would come with nine transportation centers planned throughout the area, including one in Elgin.

Tollroads should be free by 1993, according to John Kramer, spokesman for the Illinois Department of Transportation, but he said new tollways may be built to speed up the 1995 transit program.

The plan has no specific proposals for the controversial Cicero Avenue area, where Chicago officials would like to see a crosstown expressway, nor for the heavily congested North Avenue route west of the city.

Inflation may affect the cost of the plan drastically, but officials are presently estimating more than $13 billion, most of which would be spent on mass transportation.

Carey to push for interest on funds

Trust & Savings Bank and American National Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago.

ON MONDAY, Andersen said the county ignores many suburban banks by concentrating deposits of nearly $240 million in Loop banks. Nearly 80 per cent of the county's average monthly accounts are in 15 Loop banks and 60 per cent of deposits are in Continental and First National banks.

Northwest suburban banks top a 10 district list in lack of county funds, Andersen said while calling for deposit of funds in banks throughout the county.

Andersen proposed a program that would divide the county into "community investment districts." Banks would submit public bids for county investments and deposits in each district would be similar to the percentage of county taxes paid by residents of the district.

One of these people could be a millionaire!

by BARRY SIGALE

One is a butcher.
Another is a factory worker.
A third is a divorcee.
Still another is a restaurant owner.
They and five other Northwest suburbanites have one thing in common this week: One of them could win $1 million.

The moment of truth is almost at hand for the nine, who are among 158 qualifiers with dreams of cashing in on the biggest prize the Illinois Lottery has to offer.

Each of them already is $1,500 richer for qualifying as they go into Thursday night's special millionaire drawing in ceremonies in the Gold Room of the Pick-Congress Hotel. And if they don't come away with the top prize they still could win $100,000 or $10,000.

THE DRAWING IS part of a day-night "doubleheader" in which the weekly $300,000 Bonanza prize will be given away following the regular weekly drawing at 10:30 a.m. Then, at 7 p.m., Gov. Daniel Walker and other dignitaries will attend to the major business of crowning the first millionaire.

One thing is for sure: most people are rooting for someone in need of the money. Payments of which are spaced over 20 years at $50,000 per year every Oct. 3 until 1994. And, while free of any major hardship, the local qualifiers definitely could put the money to good use.

The nine area residents became finalists by matching the three digit numbers on their winning Lottery ticket to the corresponding numbers drawn for the week they qualified. Of the nine, a few have had to wait for the big moment for nearly two months, or since the early weeks of the Lottery when their numbers were picked in August.

MOST OF THE nine never had won anything until the Lottery came along. Some had won $20 prizes in other weekly drawings and one took home $100. So they have been touched with a "lucky streak," as most of them refer to it. Here are the nine who soon will be a part of the historic occasion:

Harold C. Shelton

The 46-year-old Des Plaines resident was sitting in a parking lot waiting for his wife when he compared the numbers on his Lottery tickets with the ones printed in the newspaper.

"I just about got my heart in my throat," he said when he realized he was a millionaire qualifier. He went into the building to tell his wife the good news. "I laid it on her," is how he described his happy words to her.

It was the second week in August, making Shelton, 400 W. Touhy Ave., one of the earliest of the 158 finalists. Though he went back to the car and read a book ("I'm a pretty calm guy") the long wait for Thursday's drawing is beginning to take its toll. "But you can't count your chickens before you've got 'em," he explained. "You can't count on it (the million dollars). You're in for a big letdown if you do."

Shelton, who has one son, 24, is a lead fastener man over the boltmaker, or a "troubleshooter" keeping the machines running at ITT Harper in Chicago. He said he is saving for his retirement ("We're not in a hole or anything like that") and that his arthritis acts up on him now and then, hinting that he might move from the area if he wins the big prize. "I can predict whether it's going to rain two days in advance, he said. "My arthritis gets worse every year."

Audrey A. Brocato

Better known these days as "Millionaire," a tag her friends gave her after she learned on Friday the 13th (of September) she was a qualifier. "I jumped up and down when I found out," she said. "I always wondered why people did that. And now I know."

Mrs. Brocato's husband, John, an engraver for the Chicago Tribune, called home with the weekly numbers on Thursday but his wife was painting and couldn't talk to him, delaying by one day her finding out. "I had a dream that night that I won," said Mrs. Brocato, a receptionist for two Palatine optometrists.

A funny thing happened to Mrs. Brocato when she turned in her ticket for verification at the claim center. "My husband drove around the block while I went in. The man (behind the counter) grabbed my hand and said, 'You're not married, are you?'"

Mrs. Brocato, 509 N. Maple St., Mount Prospect, married 21 years Oct. 10 and the mother of five, is philosophical about her chances of winning $1 million. "If it's going to happen, it will. What will I do with the money? I don't know. I'm going to have a party for all my relatives and friends and see everybody I haven't seen for years. Oh, I've thought about houses and cars and other things. But I've settled down."

Robert C. Husar

"We had a tragedy recently," Husar said. "My wife's best friend died (leaving the husband a widower to take care of the children). Maybe it (the Lottery) was meant to help them."

A moving thought from the Hoffman Estates man who, along with his wife, Marilyn, have "agonized" over the wait for Thursday's big drawing. "It's to the point now where it's getting us down," he said. "I wish they would have held it already. It's been nerve-racking." They've been waiting since Sept. 5.

A division manager for Sears Department Stores, Husar was eating dinner alone near his Chicago office when he determined he was a qualifier. "My God, I just won 1,500 bucks," he blurted out to strangers at the next table about the minimum he would win because of his good fortune.

Husar said his friends and neighbors have been enthusiastic about the possibilities and been "lighting candles and praying for us." He wasn't sure what he'd do with the money (besides helping their friend). "I'm afraid to put the cart before the horse." He added that he would like to move from the Midwest (he lives at 190 Northview Ln.) because he's an outdoor type and take his wife, a teacher at Dirksen School in Schaumburg, and son, 14, and daughter, 9, with him.

Danny R. Keck

The 26-year-old Jewel Food Store meatcutter is bubbling with enthusiasm, though his system has been jugged with the anticipation of Thursday's drawing. "Sleeping nights? No way! Eating? Forget it! I've had a bad case of the nerves."

The only thing Keck ever has won is a trip to Florida from a pizza parlor. He had to pay his own airfare, though. The only thing free was the room at the other end of his travel bills. "God willing, I'll win more" than the $1,500 he is certain to pocket.

Naturally, Keck, 9917 Bianco Terr., Des Plaines, bought his winning ticket at Jewel but he was in a department store when he found out he was a millionaire qualifier. "Martha," he said to his 24-year-old wife, "I think we have a winner." A salesgirl checked the numbers and verified his discovery. "My wife started grabbing me and all of us started screaming," including the salesgirl, he said.

As for the million dollars? "I lie in bed at night thinking, I'm 26 years old. What would I do with a million dollars?" He said he probably would set up a trust fund for Melissa, his 18-month-old daughter. Then, he added wistfully, "I've always wanted a Mercedes. It's always been my dream car."

Sue Colvin

"I'm very optimistic (about winning). Why? Necessity, I think. I really need the money. It's the only way out I can see," she said.

Mrs. Colvin, a divorcee, is the mother of three children, a 17-year-old son and freshman at the University of Chicago; a daughter, 15, and another son, 13. Living with her mother and father in a seven-bedroom home with 10 telephones at 174 Ardmore Rd., Des Plaines, Mrs. Colvin said the first thing she will do with any big prize is to "pay back my parents. They've helped an awful lot."

Actually, she already has spent $400 on tuition at Harper College for a two-year course leading to a degree as a legal secretary.

Mrs. Colvin's father, a Montgomery Ward and Co. executive, looked up the winning numbers of Aug. 22 and at first glance agreed with the other family members it was worth only $500. When they found out it was worth much more, they didn't believe it. Mrs. Colvin was a doubter, too, when she first heard about the Illinois Lottery. "I thought I would win," she said. "But $20 is what I had in mind." Now she's anticipating a bigger payoff.

Patricia L. Carlson

The Wheeling mother of two thinks "it's marvelous" that she has won $1,500 so far from the Millionaire Game but is downplaying any overexuberance to avoid a letdown.

"We've discussed the possibilities (of winning the biggest prize of all) but we're the type of people who are thrilled to death" just to be in the final 158. "We hate to discuss what we'd do with the money because of the potential disappointment. Of course, everybody has a few bills that need paying."

Mrs. Carlson, a secretary for a Wheeling plastics company, and her husband, Kenneth, an electrical engineer, live at 484 Isa Dr. They have two daughters attending Western Illinois University who could use the money to further their education. Mrs. Carlson also hopes to help her parents in their retirement years in Vermont.

Stiros Economos

The owner of the Thunderbird Restaurant in Mount Prospect, Economos has vowed to use some of his winnings to benefit others. "My first check I'll send to Cyprus. Secondly, I know a lot of poor people, people who are suffering, people living in Chicago. I will give some of the money to them."

Economos, his wife, Eugenia; a son, 11, and two daughters, 6 and 8, moved to 1344 Indigo Dr., Mount Prospect, four years ago. He bought the restaurant (next to the Thunderbird Lanes) five months ago but has no plans for the restaurant if he wins, only if he doesn't win. "If I win the money I'm going to sell the restaurant. I'll expand it only if I lose."

What's his reaction to the big event and the potential riches? "Just like yours, if suppose you would have won. I don't have much reaction. I'll have a reaction if I win."

Audrey Brocato

Robert C. Pryble

"They are pretty large odds. You wouldn't bet on a horse with those odds." It's a sobering thought Pryble, 988 Beachwood Rd., Buffalo Grove, came up with in discussing his chances of winning against 157 others Thursday night.

Pryble, who qualified for the millionaire drawing Aug. 8, said his two sons, 5 and 16 months, don't understand fully the potential effect on the family that goes along with the top prize. But he's less than optimistic about his chances.

"We're not really looking forward to winning," said the manager of a Chicago typesetting firm. "We got $500 in the mail already and we'll get another $1,000 the night of the drawing." Then, referring to the million, he said, "you get $50,000 the first year. After taxes there's about $30,000 left (there are many variables that will actually determine how much tax is paid). I'd invest it in something or other. After that I don't know what I'd do."

Kathryn A. Houlihan

She is the most tight-lipped about her expectations from the lottery of the nine Northwest suburban millionaire qualifiers. Whether it's because she's nervous or afraid of the publicity, she is uncommonly reluctant to talk.

"We were shocked, of course, when we heard we qualified," she said, of her reaction and that of her husband, Paul, 607 Princeton St., Palatine. "Everyone's excited," she said, with the possible exception of her two daughters, 7 and 8. "I don't know if they pay that much attention to it. They're more interested in playing with friends. You know how children are." The children attend St. Theresa School, where Mrs. Houlihan is a volunteer.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Bidding and play a good test

Board 11 of the Olympiad fund game is a test of both bidding and play. North and South should get to six diamonds. It is a good contract and will be reached easily if South's first rebid is in diamonds. It doesn't matter if North's first response is two clubs or three clubs. He can barge into Blackwood as soon as South bids the diamond suit.

The best lead is a diamond. South should win in dummy and decide that his best line of play is to play to set up dummy by ruffing out one heart and possibly one club.

Then he leads dummy's king of hearts. East will take his ace and lead a second trump which South also wins in dummy. Then South plays the queen of hearts and ruffs dummy's last heart with his last small trump.

Now he is ready to go after clubs. He plays his queen of clubs, followed by a club to dummy's king. Now he can ruff a low club with his ace of trumps; cash the ace of spades; ruff a spade with dummy's three of trumps; cash dummy's last high trump and score the last two tricks with the ace and 10 of clubs.

Discuss board proposal

Harper staff to meet on grievances

by WANDALYN RICE

The Harper College faculty grievance committee will meet today to discuss a proposal from the college board of trustees to change the college's grievance procedure.

The committee will meet to consider the proposal, drawn up by R. Theodore Clark, a board attorney. The committee has been asked to consider the proposal by the college Faculty Senate, said Janet Savin, a committee member.

The proposal, according to faculty and administration sources, would drastically change the role of the faculty grievance committee in grievances and would eliminate the provision for hearings on the complaint conducted by the committee.

Under the board proposal, members of the faculty grievance committee would be allowed to sit in on discussions of a grievance between a faculty member and a series of administrators, starting with the department head and ending with the college president. A faculty member would be able to appeal a complaint to the board of trustees if he was unhappy with the president's decision.

THE FACULTY committee last spring asked that the grievance procedure be changed because they said the committee had a backlog of complaints. Under the old policy, the committee holds formal hearings on the grievances and makes recommendations to the college president. A decision by the president can be appealed to the board.

In their proposal for a change in the procedure, members of the grievance committee asked that an ombudsman be hired to mediate disputes between faculty members and administrators before they become grievances and that the procedure end in binding arbitration if not resolved by the board.

Following those proposals from the committee, the Harper board said they considered the grievance procedure a matter of negotiations between the faculty and board. The board held at least two closed sessions with Clark on the faculty proposals.

After receiving the board's proposals last week, Faculty Senate Pres. Robert Powell predicted that the faculty will find the proposal unacceptable. "The way I read it, this is an entirely administrative procedure. It greatly weakens the faculty's role," Powell said.

HARPER ADMINISTRATION officials however, said the proposal was designed to speed the handling of grievances and to make the process less "legalistic" than the old procedure. The procedure, a spokesman said, "still allows the grievance committee a significant third party role."

The grievance which last year took five months to resolve and resulted in the backlog of complaints awaiting hearing by the committee was filed by the Faculty Senate against the college's dean

County ID card program begins

A mobile program to allow purchase of resident identification cards will begin this week in Cook County.

County Clerk Stanley Kasper said that a converted voter registration van will be at Triton Junior College in River Grove Thursday and at Loyola University in Chicago Friday to issue the new voluntary identification cards.

The cards, which cost $3, can be used for identification and include birth date, a photo, and other information.

Kasper said that other stops for the van will be scheduled throughout suburban Cook County. "If anybody is interested in having a van come to a school or shopping center, give us a call," a Kasper aide said.

To receive a card, three forms of identification are necessary. The laminated cards, which are usable for five years, require about 10 minutes to process.

On coupling Antennas

by Ed Landwehr

Some local folks have had trouble with their old type couplers in getting reception for color TV and a second black and white set from a single antenna system, although it worked all right for two black and white sets previously.

Actually, some of these early designed couplers kill color TV because they "suck out" the 3.58MC frequency on which color depends.

We're correcting this trouble with an inexpensive, new type coupler at Landwehr's Home Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. Phone 255-0700 for this kind of service, or any electronic services in connection with radio, stereo and so on. We always assure you satisfaction.

Recognizing the early signs of emphysema—and what you can do to treat them

Would you kindly explain the symptoms of emphysema and how they affect a person suffering from that malady? Also, is it diagnosed by X ray only? And, are there any medications that afford some relief? I understand that to date no permanent cure has been found for this illness.

We go through semantic manipulation about as often in medicine as clothing styles change. So, emphysema no longer means the same thing to all doctors. The original word comes from Greek and means "an inflation." I suppose you could say we have emphysema of our economy these days.

Most doctors still use the term for lung disease that causes distention or inflation of the air sacs. Your lungs are a collection of tiny air sacs that function to a large extent like a collection of tiny balloons. And, they are also elastic. When you let your breath out their normal elasticity squeezes the air out of the lung, much the same way an inflated balloon shoots air out when you open it.

The overinflation of the lung can occur from loss of the normal elasticity of the tiny air sacs. Or, it can occur from long-standing obstruction to the outlet of the air sacs that eventually connect to your large windpipe (trachea).

Anything that obstructs the normal outflow of air from the lung can contribute to the gradual development of a persistently overinflated or emphysematous lung. This includes infection; and irritants (particularly cigaret smoke and other pollutants).

THE LOSS OF normal lung function from emphysema is gradual. At the beginning it may not cause any noticeable symptoms. It gradually sneaks up on a person. A long standing cough from chronic infection may or may not be present, or a person may have a cigaret hack. At rest the person may not notice anything new. He is literally able to supply only enough oxygen for his body at rest.

Often the first signs are decreased exercise tolerance. He may get tired and short of breath with exertion that used to be no problem. This symptom progresses so that with less and less effort he gets breathless and fatigued.

Finally he may have enough lung changes to cause shortness of breath even while sitting. Cough and related problems vary, depending on whether there is an infection or not, or irritation from pollutants. In advanced cases the circulation is also affected. This may cause a blue color of the lips.

THERE IS A lot you can do for emphysema if you start soon enough. First on the list is to eliminate tobacco smoke and other pollutants. You can't do much for the guy who won't quit smoking. If there is a chronic infection causing secretions that block the air way, these should be eliminated by treatment. Sometimes special techniques are used to moisturize and clean up secretions blocking air passages.

Then there are some medicines that can be used to help relax the air passages, these are the same or similar to those used in treating an asthma attack. But the one thing the patient can do, and his doctor can't do it for him, is to avoid cigaret smoke and polluted air.

Chrysler Corporation announces a new car warranty with unlimited mileage for one full year.

For the first 12 months of use, any Chrysler Motors Corporation dealer will fix, without charge for parts or labor, any part of our 1975 passenger cars we supply (except tires) which proves defective in normal use, regardless of mileage.

And that's just the beginning.

We're confident that you'll find everything about our new '75's—from engineering and styling to economy—easy to say yes to. And for the clincher, we're backing them up with our new Owner Care Program.

It starts with a new 12 month, unlimited mileage warranty so strong and simple it's bound to generate questions. So, right here and now, we offer some answers.

Q. Unlimited mileage sounds simple enough. But what's the catch?

A. There's no catch. The warranty covers every part we put in the car. And it's good for as many miles as you can drive in 12 full months.

Q. What about labor?

How much will that cost?

A. Nothing. If Chrysler Corporation put that part on your car, it's covered. Parts and labor. And that goes for everything except tires, which are covered separately by their manufacturer.

Q. But there are some expensive things that could just "wear out" if you drive enough miles even though they're not "defective." You know; brake linings, mufflers, shock absorbers.

Do I have to pay for them?

A. No. To a lot of people those might be considered something for you to worry about. But since we want to make your relationship with the car we make as worry-free as possible, we're ready to take on those responsibilities. So, even if they just wear out during the first 12 months of normal use, we'll replace them no matter how many miles you drive.

Q. That's a great "extra." Does it include everything that just wears out?

A. No. We expect you to take care of normal maintenance—the little things like changing filters and wiper blades (unless, of course, they're defective, then they come under the warranty).

Q. The only way you could top all that is throw in a free loaner. Uh...do you?
A. Sure. If you make an appointment for warranty repairs in advance, and the job cannot be completed from morning until evening of the same working day, participating dealers will supply you with a loaner. Free.

Q. Is there anything else I should know?
A. Replacing certain worn out parts, our unlimited mileage warranty and our free loaner program are all just the beginning of a new Owner Care Program, designed to make owning our new cars, so worry-free, they'll be irresistible.

See your Chrysler-Plymouth or Dodge dealer. Ask him about his new cars, then ask him about "The Clincher!"

"THE CLINCHER!"

Former Yale All-American wins contest

Crystal balls were sputtering all over the northwest suburbs last week when Purdue trampled Notre Dame and guaranteed at least one incorrect pick on all but three of the 400 entries in the fourth week of Paddock's "Pick the Winners Contest."

Consequently the final outcome was more up for grabs than usual as a total of 12 entries finished with only three incorrect picks. The tiebreaker was put into effect and Paul Lopata of 1440 Whitcomb in Des Plaines picked the Green Bay Packers over the Detroit Lions with a total of 41 points to win the AM-FM transistor radio and become eligible for the grand prize trip to Pasadena.

"It was a helluva lot of effort," Lopata, who works for E.S.B. Medcor, said, "eliminating all of the sure things and trying to pick the close games. I'm a real football fan, though. I played in high school in western Pennsylvania and then made All-American at Yale in 1958."

"My son plays for the Maine West sophomore team so I keep a pretty close eye on high school football around here."

The results of the week's high school games saw St. Viator rolling over Notre Dame, Arlington edging Palatine, Forest View remaining unbeaten with their win over Elk Grove, Hersey nipping Fremd, Buffalo Grove overcoming Wheeling, Rolling Meadows outlasting Conant, Schaumburg slipping past Prospect, and Oak Park beating Maine West.

Harper walloped Kennedy-King in junior college action while in the major college games Colorado stunned Wisconsin, Illinois came from behind to edge Washington State, Kentucky lronounced Indiana, UCLA blasted Michigan State, Florida whipped Mississippi State and Purdue upset the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame in the biggest surprise of the young football season.

The pro ranks featured a good effort from the Chicago Bears before they dropped one to Minnesota, Oakland shut out Pittsburgh, Philadelphia rang Baltimore's bell and New Orleans tripped Atlanta.

In the tiebreaker game Green Bay squeaked by Detroit, 21-19.

Prospect golfers triumph; Huskie-Pirate clash next

Hersey and Palatine watched from the sidelines as the skirmishing for runnerup slots along the Mid-Suburban League golf circuit went full tilt Tuesday . . . and in a couple of instances, down to the wire.

The Huskies (8-0) and Pirates (7-1) along with Rolling Meadows will collide at Palatine Hills this afternoon with first place resting on the outcome. In the meantime Prospect will be waiting in the wings after coming up with Tuesday's only convincing triumph to raise their MSL slate to 8-2.

The Knights forged a perfectly balanced 160 to rocket past both Schaumburg and Buffalo Grove on their home Mount Prospect layout. The biggest jolt there however was supplied by the Saxons, with a 175 total that bettered Buffalo Grove's 178 and ruined the dual meet debut of new Bison interim head coach Fred Van Ilen.

In other competition Arlington reached back for a fifth scored to nudge Forest View 203-206 while both squads were bettering Wheeling at Arlington Country Club. At Golden Acres Conant and Fremd also reached back for fifth scores but still remained deadlocked while topping hosting Elk Grove.

In further action Tuesday, Harper took a pair handily at Rob Roy to stay one meet off the pace in the Skyway Conference runoff and Hoffman Estates annexed a pair of non-conference victories while St. Viator was dropping a toughie to St. Edward.

In the MSL Craig Riddle, Steve Spielman, Scott Spielman and Paul Moats all fashioned 40s to help Prospect nail down two more victories. Schaumburg was paced by Jeff Infusino at 41 with Rick Malinsky and Bill Bronke contributing 41s and Mark Schultz a 46.

For Buffalo Grove it was Rick Groessl at 40, Dan Krolack at 44, Mike Marshall at 45, and Rick Lahrmann at 49. Van Ilen actually replaced Jack Berry at the Grove helm two days earlier with better success . . . a sixth place finish at the 23-team Sterling Invite which included a share of individual medalist honors for Marshall at 73.

Forest View split even ties on Tuesday. In the soph confrontation they knotted with Wheeling at 183-all while the Cards were posting a 185 and the Falcons gained the edge on the fifth man.

In the varsity affair Doug Sandell's 39, Tom Olcese's 40 and 41s from Brian Palmer and Bill Weber combined for 161 by Arlington, equal to the 38 by Ron Ruck and 41s by Rick Keyser, Phil Roclafson and Henry Damiano on behalf of the Falcons. That allowed Ed Colleton's 42 for the hosts to provide the spread over Jim Moran's 45.

Wheeling at the same time had a 43 from John Leonetti, a 47 from Dave Schultz, a 48 from Mike McElugh and a 49 from Dale Cooney.

Conant and Fremd stood at 164 apiece after Jim Martin had carded a 38, Tim Davey and Pete Pavich 41s and Joe Kuzyk a 44 for the hosts while Mark Evans notched a 39, Cliff Garcia a 40, Will Garcia a 42 and Steve Sarlus a 43 for the Vikings. Adding in a 48 by Cougar Rick Fleming and a 46 from Dave McKinney of the Vikes only resulted in a 210-210 tie and it went into the books that way.

Elk Grove meanwhile deserved a better fate after logging a respectable 169 on the efforts of Mike Levanway (40), Branigan (42), Kwon (40) and Christensen (45).

A 78 by Tom McEnerney, a 79 from Steve Loughman, an 80 out of Rick Reed and Mike McCafferty's 84 totaled out to 321 for Harper as they zoomed past hosting Oakton (349) and McHenry (328) in Skyway action. That upped the Hawk league mark to 5-1 — one shy of loop leading Lake County (6-0) — and with only a single clash with Waubesa remaining, pretty well assured Roger Beechold's crew of a second place wind-up in the dual meet portion of the campaign.

Another group of Hawks, out of Hoffman Estates, were paced by John Mann in hitting 165 to sweep past Crown (181) and Round Lake (199). Mann fired a 39 and Joe Husar added a 40, Greg Turner a 41 and Mark Warnecke a 45 in support as young squad upped their overall record to 3-7.

Viator's record meantime slipped to 5-6-1 as they were stopped by St. Ed 160-163 at the picturesque St. Andrews layout. Mike Allare shot a 39, Tim Brennan a 40 and John Lanhenry and Tom Hermanson had 42s for the guests.

In other frosh-soph combat it was Prospect (180) over Buffalo Grove (190) and Schaumburg (218), Fremd (177) over Conant (194) and Elk Grove (230), Viator over St. Edward 196-219, and Hoffman at 183 over Crown (212) and Round Lake (231).

Hoffman Estates records another shutout

Had it not been for Buffalo Grove's razzle dazzle play three weeks earlier, Hoffman Estates' defensive team would be unscored upon right now.

The Hawks registered their third straight shutout Monday, stopping Elgin Larkin's junior varsity, 26-0. That's 13 straight quarters of goose eggs for the Hoffman Defenders!

Bill Gourley, Hoffman's head coach, said his defense "as a whole did a good job. Since Elgin Larkin plays the triple option, we were anxious to play them. We were seeing something different."

This offensive formation didn't phase the Hawks, who held the Royals to just three first downs, 68 rushing yards and just five passing yards!

Meanwhile, the Hawks were enjoying "by far our best offensive effort drive-wise," said Gourley.

Behind the quarterbacking of Wayne Jackson, the Hawks rolled up 210 yards rushing. Accounting for 127 was Dave

Joe Paul races to victory, but Fremd wins three duels

by ART MUGALIAN
Cross Country Editor

On a cold and windy Tuesday in early October, Maine West's Joe Paul showed an assembled multitude at Busse Woods why he deserves to be ranked among the top cross country runners in Illinois.

At the same time, on the same course, Fremd High School's harriers were demonstrating why they rate near the pinnacle on the list of the state's best third-clad teams.

The occasion was a four-way dual meet hosted yesterday by Gerry Woolard's Elk Grove Grenadiers. The opposition was supplied by two of the cross country powerhouses in the Mid-Suburban League, Fremd and Conant, and one of the premier squads from the Central Suburban loop, Maine West.

With the thermometer registering right around 40 on the Fahrenheit scale and the sun dipping behind the elms and maples, Paul piled on the coals and chugged almost effortlessly to a comfortable victory on the three-mile course. The senior's time was 15:14, nineteen seconds ahead of Fremd's Wil Fieldhouse.

But Paul's solo success in outracing Fieldhouse couldn't detract from Fremd's awesome triple victory — 25-32 over Maine West, 18-42 over Conant, and 15-50 over Elk Grove.

Despite the loss to Fremd, Maine West coach Bill Barringer was encouraged by his team's strong effort against a talent-laden Viking outfit, and the coach was elated by Paul's performance.

"Joe ran a really strong race," said Barringer. "It's hard to tell what kind of pace he set, but he ran a smart race."

Barringer was especially delighted over the fact that his Warrior harriers knocked off Conant, 21-36, and Elk Grove, 15-50.

"We're really glad to beat Conant," the coach said. "They beat us three out of three last year."

Fremd coach Ron Menely had the satisfaction of watching his boys bump Conant from the ranks of the unbeaten in MSL dual meets. Menely's Vikings, with Tuesday's wins, stand alone at the top of the league with a dual record of 10-0. Conant's mark is now 8-1.

The Vikings got another strong effort from Fieldhouse, who was second behind Paul in 15:33. Fieldhouse challenged much of the way, but he surrendered more territory in the latter stages than he could make up.

Behind Fieldhouse was Fremd's Paul Klynyn (15:39), Conant's Mark Kaufman (15:45), Maine West's Gary Brenner (15:49), and Fremd's John Filosa (15:51). In seventh place was West's Paul Mademann (15:55), followed by Dave Scott (15:57), Jim Galls (15:58), and Dan Tischler of Fremd.

Filosa and Tischler are sophomores who competed Monday at the York Frosh-Soph Invite.

The Fremd coach was suitably impressed with the running of Paul, whose most recent appearance came at the Ridgewood Invitational where he placed third behind Kip Smith of Oak Park and Tony Magdaleno of Woodstock.

"He's a really strong runner," said Menely. "He's one of the best in the Another coach who liked what he saw of Paul was Conant's Jack Ary.

"I expected more of a duel between Paul and Fieldhouse," said the Cougar coach. "I'd have to say now that Paul is one of the five best runners in the state."

Ary's squad had marked Tuesday's meet in red on the calendar, hoping for a super performance to topple the Viking horde. Instead, the Cougars were flat.

"We figured Fieldhouse and Klynyn would go one-two," Ary admitted. "But after that, we hoped to break them up. Kaufman did a good job, but (Pat) Moran and (Dave) Elderkin fell back."

Moran, who has consistently been Conant's number three man, fell to 13th place, and Elderkin, running with a temperature, dropped to 15th behind six Fremd harriers.

The Cougars' only consolation was a 15-48 win over Elk Grove.

The West Warriors, who got up against a strong Maine East harrier squad on Thursday, got good efforts from John McCabe and freshman Terry Walters, who finished 11th and 14th respectively.

And Fremd again benefited from a fantastic 25-second split between its first and fifth runners. The performance had both Barringer and Ary shaking their heads and muttering to themselves.

Fremd's next challenge will come this Saturday when the Vikes travel to Peoria Central High School for the Peoria Invite. The race features state-meet conditions and some of the best competition in Illinois.

"I guess when we come back from Peoria we'll know just how good we really are," said Menely. "We'll certainly be tested down there."

Drivers sparkle at Elkhart Lake

The annual Kettle Moraine Regional Race sponsored by the Sports Car Club of America's Chicago Region was held at the Road America Track in Elkhart Lake, Wis. over the weekend.

Over 150 entries competed over the four-mile road course.

The Koske Import Motors Sprite driven by Paul Costello of Barrington finished first in the H Production class in Race No. 3. Costello qualified in the No. 1 position in class and went on to take the checkered flag by 20 seconds over the second place car driven by Dave Culligan of Chicago.

Race No. 4 showed two Palatine men in the G Production field. Don Smith, driving an Alfa Romeo, qualified second in class and Gary Parsons, driving a Spitfire, qualified 12th. Smith had several pit stops to replace a disconnected spark plug lead and dropped off to a 7th place finish. Parsons drove steadily to finish ninth in class.

Jacobsen two shots off pace

Tom Jacobsen just missed victory No. 5 Sunday.

Schaumburg's head golf coach finished second in the club championship at White Pines Golf Club. Jacobsen shot 72, two strokes off the pace of Bob Bertell. The winner was Jacobsen's playing partner.

The club championship's first round had been played over the Labor Day weekend, but the final 18 holes was rained out. Jacobsen had an opening 70, leaving him in fourth place.

Jacobsen captured four amateur championships this past summer.

PLAYING OPOSSUM. Mrs. Henry Schroeder of Mount Prospect smiles with relief after caging the unwanted prowler that had created flower, garden and garbage damage in her neighborhood since July. The opossum is probably a refugee from a nearby forest preserve where he was quickly re-turned.

Playing opossum captures burglar

Outdoor Editor

It took a case of reverse psychology, playing opossum to be specific, but it worked.

Mrs. Henry Schroeder, of 402 S. Emerson in Mount Prospect, discovered a nocturnal prowler who had developed the bad manners of digging up her flowers and garden and shredding the garbage around the backyard.

"The neighbors around us were complaining of the same thing," Mrs. Schroeder explained. "No matter how securely we bagged or canned our garbage, it would be all over the place the following morning."

The Schroeders' first impression that it was a dog on the prowl since the scratch marks around the cans resembled the paw marks of a dog.

The damage was becoming so frequent and costly that the Schroeders took action.

"My husband went out and bought a cage that cost us 15 dollars," she described, "so you can see we were tired of fooling around. That was back in July."

"We baited it with sausage and beef and sure enough, we'd come out the next morning and the trap would be sprung, the meat gone, but nothing in the cage."

Persistence finally paid off for the Schroeders.

One week ago, Mrs. Schroeder loaded the trip mechanism with an appetizing piece of liver sausage and carefully placed the cage near the garbage cans.

At 6:30 the following morning, the Schroeders found the nemesis that had been creating the neighborhood disturbance.

Inside the rectangular wire cage was a shivering opossum, caught in the act of stealing a night's nourishment.

The steely-haired animal was scared and obviously uncomfortable in his solitary-confinement compartment. He refused a generous offering of beef from Mrs. Schroeder who was still scolding his behavior while calling the Nature Center for relief.

"Nobody wants him," she said, playing a tin-sounding harp by dragging her finial across the metal grid. "The Nature Center advised me to take him to the forest preserve and release him near the picnic area and he wouldn't have any trouble surviving."

From the looks of his finely-filleted and needle-sharp teeth, it looked like he'd survive in a petrified forest. Opossum, with their long, hairless tails, are frequent visitors to suburban neighborhoods and while they are marsupial and omnivorous, they can create havoc if they ever enter an attic, basement or garage. Some carry rabies.

Mrs. Schroeder cringed at the idea of finding a female to mate and raise opossum. She was more receptive to wishing the little intruder well and sending him on his way.

Don't cut corners when purchasing a knife

by VIC WATIA

One of the most important tools for the dedicated deer hunter is a knife, yet novice hunters often are confused when it comes to making such a purchase simply because of the large selection available on the market.

The individual preference of a hunting knife varies among deer hunters as much as their preference in rifle calibers, but certain rules should be followed by the novice in purchasing cutlery.

Nothing makes a novice stand out more among veteran deer hunters than an oversized, improper hunting knife hanging from his side.

For example, the popular Bowie knives might serve as camp tools for use in breaking up kindling wood or other tough chores, but they are too long, heavy and impractical to be used as standard equipment by the hunter.

Likewise, a long, thin-bladed fillet knife used by a fisherman does not belong on the deer trail because it lacks the backbone needed in dressing out game.

The knife used by the deer hunter must be capable of opening the animal, cleaning it and skinning it.

Therefore, most veteran deer hunters prefer a sturdy knife with a blade three to six inches long.

The shape of the blade also is important, and veterans agree a dropped point blade — the point is lower than the back of the blade or a straight blade — the point is even with the back of the blade — are the best all around deer knives.

The novice must remember to choose a knife strong enough to do the job, yet be safe to carry in the field. Long-bladed knives can result in tragic accidents if the hunter falls in rough terrain.

Stainless steel blades resist staining and are popular among many hunters, but tool steel blades maintain their keenness longer.

The selection of a knife sheath is equally important. Many hunters prefer a sheath with a flap that buttons shut, completely covering the knife to prevent loss.

Others prefer a pouch-type sheath, but care should be taken to choose one which does not allow exposure of too much knife handle. Sheaths with keeper straps which hold the knife handle secure also will do the job.

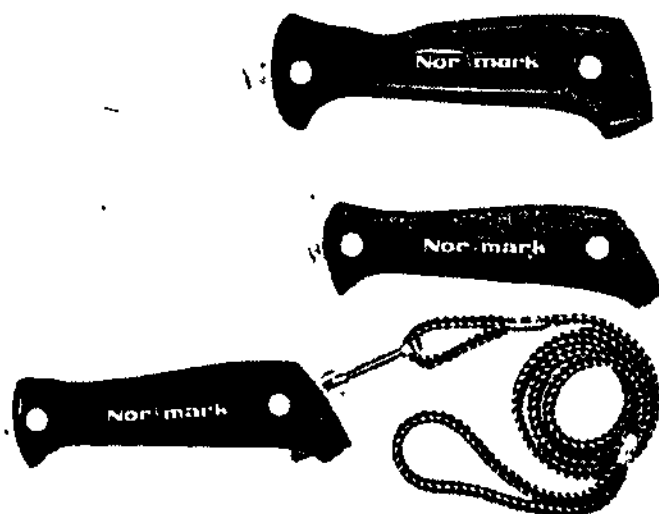

Sheaths without keeper straps can easily be converted by the addition of a piece of rawhide which can be tied to keep the handle in place.

The sheath is important because a knife that is carried loosely can become lost or result in injuries.

Folding hunting knives also are popular among deer hunters because they are lightweight and can be tucked in trouser or jacket pockets.

The hunter must remember to keep his blade as sharp as possible. A light coat of oil can be rubbed on a blade to prevent rust.

The hunter who neglects his knife can double his work in the field, quick, efficient dressing of wild game is important in preserving the flavor of the meat. (United Press International) rust and can be used for virtually everything from dressing a deer to skinning an apple.

Prairie Path gets extension

If you think you have to travel a thousand miles east or west to hike or ride a national trail, think again. The Illinois Prairie Path, a part of the National Trails System, is in your own back yard.

And thanks to a recently approved federal grant to buy additional land, the 40-mile trail will be extended eastward into Cook County, making it even more accessible to local urbanites.

The federal Land and Water Conservation Fund contributed half of the total $500,000 needed to acquire the land for the trail extension. Administered nationally by the U.S. Department of the Interior's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR), the Fund provides matching grants to states and their political subdivisions for planning, acquiring, and developing recreation areas. The program is administered at the state level in Illinois by the Department of Conservation.

The Villages of Maywood, Hillside, Berkeley, and Bellwood cooperated to provide the matching funds to acquire the 4.5 miles of abandoned Chicago, Aurora, and Elgin Railway right-of-way, extending the Path from the DuPage County line, its former eastern terminus, to 1st Avenue in Maywood.

This additional mileage will connect with the Elmhurst to Wheaton segment of the Path in DuPage County and its three branches to Aurora, Batavia, and Elgin in Kane County. As indicated by the design of the Prairie Path's emblem, the trail is open to hiking, bicycling, and horseback riding.

John D. Cherry, regional director of BOR's Lake Central Region headquartered in Ann Arbor, Mich., called the project "an excellent example of what can be accomplished through federal, state, and local cooperation in meeting our recreation needs."

"The spirit of cooperation displayed by the four communities in jointly working to acquire this new segment is itself characteristic of the efforts that led to the establishment of the Prairie Path."

Initiated by Mrs. May Theilgaard Watts, a distinguished naturalist, teacher, and author, the idea for the Path grew through much volunteer promotion and the cooperation of utility companies, civic leaders, and state, county, and local officials.

In 1966, the Illinois Prairie Path, a non-profit corporation, was organized and granted a 12-year lease to the right-of-way by DuPage County. The lease has since been extended.

In 1972, the state Department of Conservation acquired the Kane County segment of the right-of-way and leased the property to the Forest Preserve Commission for use and development as part of the Path.

The development of the trail breathes life into the various federal, state, and local plans that call for the acquisition of open space in and near urban areas and for the development of linear parks connecting metropolitan areas with recreational resources.

The nationwide outdoor recreation plan, "Outdoor Recreation — A Legacy for America," stresses the importance of providing trails for recreation and suggests that utility and abandoned railroad rights-of-way be acquired and developed for trail activities.

BOR's Cherry is enthusiastic in encouraging recreation use of rights-of-way. Speaking recently he said, "As the use of rail service has declined due to the competition and convenience of other modes of transportation, many railroads have discontinued service along little used and unprofitable lines."

"During the past two years the number of railroad right-of-way abandonments occurring in the Lake Central Region has increased significantly, and it appears that the rate may accelerate greatly during the next few years.

"Many of these rights-of-way are suitable for trail or linear park development. Although several have been acquired and established as trails, most of this large potential source of recreation land remains relatively untapped. Action by state and local governments is needed to acquire these lands and develop their high recreation potential."

The Prairie Path was the first trail formally submitted to the Secretary of the Interior for designation as a National Recreation Trail under legislation passed by Congress in 1968. Official federal recognition came in 1971 when Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton designated approximately 23 miles of the trail as a recreation component of the National Trails System.

The system is composed of basically two types of trails: national scenic trails, which are long trails traversing scenic areas of the country and can only be designated by Congress, and national recreation trails, which are usually much shorter trails located in or near urban areas and designated by either the Secretary of the Interior or the Secretary of Agriculture.

These regulations govern Illinois hunting

Outdoor Editor

With the deer season for both gunners and archers celebrating its second-day anniversary in Illinois today, the volume of calls and letters asking about general information, regulations and sites, increased appreciably.

There were questions about duck and pheasant shooting, age requirements and even an inquiry about trapping.

At least these people had the foresight to ask first, then hunt.

When dealing with firearms, private land and endangered species, in some cases, it pays to be inquisitive now, not when you're staring at a red-necked landowner flogging your bag limit of canvasbacks without a Federal Migratory Bird Hunting stamp.

The complete Illinois hunting calendar with bag limits accompanies this piece. Clip it out. It will probably answer the majority of your questions.

Otherwise, the 1974-75 Illinois Hunting and Trapping Information brochure, distributed by the Department of Conservation, may clear up any uncertainties you may have.

For example the eight page booklet urges that when hunting on private property, be sure to obtain permission from the landowner. Too often, stiff fines are levied against uninformed trespassers.

Take particular care in leaving the area the same way you entered it. Close all gates, use extreme caution when crossing fences, stay out of unharvested cropfields and respect the landowners wishes in all concerns. Shooting, hunting or allowing dogs to work within 200 yards of a dwelling without obtaining permission is strictly prohibited.

Another important, but perhaps overlooked fact is that 7-Eleven Food Stores, in conjunction with the National Wildlife Federation, has established a program to create public awareness of our endangered animal species and to construct a preserve in South Dakota for the American Bald Eagle, one of the animals in imminent danger of extinction.

Illinois has taken steps to preserve additional species including eagles, hawks, owls, sharp-tailed grouse, ruffed grouse, prairie chickens, bobcats, badgers, otter and songbirds.

The canvasback duck is also protected statewide and redheads may not be hunted on the Mississippi River or in its backwaters from Alton to the Wisconsin boundary.

Hunters and trappers are required to have valid Illinois hunting or trapping licenses in their possession. Each fee cost

$3.25 and expires March 31, 1975. Hunters 16 years of age or older are also required to possess a valid Federal Migratory Bird Hunting stamp when hunting migratory waterfowl. It is illegal to use a rifle, pistol, revolver or airgun in hunting birds or to use spears to take animals or birds.

Be sure to obtain permission from a landowner before hunting private property. It saves trespassing fines.

Fall spawning runs begin for salmon

Get ready for the salmon run.

With fall temperatures dropping into the 40's, the department of natural resources from both Michigan and Wisconsin are expecting fishing to pick up considerably.

In Michigan, the reported hotspots for big chinook include Lake Michigan, Kalamazoo River up to Lake Allegan, St. Joseph River below Berrien Springs Dam, Grand River up to the 6th St. Dam in Grand Rapids, Muskegon Lake and Muskegon River up to Croton Dam, Sable River at Ludington State Park, Manistee Lake and Big Manistee River below Tippy Dam, West Grand Traverse Bay and the Manistee River and Menominee River in the Upper Peninsula.

According to Stan Liovense, a veteran Michigan fisherman, when Chinook are not hitting conventional lures due to warm water, hobby fishing near the bottom with nightcrawlers or live suckers has worked in the past.

Working a flatfish or similar fast-action plug in front of some spawning fish or next to the bottom in a hole, or around heavy cover is yet another trick.

If they aren't biting during the day, Liovense suggests the angler try night fishing. Chinook may wait until nightfall to concentrate into schools, making fishing much easier and successful.

In the southeast district of Wisconsin, salmon reports indicate that shore fishermen are netting cohos off Lake Michigan in Milwaukee while fishing for brown and rainbow trout is on the upswing.

Brown trout are being taken from the piers and shorelines in Racine and Lake trout are being taken in deep water off Racine.

Meanwhile, the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) received approval from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to expand its efforts to improve the Great Lakes Sport Fisheries.

The DNR expects to receive $850,500 in federal aid during the next three years to support stocking programs of coho and chinook salmon and brook, brown and rainbow trout.

It is anticipated that by 1980, sport fishing demand on the Great Lakes will exceed 1.5 million angler trips in Wisconsin waters. To meet the demand, the stocking of 468,000 pounds of trout and salmon annually will be undertaken.

Wisconsin deer bow hunters enjoyed near ideal weather conditions for the first week of the season. Deer were reported in large numbers from most of the peak areas. Even bear hunting is bringing success in Vilas, Oneida and Forest counties.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS BOYS FOOTBALL

The half way point in the season finds the Redskins and Cowboys leading their divisions and the Browns and Steelers tied for first in their league.

Redskins 14, Lions 8
With only 45 seconds left to play, Pat O'Brien threw a five yard TD pass to Dave Wimmer for the 49ers' first win of the season. Mike Dury ran for the two extra points. The Lions scored when John Helfman ran seven yards. The other 100 score came when John Shaw put together runs of 10 yards and 30 yards for the TD. John Krewer was a stand-out both ways for the Lions and Rich Elsenhuth turned in a good defensive effort. Pat Teltmeyer and John Winslow anchored the defense for the 49ers and a good effort was also turned in by Paul Sartore.

Redskins 14, Lions 8
The Redskins' defense extended its shutout record to three games with some fine defensive play by the entire team. Some of the tackles were made by Dan Cornwell, who saved the safety. Dan Purdie, Rich Klecker, John Benoit, Roland Hinkner and Terrell Kramer. The defense also included Rocky Damato, Steve Fuesle, Cliff Bailey and Paul Bergerson. The TDs were scored by John Carey, Paul Williams and two on pass plays from Jeff Smith to Dan Cornwell, Chris Hinkert, Mike Foesle, Tom Butts and Mike Lux turned in fine play on offense. Lion standouts were Rob Stady, Jim Craig, Dan Makreover, Jim Murphy, Bryan Berry, Bryan Busby and Mark Toljanic.

Steelers 14, Giants 6
After a Tom Zale punt to the Giants three, a tough Steeler defense held and took over on the Giant 16. On the next series, Brian Walton passed 10 yards to Dave Patterson for the TD and Scott Meyer ran for the PAT. The Steelers defense held after the kickoff and the Steelers then mounted the longest drive of the day featuring hard running by Meyer and a 21 yard Walton pass to Patterson.

A fumble on the two stalled the drive but a hard tackle by Dave Loch jarred the ball loose and Mike Bruck recovered in the end zone for the second Steeler TD. Zale carried for the conversion. The Giants score came on a blocked punt and a 45 yard pass from Terry Florida to Harry Hollistrom. Another Steeler stand-out was Scott Bastable. Giants gave credit to Jim Vaisovich, Bill Hulek, Dan Campbell and Pete DeGroot.

Steelers 14, Vikings 0
While outgaining the Giants 70 yards to 30 yards, the Holy Terror were unable to score. Jeff Hildebrandt completed a 22 yard pass to Pat Durand. Mike Spillman had a 17 yard run and also intercepted a pass for the Steelers. Tom Kasper was also tough on defense.

Browns 12, Vikings 0
In an outstanding defensive battle by both teams, the Browns edged the Vikings 12-0. On offense the Browns were again led by Jim Lech with one TD and Kevin McCarthy with the other. Jim Janichan kept the Vikings in the hole with his fine punting. Defensively, the Browns were led by Jim Lamanna who recovered two fumbles and Steve Pantuzzi. Turning point of the game was when Jim Lech caught a Viking line-backer who had intercepted a pass.

Vikings "H" 8, Browns "H" 0
The Vikings scored on an intercepted pass on the final play of the game to beat the Browns 8-0. The game was dominated by the Browns until that point with the fine passing of Steve Snelson, Mike Butts, Ron Norsell and Mark Leber played a good game for the Browns.

Saints 12, Dolphins 6
Saints rugged defense held Dolphins to less than 50 yards in the first half while offense was sparked by sharp passing of Richie Carpenter to Tom Bunnelle, Aiello and Andjeski, with extra credit given to center Billy Kenney for his excellent job in the rain. Aiello took a direct snap from Kenney and cut right for his first score of the season. Andjeski followed taking a direct snap. Aiello then scored on a snap from Kenney. The Dolphins score came near the end of the game.

Raiders 18, Eagles 6
More Conley handed off behind a fine blocking line to his three running backs with Dean Nelson scoring two TDs and Kevin Thompson one. Ed Williams' 10 yard per carry average helped spark a fine game. Jeff Steek and Paul Gebro were the strong safeties.

Cowboys 8, Falcons 0
In one of the most exciting defensive battles of the season, with intermittent rain, the Cowboys managed the only score and held for the win. Rich Kuebler, aided by great blocking, ran 27 yards off tackle for the TD and Larry Teichow made the conversion. Defense ruled the second half with neither team able to sustain an offensive drive. Cowboy stars were Tom Dwyer over center, Doug Hiesley, Dave Scherard, Brian Kempion and the entire defensive team. Falcon stars were Brad Rosley, Mike Bonagura, Tom Sanders, Jim Aiello, Tom Weber and Corey Hutchinson.

Falcons "H" 14, Cowboy Spurs 6
The Falcons struck on the opening kickoff with a great run of 60 yards by Chris Mahon. The Spurs scored on a steady drive with Kyle Motzkus bolting five yards for the tying score. Late in the game Lance Pearson of the Falcons returned an interception 35 yards for the TD and Bill Oakley converted to end the scoring. Falcon defensive star was Greg Lemskog. Spur stars were Ben Selfert, Kevin Potter, Kurt Terrell and Jason Gedrold.

Cardinals 20, Bears 8
Card Scott Cowen scored a quick TD with a 60 yard sweep in the first quarter. Paul Paynter recovered a fumble. Danny Lindstrom rushed 14 yards and set up the next TD with Cowen plunging seven yards to score. Cowen made the PAT. Joel Fish stung the Bears by intercepting a pass and going for a TD. Bear standouts were Jeff Albrecht and Steve Topczewski. Card standouts were Tom Sadowski, Cam Blair, and Martin Doveley.

Bears "H" 14, Cardinals "H" 9
Tyronne "Florida" 17 yard run and 25 yard pass to Brian Sullivan failed to end with a score. The Bears got the ball but Brian Sullivan got the Bears in their end zone for a safety. Mike Bickerson set up a Bear winning TD by intercepting a Card pass and running 40 yards. Three plays later Erick Ellingson rushed in for the TD. Bears' Pete Youngsworth and Scott Kern were outstanding offensively. Dave Priester led the Bears defense. Cards' Myles Naughton was outstanding with four key tackles in a row.

A well balanced, well played game by both teams. Offensively the Packers dominated the first half and the Colts the second. Standouts were Packers Steve Talac, Jim Buener, and Ed Maloney. For the Colts it was Dan Humbert, Mike More, Phil Samons, Mark Shepard, Pat Joliffe, Ken Butts and Cliff Benoit.

Colts 6, Packers 0
Rick Mianulli scored four TDs and Tim Jauch one. Brian Jauch's running set up the first score by returning the kickoff to the slant. A recovered fumble by Clark Poland set up the second score. The Packers were sacked in their end zone by Mianulli for a safety and a pass to Mike Joliffe made good a PAT. Packer stars were Ross Dellacocca, Pat Pilepelt and Jack Weber. Colt stars were Tom More, Dan Humbert, and the entire offensive line.

GM hopes new team can hike profits

by RICHARD HUGHES

NEW YORK — General Motors has a new team of top executives to deal with sagging sales and profits, but the new officers say there will be little change in corporate priorities.

The board of directors of GM, the conservative and staid giant of the auto industry, this week elected Thomas A. Murphy, 58, to succeed Richard C. Gerstenberg as chairman when Gerstenberg retires Dec. 1.

The selection of Murphy, who spent all but four of his 37 years with GM in the financial department, assures that company control will be in the hands of economy-conscious accountants. Like Gerstenberg, he rose through the book-keeping ranks. E.M. "Pete" Estes was named president to succeed Edward M. Cole, who stepped aside today having passed the mandatory 65 retirement age.

An engineer, Estes was given expanded duties as operational chief for Europe and North America.

AT A NEWS conference following their selection, Murphy and Estes praised Gerstenberg and Cole and said there would be little change in priorities.

Estes, however, said that more attention will be given in the future to achieving better fuel economy and meeting government safety and emission standards.

Gerstenberg was optimistic about the economy and the auto industry's future. "We've seen our business pick up as the year unfolds," he said.

GM, which has increased the price of cars an average of about $500 since the 1974 models were introduced, will try to hold the line on prices but would make no promises, he said.

The nation's economy, Gerstenberg said, is showing some signs of improvement. He added, "I see no need to be concerned about a depression here if we go about this thing in the right way."

He said the Ford administration's proposal to raise the gasoline taxes to discourage consumption would be a "terrible thing to do" and would penalize

Readjustment period seen

The remainder of 1974 and early 1975 likely will be "a period of financial readjustment with no distinct economic trends," said S. Lees Booth, senior vice president and director of research for the National Consumer Finance Assn.

Booth also said that consumer confidence may trend higher toward pre-1970 levels beginning in the second or third quarter of 1975.

Despite what he termed the encouraging prospect of political action, Booth said, "until some positive action is taken which at least suggests that a definite counter-inflationary trend may occur, there is little likelihood of real improvement in consumer attitudes or significant increase in consumer credit availability."

Finding out financial status is way to beat credit crunch

Know where you stand financially — it's the only way to avoid getting caught in a credit crunch when the bills come due, a financial adviser Mattie Stewart says.

As director of the Family Financial Counseling Service of Greater Chicago, Mrs. Stewart talks to many families in financial distress. The common denominator among the agency's clients is "most people never set down to know how much money is coming into the household each month or week, and how it is being spent," she said.

The counseling service is among the nonprofit Consumer Credit Counseling Service offices, sponsored by the National Foundation for Consumer Credit. Mrs. Stewart said the Chicago agency will counsel approximately 2,500 families this year. About 32 per cent live in the suburbs.

"There are very few families which have just financial problems," said Mrs. Stewart. There can be mental, physical and marital problems. Counseling service is offered to consumers who seek financial aid to the agency, 192 N. Clark St., Chicago.

FOUR BASIC SERVICES offered through the counseling service are outlined by Mrs. Stewart:

- Debt management service. Counselors work with a family for 18 to 24 months to establish a budget and eliminate some of their debt load. A fee is charged, ranging to a maximum $2.50 a week.

- "We try to first relieve immediate pressures, and then to salvage a job and work in the best interest of a client," Mrs. Stewart said.

- Budget counseling. Families which have sufficient income but lack money management skills may participate in up to six counseling sessions.

- Referral and followup. Social services agencies, legal assistance and medical services are among the referrals which may be made to assist a family which has overextended its credit.

- Speakers' bureau and slide programs. Consumer workshops and other programs are geared to education. "Money management is something that has not been taught in school," Mrs. Stewart said.

- "We feel consumers should be aware of all alternatives available to them." Family counseling centers and Chapter XIII of the Federal Bankruptcy System are among the alternatives.

those "least able to afford it."

THE GM BOARD expanded its top management group, naming two vice chairmen — Richard L. Terrell, the only other serious candidate for president, and Oscar A. Lundin, who retires in 14 months.

In addition, four new executive vice presidents were elected. "This enlargement of the top management group recognizes the ever-increasing complexity of operating a modern, worldwide enterprise," the board said.

The change in leadership comes at a critical time for GM, hard hit by inflation, the oil shortage and slowness in adding small luxury cars to its Buick and Oldsmobile divisions.

In the first six months of this year, GM profits fell to $425 million, down nearly 75 per cent from 1973.

Builders set 'Housing Mobilization Day'

In a nationwide effort to bring attention to the emergency facing the housing industry, the National Assn. of Home Builders has set Oct. 8 as "Housing Mobilization Day," said Al Kaufman, president of the Home Builders Assn. of Greater Chicago.

The housing industry is in such serious economic straits as to demand recognition and solutions to the crises inhibiting the industry's ability to provide living units, Kaufman said.

All sectors of the industry, from suppliers of goods and services to the builders, will seek three following basic goals necessary to the provision of the housing needs of American families and necessary also to halt mounting unemployment in the industry.

First, additional special assistance funds must be provided through authorization for the Government National Mortgage Assn. to purchase conventional mortgages and congressional approval of the Brooke-Cranston housing bill (S. 3979). Second, increase the availability of construction financing by the Federal Reserve Board using its discount "window" to increase the flow of construction lending and authorization of Federal National Mortgage to make construction loans for single-family units as it now does in its multifamily operation. Third, a tax exemption for the first $1,000 of interest earned on savings in thrift institutions is proposed by builders.

GERMAN CROSSWORD puzzles are more funny than puzzling to Kirsten, 9, and Heidi, 13, especially with the help of their German-born mother, Mrs. James Terrell of Elk Grove Village. Regular correspondence and an annual trip to Germany give the girls an awareness of the German portion of their heritage. Heidi can converse in German, Kirsten understands every word but "won't speak that stuff."

From Duesseldorf to suburbs

'The best thing about America...'

by ELEANOR RIVES

What happens when a young, effervescent, non-English-speaking German girl, accustomed to urban living in the middle of the bustling city of Duesseldorf, suddenly finds herself sitting in the middle of a sprawling Arizona suburb?

Exactly nothing. She's stuck. "I couldn't drive. I couldn't speak to anyone in English. It was too hot even to take the baby for a walk in her carriage," said Karin Terrell, who now, with her husband James and two daughters, 9 and 13, lives in the middle of a Chicago suburb — Elk Grove Village.

A blind date brought Karin and James together in 1959 when he was stationed in Germany with the U.S. Air Force. A year later, in Basel, Switzerland, they were married. Karin was 18.

"AT THAT TIME German law required a foreigner who married a German girl to give a percentage of his salary to the German government," Karin explained. "I thought, 'He isn't going to buy me, just marry me.' So we went to Switzerland to be married."

When the Terrells and their baby daughter arrived in America in 1962, Jim was fluent in German, but Karin's English was almost zilch. After a short time, a neighbor, a woman from Scotland who knew no German, sat down and helped her. In addition, Karin learned the language from TV, from children's books and comic strips.

Later she took a correctional reading course, raising her reading ability from first to eighth grade level. She went on to pass her high school equivalency exams for a general education diploma.

"I WOULD ADVISE any foreign-born woman coming to live in America to learn the language first," she said emphatically.

Though Jim's parents felt Karin's table manners were somewhat short of perfect — they were unaccustomed to the European practice of keeping the fork in the left hand — they welcomed their new German-speaking daughter-in-law with open arms.

"Of course. We brought them their first grandchild," smiled Karin, adding that Jim's mother went right out, bought a rocking chair and rocked the baby for two weeks straight.

In 1968, Jim was sent to Vietnam. Karin decided to take her two little girls and live in Germany for a year. She stayed exactly three weeks.

"HOUSING WAS impossible; there was nothing available. Landlords outlived anyone with children — and mine were 4 years old and 10 months. So I came back to America."

When, after 11 years of service, Jim left the Air Force, he went to work for United Air Lines as a flight officer. The Terrells began a string of moves that included Denver where his retraining took place, a few weeks in Chicago, a number of months in Streamwood, a short time in Elgin and finally, in 1969, their present home in Elk Grove Village.

"My family in Germany thought we were gypsies," said Karin.

IN ELK GROVE Village, District 59's Dan Cook School had just opened. Karin, whose one outside activity had been that of a Grey Lady in an Arizona Air Force Hospital and who had never so much as attended a PTC meeting in her life, found herself drafted as PTC president. Following her term of office, she became, and still is, library chairman, working at the school once a week.

Continuing her education, she took algebra and Spanish at Harper College last year, but dropped Spanish because of her lack of background in English grammar. She had always liked math — algebra was easy.

"The hardest part of any course is getting back into school and getting your brain in gear," she said.

A refresher course in typing at Elk Grove High School helped her make the transition from the German typewriter, which is one key off, "enough to throw you entirely." Three weeks ago she began her first job in this country — part-time receptionist in a foot clinic.

COMPARING LIFE in each country, Karin said, "Housing is much more expensive in Germany. The cost of food is absolutely outrageous. There are automatic washers and TVs, but very few people have dryers — there just isn't enough space. I know no one with a dishwasher, and most of the china is not dishwasher safe anyway."

She explained that the whole German economy is based on both husband and wife working. "I would estimate that 90 per cent of the wives work. Grandma or a day care center takes care of the babies."

What impressed Karin most about America, and still continues to astound her, is the unrestrained friendliness of its people, in contrast to the formality of Germans. When the Terrells first arrived in Arizona, she was dumbfounded, and a little wary, when a new neighbor offered to take care of the baby while they moved in.

"IN GERMANY you're not likely to speak to your neighbors until you're established for a year," she explained. "Then it's just a polite 'good morning' or 'good afternoon.' German women are so negative, so afraid of being rebuffed."

This past summer, the Terrells in six weeks put 7,000 miles on their car showing America to their German niece. Visiting the elder Terrells in Arizona, they were invited to use the neighbor's swimming pool and also to tour the house, though the visit had not been planned.

Karin's niece was equally astonished. "Why, she doesn't even know us!" she exclaimed. "That's the greatest thing that ever happened to me."

"And that is the best about America," added Karin.

Shoplifting a crime, its stigma damaging

by JULIE MARTOCCIO

Dear Atty. Martoccio:

My 10-year-old grandson came to visit me one day last week. Later on, he asked me if he could go to the store with three other boys. I said yes, and was I sorry afterward! A couple of hours later he came home crying his eyes out. When I finally got him to tell me what happened, he said the clerk in the store told the kids to get out and stay out or she'd have them arrested for shoplifting.

My grandson is a well behaved child who has never been in trouble. Naturally I am terribly upset. Does a clerk have a right to threaten a child? You are supposed to be concerned with children's rights; will you please say something about this in your column? Also what I can do legally about it? Thank you.

S.F.

Dear S. F.:

I am appalled at the behavior of some clerks toward children who out of natural curiosity enjoy looking around just as much, if not more, than adults. I am also shocked at grownups who disregard the rights of a child standing in a checkout counter and step ahead of him. (I have often found myself involved in some tense situations trying to correct them!) These and other disrespectful treatment of children's rights are in desperate need of correction if we are to expect our children to follow the examples we set for them. Children are to be seen, and heard, and their rights recognized. On the other hand, I have been equally distressed by some children's pushing, running and mishandling of merchandise in a store.

Unfortunately, it isn't always easy to distinguish between the prankster and the criminal, and since you did not explain what your grandson meant by "the kids were just fooling around," I feel that you are the only one who can make the distinction.

You also stated that if the children had stolen something, the clerk would surely have "questioned them further" or had them "arrested for shoplifting," and that their rights were violated.

It is true that under some circumstances a person may sue and recover damages for false arrest if wrongfully detained and questioned for shoplifting. The law, however, is constantly changing to try to keep up with present day conditions. Today, with shoplifting increasing, the laws regarding them are easing. It is estimated that shoplifting nationally amounts to losses of $8 million a day! Illinois alone reports an annual loss of $800 million a year!

Although I believe your grandson was innocent of any wrongdoing, I think it would be wise to explain to him what the law is and how he can avoid appearing to be committing an illegal act, which is sometimes an offense in itself.

Contrary to public opinion, you may be stopped inside the store, if the employee has cause to believe that you did or you are about to steal.

It is not true that only a policeman may stop and ask you questions. It is true that only a police officer has the right to arrest you. Questioning is not arresting, and an employee may, if he or she believes you are guilty of shoplifting or about to commit the act, ask you questions pertaining to the incident.

It is not "false arrest" if the employee, owner or someone else in authority detains you for a "reasonable amount of time" to determine who owns the property in question. Of course, the questioner has certain responsibilities, too, and must conduct himself in a manner free of harassment, violence and certain forms of restraint (such as keeping a person locked up in a room, etc.).

The penalties for shoplifting include fines up to $500, a possible sentence to a juvenile home, detention in the county jail, court probation.

Possibly more serious than any of these is the stigma that causes jobs and professions to be closed to a person who has a record of a conviction of shoplifting. A promising future may be destroyed when he or she is unable to obtain a desired position such as doctor, lawyer, private investigator, bondsman to name but a few.

If the person wishes to enlist in the Army, he or she may find no choice of service, and if drafted may not receive a security clearance.

This is by no means a scare campaign but the proverbial ounce of prevention. I think that not only should a child be aware of the law of shoplifting and its consequences, but that parents should insist upon knowing all the circumstances where shoplifting is suspected.

May I suggest in your calmer moments that you get in touch with the clerk, preferably in person, and ask for her version of the story. If you feel then that she was acting without cause, I would reach her superior and inform him of her behavior. In this way, you may prevent occurrence of a similar incident in the future.

Marriage counselor poses the case against divorce

"Divorce is not the healthiest thing a couple can do. It may end up stunting everybody's growth."

This strong comment against dissolution of marriage in a country where divorce is increasing steadily comes from Dr. Sonya Friedman, psychologist and marriage counselor.

But if a couple is determined to end the marriage, she would like to see it "phased out." This delay would give the children time to grow up and would give the wife, who most likely has no experience at making a living, a chance to develop a means of support, for she can't always depend on a husband for alimony and child support.

Mrs. Friedman said that although some 34 million women are in the labor force, this still is a nation where the man usually is the major breadwinner.

Self-sufficiency thus is fundamental for the woman, said the counselor, who lives with her physician husband, Stephen, and their two teen-age children in Troy, Mich. The cooling off period would let a woman go back to school or go into some other job training.

BUT WHEN YOU GET down to the nitty gritty, the children would benefit most with the delay in divorce, she said. They are the ones most devastated in a break-up.

"You can correlate the rise in crime, so broken homes," said the counselor, citing the statistic that one of every three marriages will end in divorce.

"In this, our youth-oriented society, we're committing a total, unmitigated fraud against our children," she said. "Parents are saying, 'We are more important than you.'"

"Marriage is a series of commitments. One of these is to children." And a divorce which gives custody of one child to the mother, another to the father also is destructive — "You've immediate dissension and competition."

Dr. Friedman is opposed to "creative" divorce because two people think they can go on to other things. "They succeed so rarely." But when there is physical or mental abuse of mate or the children, then the cutoff should be quick.

THE COUNSELOR has coauthored a book on divorce with Henry Baskin, an attorney in Southfield, Mich., specializing in family law and divorce, and the father of two.

DR. SONYA FRIEDMAN, a psychologist and marriage counselor, believes a marriage should be phased out rather than ended abruptly so children may grow up and the wife develop a means of support.

Their book, "I've Had It, You've Had It" (Nash Publishing, Los Angeles) presents two authoritative views on case histories of marriage problems.

Dr. Friedman, a handsome blonde, is a certified consulting psychologist and counselor with a full-time practice at the Psychological Resources Center in Birmingham, Mich.

She said couples increasingly head to Splitville because the traditions of "love, honor and obey" are disappearing. "It's now the individual searching for happiness, for total freedom," she said. "It's like eating your cake without the calories."

Mrs. Friedman called for more realism mixed in with romance as a way of assuring lasting marriages. "With the marriage contract, why not a divorce contract?" she asked.

"It could be reviewed each year. And why not divorce insurance? If the marriage lasted, there'd be a nice next egg, like an endowment to the couple."

"And I believe firmly that any move toward divorce should be a mandate for counseling."

Metallics brighten home sewing

by JOANNE SCHREIBER

If your sewing seems dull, make it sparkle with new metallic thread.

Metallic thread for handsewing has been around for a long time. Now Talen offers gold and silver thread packaged on a standard-sized spool so it may be used on the sewing machine.

This means that you can work all those fancy embroidery stitches in gleaming gold or silver, do top-stitching that shines and even do shiny machine-quilting and outline-stitching in these exciting new threads.

The stitching is done with the metallic thread on the top spool and matching gold or gray polyester/cotton thread on the bobbin.

Prepare for stitching by tracing design lightly on the right side of your fabric. Back fabric with interfacing to give extra body and teststitch on a sample scrap of material.

For example a Chinese dragon is done entirely in gold thread, using only the simple zigzag stitch. He will look magnificent on the back of your new Chinese evening pajamas.

A LEAF DESIGN, perhaps for a pillow, is done in both gold and silver, using only ordinary straight stitching. Do all the gold leaves, then change threads and do all the silver ones. Remember to pull thread ends through to the underside and tie.

The dragon will require three spools of metallic thread (75 yards for 60 cents) and one spool of bobbin thread. The leaf embroidery will require one spool each of gold and silver and one spool of each color bobbin thread.

The metallic thread will keep its sparkle through laundering and dry cleaning.

If you're starting now to think about your Christmas gift-stitching, plan to do some of the decorative work with the metallic threads. There's nothing like a little glitter to make a gift look festive.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

METALLIC THREAD now comes in sewing machine spools. This pillow is done with straight-stitching using gold and silver for leaves.

Birth notes

Daddy delivers daughter himself

Together was complete, but accidental, during the birth of the second daughter for Mr. and Mrs. William Simon Jr. of Lake Zurich. When Susan Marie arrived at a sudden at home Sept. 20, her daddy moved into action and delivered his infant daughter himself.

His only experience in the situation had been to witness the birth of his first daughter, Amy, 21 months ago in Lutheran General Hospital. But he remembered it well.

During the swift arrival of Susan Marie, Mr. Simon's mother, Mrs. William Simon of Arlington Heights, happened to be present and was able to call the local paramedics for assistance in taking the new mother and child to Northwest Community Hospital.

It was quite an experience for grandma, too, who with Mr. Simon are the proud grandparents of the 7 pound 1 ounce. She also has great-grandparents nearby, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Simon of Arlington Heights.

NORTHWEST COMMUNITY

James Leonard Tripoli, second child in the Kenneth V. Tripoli home at 979 Bernard Dr., Buffalo Grove, was born Sept. 23. His weight was listed at 6 pounds 10 1/2 ounces. James and his 3-year-old sister, Jennifer, are grandchildren of the A. Tripolis of Elk Grove Village and the G. Lairs, Las Vegas, Nev.

Stacey Marie Blum's birth Sept. 23 made parents of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph John Blum, 515 Redwood Ln., Schaumburg. Weighing 7 pounds 7 ounces, the newcomer is the grandson of the John Blums and the George Olsons, all of Chicago.

Tyler John Laureys arrived Sept. 23, adding another son to the Lynn E. Laureys family, 623 N. Chestnut, Arlington Heights. The baby, who weighed 9 pounds 6 ounces, is a brother for Brett Edward, 17 months old. Their grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Davis of Arlington Heights and Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Laureys, Palatine.

Bernardo Arredondo is the third child for Mr. and Mrs. Sergio Arredondo, 830 Dundee Rd., Palatine. Born Sept. 24 at 8 pounds 5 ounces, he is a new brother for Sergio, 17 months old, and Isabel, 3.

ALEXIAN BROTHERS

Brian Jonathon Hedke was born Sept. 17 to Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hedke, 2903 Hawk Ln., Rolling Meadows. The baby weighed an even 7 pounds and is a brother for Scott Allen, 7, and Todd Robert, 4. His grandparents are the Walter Wrigleys, Palatine, and the Alvin Hedkes, Mount Prospect. Brian also has two great-grandmothers in the area, Mrs. Lydia Kersten of Palatine and Mrs. Meta Kieper of Mount Prospect.

Jennifer Elizabeth Bailey's birth made parents of the Ronald Baileys, 245 Heritage Dr., Hoffman Estates, on Sept. 20. The newcomer weighed 8 pounds 13 ounces. Her grandparents are the Harold Wasingers of Bartlett and the Norman Baileys of Streamwood. Two of her great-grandparents live in the area, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Glade of Des Plaines.

Sarah Kathleen Jordan is the newcomer at 501 S. Windsor Dr., Arlington Heights. The first child of the Dennis A. Jordans, she was born Sept. 22 at 7 pounds 3 ounces. Sarah's grandparents are the Donald Jordans, Chicago, and the Raymond Meschers, Dubuque, Iowa.

OTHER HOSPITALS

Andrew Robert Fiddes made parents of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Fiddes, 2823 Bel Aire Dr., Arlington Heights, on Sept. 6. The 7 pound 1 ounce arrived in Northwestern Memorial Wesley Pavilion, Chicago. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs.

J. K. Fiddes of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and the W. J. Maloney of Inverness.

Jamie Lee Mathson's birth was Sept. 19 in Lake Forest Hospital. She is the first child of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Mathson, 843 Slayton Dr., Palatine. Jamie's grandparents are the Leo Adams of Niles and the Walter Mathsons of Northbrook.

Nicole Joann Trent is the name given to the first-born for Mr. and Mrs. Neal Henderson Trent III of 519 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling. She arrived Sept. 20 in Lake Forest Hospital. Grandparents are the Joseph Peyronnins of Waukegan and Mr. and Mrs. Neal Trent Jr. of Lake Bluff.

Tracy Joanne Smith adds a daughter to the James Joseph Smith family of 805 Deborah Ln., Mount Prospect. The Sept. 20 baby has two brothers, Greg, 6, and Jeff, 4. Grandparents of the 6 pound 1 ounce are the Joseph Volinos and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ulanowicz, all of Chicago. Tracy's birthplace was Skokie Valley Community Hospital.

Sweet potato pie? Superb!

I never took to sweet potato pie. For one thing, it always tasted very much like pumpkin, which struck me as not enough reason to waste calories. But when Katherine Peden brought over a lovely looking sweet potato pie, it obviously had to be sampled. I was flummoxed. It was superb! With the pie, Katie also provided the recipe. Here it is:

Beat two eggs slightly; add one cup sugar, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon ground nutmeg, one teaspoon ground cinnamon and one cup of milk. Add two tablespoons butter or margarine to one and one-half cups cooked mashed sweet potatoes and blend with the milk-and-egg mixture. Pour into an unbaked pie shell and bake at 450 degrees Fahrenheit for 10 minutes. Then reduce the heat to 350 degrees and bake 30 to 40 minutes or until the filling is firm.

flowers. Yet in all the years I've had this plant, there has never been a trace of a flower. In every book in which the sanseveria is mentioned, it is not in the flowering plants section. But I did see it!

Dear Dorothy: Let's help our hospitals. When addressing a card or letter to someone in the hospital, use the patient's home address as the return address. If your friend has been discharged, he or she will still receive your message. — Mary Anne Jewell

Colonial druggist was a moonlighter

Referring to the soup-to-nuts character of many modern drug stores, George Scharringhausen, Park Ridge pharmacist, claims that drug stores really "haven't changed much" from the colonial days when the pharmacist was also surgeon, village doctor and even grocer.

Some colonial pharmacists also moonlighted as farmers or in other businesses, and even Ben Franklin, at one time in his varied career, took up pharmacology and opened a general store with Seneca rattlesnake root, used in the treatment of pleurisy, among his stock.

Speaking on "Colonial Medicine" to Twenty-first Star Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution recently, Scharringhausen, a member of the American Institute of the History of Pharmacy, pointed out to his audience that some drugs used in colonial times are now being re-examined and found useful to modern medicine.

AMONG COMMON medicines during the colonial period were cream of tar-tare, gum camphor, gum opium, paregoric, epsom salts, ipecac, a type of rhu-barb and a mercury derivative called red precipitate. The colonial pharmacist grew many of his own medicinal plants as did the colonists while other drugs were imported from England and Spain. The colonists also tried importing medicinal plants and seeds from Spain and when they had no luck in growing them suspected Spain of sending faulty seeds and plants in order to keep a corner on the market.

Current drugs such as opium, codeine and paregoric date back as far as 4,000 BC, Scharringhausen reported. Smallpox vaccine was first used in the 1720s but was banned in some colonies even while Gen. George Washington was ordering its use in all army units. "It's more destructive to an Army in the natural way than swords," said Washington of diseases.

STATISTICS SHOW that of the 74,000 troops which comprised the Continental Army in the American Revolution, 1,000 were killed in action, 10,000 died from smallpox, malaria, dysentery, typhus fever and malaria, then called intermittent fever. Scharringhausen added that 1,200 were wounded in action, 6,000 taken prisoner. Average lifespan of colonists was 35½ years, according to Massachusetts and New Hampshire records, said Scharringhausen, who pointed out that high infant mortality in the colonial years was one of the main factors.

SCHARRINGHAUSEN, WHO owns several mortars and pestles in wood and metal, explained that metal mortars were standard for colonial apothecaries, but wooden mortars were used for mixing drugs which could produce an undesirable chemical reaction when used with metal.

Speaking in the Park Ridge home of Mrs. O. K. Wilson, Scharringhausen displayed an antique medicine chest of the type carried on ships, plantations and in military units in colonial times. He also displayed an antique balance scale which he plans to donate to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. Another major pharmacological museum is located in New Orleans.

For a Happy Life

It's fun in October to:

1. Buy a used typewriter and encourage everyone in the family to learn how to use it.
2. Have an old-fashioned wiener roast, finish with toasted marshmallows. Serve apple cider, too.
3. Surprise your husband with a paperback book you feel sure he'll enjoy.
4. Decide if you are a more interesting person now than you were five years ago.
5. Display some antique glass, old silver or turn-of-the-century photographs.
6. Spend five minutes flat on the floor slowly stretching your entire body.
7. Stock up on light bulbs — enough for all winter.

A Paddock review

New pub has elements for success

by PAT ADAM
The dinner theater format is one that's enjoyed a measure of success in this area. To win adherents, however, the host theater must offer better than average dinner fare, a play that captures and holds audience attention and a setting conducive to full enjoyment of the first two.

Pub Playhouse should succeed in its new setting at the Brandywine Restaurant of the Elk Grove Holiday Inn on Burrise Road. Pub made its debut last season at the Holiday Inn on Rand Road in Mount Prospect where it had to compete with music emanating from elsewhere. This distraction has been eliminated in its new home — which really isn't the Brandywine proper but a banquet room with raised stage in its center.

The menu offered includes a delectable slab of prime beef accompanied by baked potato, tossed salad, mixed vegetables and rolls with champagne toast to launch the meal. The fare could be more exciting, but it's tasty, though I might suggest an afterdinner sweet, not necessarily dessert but a mint perhaps?

ON STAGE FOR the evening is an almost certain winner, "The Last of the Red Hot Lovers," one of Neil Simon's hits that has not yet worn out its welcome in this area due to over-exposure. It's an excellent choice because Simon play practically guarantees success. He has the knack for depicting all sorts of human relationships with sympathetic humor.

The combination of Simon and tender roast beef results in a very pleasant evening, and there's an adjacent bar for those who want a drink or two . . . or more, while a banquet room doesn't exactly make for cozy, intimate atmosphere, once the lights dim, you're absorbed in the stage action and atmosphere matters little.

Producer Al Richman has assembled a first rate cast for "The Last of the Red Hot Lovers."

TED WEISS, who plays Barney Cashman, is well known to area audiences, having performed in numerous community productions before he joined Pub Playhouse last season. Barney is a nice guy . . . gentle, intelligent, warm, decent, yes certainly decent. Married 23 years and faithful all 23 of them to his high school sweetheart, Thelma . . . devoted son who entered the family restaurant after World War II, giving up dreams of being a writer. Now he settles for poetic descriptions of the menu entrees.

But Barney is also 47 years old and thinking about death . . . and his life so far . . . and nice is not enough. He aches for more. To get it he decides to have an affair. Barney's pursuit of this goal forms the story line for "Lovers." Weiss makes Barney both believable and endearing.

Barney pursues an affair, with varied results, with three different women. To keep it on a high plane and not just a "cheap motel affair," he selects his mothers' apartment as the rendezvous.

JOAN SPATAFORA plays Elaine Navazio, a married woman who's Barney's first choice — or is it the other way around? Miss Spatafora plays the sensuous Elaine with just the right touch of flip hardness. She clearly conveys that savoring life's more earthy pleasures is all that interests Elaine . . . the way she speaks, the way she moves, the way she dresses. Everything's quite calculated.

Elena Duane as the freaked out Bobbi Michele is quite another female. Barney picks her up in the park. Young and attractive, Bobbi seems oblivious that she attracts oddballs the way a light attracts moths, and she babbles like a fountain. Miss Duane brings both physical attractiveness and a convincing air of innocent self-centeredness to the talkative Bobbi. A pot smoker — for its "therapeutic value" — Bobbi literally turns Barney on. Sheila Keenan moves from director role to actress in her portrayal of the melancholic Jeanette Fisher, close friend of Barney's wife with whom he makes a final try at a fling. Miss Keenan exudes gloom and despair as she moves about the apartment, clutching her handbag the way a child clutches a beloved toy. Barney's encounter with Jeanette is a disaster so far as their having an affair is concerned, but both learn something.

LIKE BARNEY, Neil Simon is nice . . . gentle, intelligent, warm, even decent . . . in his treatment of these characters, but the results are nonetheless very, very funny.

"Lovers" plays Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights through Nov. 17 with a $9 tab for dinner and play. An 11 p.m. cocktail performance Saturdays is $4. The Brandywine is at Burrise and Landmeier.

How to remove gum

Children's clothing can gum up your electric clothes dryer if a wad of the chewy stuff is left in a pocket. To remove gum baked on the drum, rub with a little petroleum jelly, then run the dryer at the hot setting for several minutes. The residue can be wiped away with a soft cloth or a paper towel.

Insect repellents lose effectiveness

Wind, temperature, humidity and skin moisture drastically alter effectiveness of insect repellents, according to a University of California, School of Medicine research team.

Other factors such as individual differences in evaporation and absorption also contribute. With the exception of one, all of the repellents tested showed decreased protection time when sweating was induced by exercise.

More frequent and more generous application of available preparations by patients to whom protection from insect bites is important are two of the suggestions offered by the physicians.

How to avoid future shock.

Tomorrow won't take care of itself. And, deep down, you know that. So you'd better do something about your future money needs today.

There's a painless way. Simply start building your nest egg a little at a time. It's easy when you buy U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

You can save as little or as much as you want. Just specify the amount. And it'll be set aside from your paycheck and used to buy Bonds.

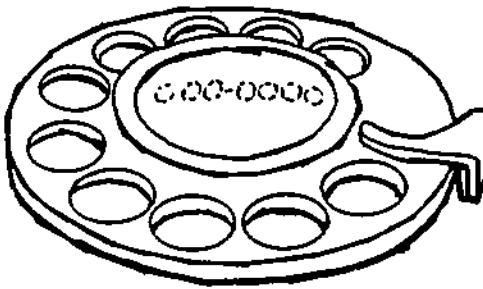

Then, when the future arrives, you'll be better fixed to face it. Because Bonds are the best shock absorber around.

Now, U.S. Bonds pay 8 1/2% interest and are held in your name. They are insured by the Federal Reserve Bank. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is paid and subject to state or local income taxes and federal income tax be deducted until redemption.

This winter's flu bug different—and more deadly

Elderly, ill may be especially susceptible to Port Chalmers strain, but there is a vaccine for it

It's coming out of New Zealand this winter, supposedly packing a bigger punch than usual and more potential for felling large numbers of people, especially the elderly and the chronically ill.

The annual flu season is approaching and reports that a deadlier strain of influenza is heading this way is being downplayed by the Cook County Dept. of Public Health.

Dr. Colette Rasmussen, chief of the division of preventive medicine, said that it is too early to tell exactly what kind of flu will hit the Chicago area or how widespread it will be.

Explaining that it is more important to determine the potency of a flu bug rather than what kind it is, Dr. Rasmussen predicted that if an epidemic hits the Midwest this year it likely would be caused by a Type A, or deadlier form of bug, as opposed to the Type B more common to this area.

The Type A expected is something called Port Chalmers Flu, initially located in New Zealand last year. It is similar to the London Flu that swept the United States in late 1972 and early 1973, causing more than 1,000 deaths a week at its peak.

THE NATIONAL CENTER for Disease Control reports a "significant" outbreak of Port Chalmers Flu is expected in most parts of the nation for the flu season, which normally runs from November to February.

Dr. Rasmussen recommends persons more than 65 years old and the chronically ill should get flu shots as soon as possible because it takes a while for the vaccine to take effect. She added she doesn't know how badly the flu will affect persons in the Midwest since it partly depends on when the last outbreak of this type of flu occurred. The mid-Atlantic and Northeast areas of the country are not expected to be hit hard because they had outbreaks of Type A flu last winter.

Flu bugs are transmitted from person to person, Dr. Rasmussen said, and usually brought to this country by travelers. O'Hare Airport is a logical place where flu bug carriers pass through but no special precautions are taken to check the disease.

Meanwhile, area doctors have enough vaccine available to handle any major flu problems. The cost of a flu shot by a physician is about $5 to $7, they say.

Dundee Road open to 4-lane traffic by Nov. 1?

by JOE FRANZ

State officials Tuesday said work on Dundee Road is ahead of schedule and predicted four lanes will be open to traffic by Nov. 1.

Howard Westphal, project engineer for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, said, however, that progress will depend on the weather and availability of construction materials.

State officials earlier predicted the road would be finished by late November, but Westphal said good weather has permitted workers to move ahead of schedule.

The $3 million project consists of widening Dundee to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53, through Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

WORKERS BEGAN PAVING at Elmhurst Road and as of late Tuesday had completed four lanes to Arlington Heights Road.

In addition to the paving, Westphal said workers are pouring curbs and gutters, working on the realignments of Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove roads and installing traffic signals at several locations.

Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove roads are being realigned where they intersect Dundee Road. The realignments are expected to alleviate traffic congestion and make for safer travel on the road.

Westphal predicted Arlington Heights Road will be hooked up to Dundee Road about Nov. 1, while Buffalo Grove Road will be connected between Nov. 15 and Dec. 1.

BEHINDS REALIGNING the roads, the state will put in new traffic signals at both intersections.

Westphal said he expects work crews to complete installation of a traffic signal at Schoenbeck and Dundee roads between Nov. 15 and Dec. 1.

Wheeling officials have been pressing for a traffic signal at that intersection for several years and recently criticized the state because the work had not been done.

The state earlier approved plans for

Gas station busy—but only as a 'highway'

The owner of Bob's Union 76 station at Arlington Heights and Dundee roads Tuesday said construction on Dundee Road is ruining his business.

"My business is almost completely gone because of the inconvenience caused by the road," said station owner Bob Stoberl. "People don't want to come into the station because of the condition of the road."

Getting motorists into the station Tuesday was not a problem, however, but getting them to stop for gas was another matter. Stoberl said with the temporary closing of the south leg of Arlington Heights Road, adjacent to his station, cars were using his station as a thoroughfare.

"If I had put a gate on the entrance to my station and charged everyone that went through, I'd be a millionaire," Stoberl said. "Cars were cutting through the station all day."

State officials Tuesday denied that Arlington Heights Road had been closed, but Stoberl said it has been opened and closed several times in the last week.

Late Tuesday, he said the road had again been reopened, and his station was again free of traffic and customers.

the signal, but said it could not be installed until construction on Dundee Road was completed.

Westphal said some work already has been done on the median strip, but that it

tion at Dundee and Arlington Heights roads, while the latter road is blocked for construction. State officials said Tuesday that they were unaware of the problem and would try to find out why Arlington Heights Road has been closed.

On fire district transfer

Village meets on planned referendum

The first in a series of public meetings to explain a proposed referendum on fire service in the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Kilmer School, 655 Golfview Terr.

The sessions are to explain the purpose of the referendum, tentatively set for Oct. 26, and to allow residents to ask questions on the transfer of fire districts, according to Edward Osmon a Buffalo Grove village trustee.

If the referendum passes, the Lake County sector of Buffalo Grove will be switched to the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District, which currently serves the Cook County end of the village. Buffalo Grove residents north of Checker Road are served by the Long Grove Fire Protection District.

Tony Berg, a trustee for the district, said a representative of the Long Grove department also will attend the meetings.

THURSDAY'S SESSION and another slated for Oct. 17 at Cooper Junior High School, 1050 Plum Grove Rd., are Cook County locations while the other two, Oct. 10 and 24 will be in Lake County, with locations to be announced.

Residents from both areas of town are invited to attend any session.

"They're all the same explanation of the why and wherefore of the referendum," said Osmon, chairman of a special village committee appointed last year to study the referendum.

"We'll expose as much information as we have available to the people," he said.

Osmon said he expects a larger turnout at the Lake County meetings because the 4,000 to 5,000 residents there are the ones who will vote on the issue.

PROMOTERS OF THE referendum, most notably several members of the village board, say the referendum is a vital first step toward the formation of a municipal fire department.

Long Grove officials oppose the transfer of districts, saying their department can provide adequate service to the area and their station is closer, making response times quicker than Buffalo Grove's.

Petitions to hold a referendum have been circulating in the Lake County area for the last several weeks and Village Atty. Richard Raysa said he has filed a request for a hearing in Cook County Circuit Court for permission to conduct the referendum.

Village hall to close counter at 4:30 p.m.

The counter at the Buffalo Grove Village Hall will close at 4:30 p.m., rather than the previous 5 p.m. closing time, said Village Clerk Verna Clayton.

Mrs. Clayton said the change was made to allow village employees time to balance cash register receipts at the end of each day.

The counter is open from 8:30 a.m. Monday through Friday in the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

by JOE SWICKARD

"I am so happy. There were millions of responses. I don't have time for my children or my housework, but I don't care because so many people have been just so good," said Maria McGowan.

Mrs. McGowan, 1014 Crab Tree Dr., Arlington Heights, has been overwhelmed with gifts and offers of aid for victims of hurricane Fifi that blasted through her native Honduras two weeks ago since the story of her relief efforts appeared in The Herald Friday.

With most communications cut off to her homeland, Mrs. McGowan had been unable to learn the fate of her family, which lives in San Pedro Sula, hard hit by the storm and floods that followed. Rather than spend her days stymied with worry, she began collecting food and clothing for the thousands of Hondurans left destitute.

Maria McGowan

IN THE MIDST OF the offers for Honduras came a personal one for Mrs. McGowan from Frank Atchison of Wheeling. "I called Mrs. McGowan and asked her if she had been in contact with any harm radio operators to try to get in touch with her family," said Atchison, an amateur radio operator for five years.

"Mr. Atchison in Wheeling got through to Honduras and my family is all right. I can't believe it," Mrs. McGowan said, her voice cracking.

Atchison said he reached a woman operator in Honduras through an international amateur-radio network based in Miami. The woman, it turned out, worked with one of Mrs. McGowan's brothers and the word was they were alive.

Atchison's efforts for Mrs. McGowan are not finished yet, he said.

"Wednesday I have the relay scheduled with the operator so I can contact her mother directly," he said, adding that until Monday no personal messages were allowed through because of the emergency food and medical priorities.

MRS. MCGOWAN'S message did not stop there. The officers and wives at Glenview Naval Air Station heard the plea for help.

"We had an abundance of clothes at the thrift shop run by the officers' wives and we didn't know what to do with them. I saw the story of Mrs. McGowan in the paper and said why don't we donate them to Honduras," said Mrs. Stephanie Dunlavy of Buffalo Grove.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Dunlavy and Dottie Berk of Mount Prospect, the thrift shop's donation swelled to fill 15 boxes with clothing.

"We started out with primarily women's clothes but when we were finished we had clothes for just about everyone," said Mrs. Dunlavy.

THE BASE'S involvement does not end there, though. This morning at 10 a.m.

the Marine Air Reserve stationed there will fly out 30,000 to 35,000 pounds of food and clothes to New Orleans, where it will be forwarded to Honduras.

Maj. Greg Lee of Palatine, the operations officer, said the flight is being made with the cooperation of the Honduran Consulate and will double as a training mission. Another flight is tentatively planned for next week if details with Marine Command in Washington and the State Dept. are worked out.

"I can't believe this," Mrs. McGowan said. "We've had to move everything to the garage so we could walk in the house. All the churches have gotten behind us and all the people. One lady gave $200 worth of food. All these people wanting to help. I just can't believe it."

"I want to thank you so much. You have saved my life."

In Elk Grove Village

Woman could cost Kiwanis Club charter

by LUISA GINETTI

The Elk Grove Kiwanis Club may be in danger of losing its charter for violating a Kiwanis International rule banning woman members.

The international voted Sunday to lift the charter of the Cheyenne Mountains Kiwanis Club, Colorado Springs, Colo., because it failed to comply with a directive to revoke the membership of five women.

Although it has received no directive from the international, the Elk Grove Kiwanis technically is also in violation of the rules because one of its members is a woman.

MARY CLARK, librarian at the Elk Grove Village Public Library, was inducted into the local Kiwanis in February. Miss Clark said no attempt was made to conceal that she is a woman when her membership application was processed by the international.

"I received a formal invitation to join Kiwanis as part of some bulk mail," Miss Clark said Tuesday. She said she is a member of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce and surmised her invitation to join Kiwanis came from being on the association's mailing list.

"I would like to stay on as a member but if the local asked me to leave I would honor their request," Miss Clark said. "I would much prefer to stay and I would be willing to work with the local to try and work out an alternative if that's what they want."

A Kiwanis official who was an officer at the time Miss Clark was inducted said the local club was aware that the international rules barred women.

"We brought her in with our eyes wide open," said the former officer, who did not wish to be identified.

THE FORMER officer said he personally would support Miss Clark if an attempt were made to oust her. "I'll stick with Mary all the way and I would support her even if it meant my membership."

Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis, said Tuesday, "There is no doubt that Mary is a member in good standing." He said he has received no word from the international about the situation but he said the international technically was apprised of the situation when it approved Miss Clark's application.

Harrell said the matter will be brought up at Kiwanis meetings. The club meets each Friday at noon at the Salt Creek Country Club in Itasca.

A SPOKESMAN for the Kiwanis International said Tuesday no other cases of women membership in local clubs have come to the attention of the international.

The spokesman added that the situation with the Colorado Springs local arose this summer at the international's convention in Denver. An amendment to the charter seeking to permit women members was proposed but was defeated, he said, prompting the Colorado Springs local to declare its intention to defy the rule and continue to allow women members to remain in the club.

The international reacted by ordering the Colorado Springs' Kiwanis charter be revoked, effective this week.

The spokesman added that the international would probably take similar action against any other local that defies the rule banning woman members. "We have no choice but to take this action unless and until the bylaw is changed," he said.

20 enumerators needed for census starting today

Census taking in the village begins tomorrow and positions are still available for 20 applicants to assist in the special door-to-door headcount of Buffalo Grove residents.

Village Clerk Verna Clayton said representatives from the U.S. Census Bureau will be in the village today to train and test the 40 applicants already slated to be census takers. There are openings for as many as 20 more.

She said residents contacting the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd., early today can still be trained in time to begin work Thursday.

Census takers must be at least 18 years old and U.S. citizens. They will be paid 17 cents for every name counted.

DUE TO CHANGES in the procedure used to train census takers since the last village headcount two years ago, Mrs. Clayton was uncertain which neighborhoods would be counted first.

She mentioned however, all census takers will wear special identification badges.

Village officials anticipate the census will show the town has grown to more than 10,100 residents. Currently, 15,653 persons live in Buffalo Grove.

If population projections are accurate, the village could receive as much as $72,000 in motor fuel tax funds as well as additional shares from state income taxes based on population figures.

In 1972, the village population was broken down to show the number of persons living in the Cook County and Lake County sections. The population also was divided into several age categories.

OFFICIALS SAY MAJOR increases should come from the Crossings, Village Verde, Cambridge, Strathmore, Oak Creek, and Mill Creek, developments which have been built or completed since the last census.

The figures will be released after they have been totaled, which should be in about two weeks, Mrs. Clayton said.

She also said residents with questions about the census can address them to a census representative through a special information line, 537-0233.

Residents who have not been contacted by a census taker by the middle of the month should inform village officials, Mrs. Clayton said.

ILLINOIS HIGHWAY OFFICIALS said Tuesday should be completed between Nov. 15 and Dec. 1. entire Dundee Road project is ahead of schedule, that this extension of Arlington Heights Road Officials said that with recent good weather the and most work will be finished Nov. 1.

Rolling Meadows mayor 'demonstrating' city gear

by NANCY COWGER

A corporation owned by Mayor Roland J. Meyer of Rolling Meadows is using city equipment in sales demonstrations for its customers, a Herald investigation has disclosed.

The company, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., was started last December by Meyer and two associates, Harry Triunfo of Pompano Beach, Fla., and Eugene E. Campion, 4502 Sycamore Ln., Rolling Meadows.

Since then, the firm's customers have been shown city equipment at the city garage, 3200 Central Rd., and have examined trash-compacting mechanisms in garbage trucks and in the city compactor station during special tours.

The equipment, purchased before Meyer's company was formed, is "identical" to equipment now distributed by the firm.

Meyer refused to discuss sales volume or previous customers, saying, "It's none of your business," but adding, "I didn't go into business to lose money." A spokesman for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., whose equipment Meyer sells,

Roland J. Meyer

described Meyer's firm as a "successful operation," but referred specific questions on finances to Meyer.

POTENTIAL CUSTOMERS representing the municipality of Griffith, Ind., plan to visit Rolling Meadows this week or next. Glen Beyome, public works director for the Indiana community, said he hopes to examine everything from the compacting mechanism on city trucks to Rolling Meadows' records of manpower and operation costs.

The tour will be conducted by James McFeggan, former Rolling Meadows public works director, who quit that job two years ago. McFeggan now works as a salesman for Midwest Environmental Systems.

The city bought its three trucks in 1969 from St. Regis Paper Co. at $19,000 per vehicle, adding a compactor station in 1971 at a $103,000 cost. The total refuse system was originally proposed by McFeggan. Rolling Meadows' trucks used Mercedes Benz chassis, but Orbital's have American-made chassis. Both have German-made bodies.

WHEN THE CITY bought its trucks, the garbage system had been in use in Germany for 18 years, but it was new in the U.S. McFeggan recently said Rolling Meadows had "the first complete system of this type in the Western Hemisphere."

Midwest Environmental Systems Inc. has never purchased anything from or sold anything to the City of Rolling Meadows, said Meyer. If he brings prospective customers to city buildings to study the city's equipment, so do other salesmen, and he and McFeggan are treated no differently than any other sales representative, said Meyer. He said he has asked for no favors and received none.

Meyer's other business venture, R. J. Meyer & Co., a scrap paper brokerage firm, has not held any city sales or purchase contracts, he said. Meyer also is a self-employed private investigator.

Meyer said his business activities do not violate state conflict of interest or ethics laws. City Atty. Donald M. Rose, whom Meyer consulted before establishing the business, said there is no apparent violation of the law. A spokesman for the State's Attorney's Office agreed.

MEYER LAUGHED at any question of a conflict of interest, citing advice of Rose as his assurance no conflict exists, and saying he is not gaining financially because of his public office.

"To my knowledge, the activities of the mayor in that corporation do not constitute a conflict of interest," said Rose. Such a conflict arises when a governmental official buys or sells property, merchandise, equipment or services to the agency in which he holds office, and when the official has voting power over that agency's contract to buy or sell, said Rose.

The law states, "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws or constitution of this state, may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly, in his own name or in the name of any other person, association, trust or corporation, in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or vote."

Teens' garage sale to fight cancer

A garage sale to benefit the American Cancer Foundation will be held by a group of teen-agers at 216 Downing Rd., Buffalo Grove, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Judy LaPina, 14, and her brother Tony, 13, decided to raise money for the American Cancer Society after watching the Jerry Lewis Telethon for muscular dystrophy. Their uncle died recently from cancer, Judy said, and they wanted to do something in his memory.

She said First Lady Betty Ford's bout with breast cancer brought more of her friends into the garage sale's work.

The group of six young people started working toward the sale last week and have gathered a variety of items for sale. Local stores donated such items as garden goods, stationery and shower caps.

This winter's flu bug different—and more deadly

Elderly, ill may be especially susceptible to Port Chalmers strain, but there is a vaccine for it

It's coming out of New Zealand this winter, supposedly packing a bigger punch than usual and more potential for felling large numbers of people, especially the elderly and the chronically ill.

The annual flu season is approaching and reports that a deadlier strain of influenza is heading this way is being downplayed by the Cook County Dept. of Public Health.

Dr. Colette Rasmussen, chief of the division of preventive medicine, said that it is too early to tell exactly what kind of flu will hit the Chicago area or how widespread it will be.

Explaining that it is more important to determine the potency of a flu bug rather than what kind it is, Dr. Rasmussen predicted that if an epidemic hits the Midwest this year it likely would be caused by a Type A, or deadlier form of bug, as opposed to the Type B more common to this area.

The Type A expected is something called Port Chalmers Flu, initially located in New Zealand last year. It is similar to the London Flu that swept the United States in late 1972 and early 1973, causing more than 1,000 deaths a week at its peak.

THE NATIONAL CENTER for Disease Control reports a "significant" outbreak of Port Chalmers Flu is expected in most parts of the nation for the flu season, which normally runs from November to February.

Dr. Rasmussen recommends persons more than 65 years old and the chronically ill should get flu shots as soon as possible because it takes a while for the vaccine to take effect. She added she doesn't know how badly the flu will affect persons in the Midwest since it partly depends on when the last outbreak of this type of flu occurred. The mid-Atlantic and Northeast areas of the country are not expected to be hit hard because they had outbreaks of Type A flu last winter.

Flu bugs are transmitted from person to person, Dr. Rasmussen said, and usually brought to this country by travelers. O'Hare Airport is a logical place where flu bug carriers pass through but no special precautions are taken to check the disease.

Meanwhile, area doctors have enough vaccine available to handle any major flu problems. The cost of a flu shot by a physician is about $5 to $7, they say.

Panel delays permits to sanitary district

City planning to continue fight against MSD plant?

Some Des Plaines officials appear to be laying plans for continued opposition to the Metropolitan Sanitary District Sewage treatment plant proposed for the city's west side.

The need for new strategy is the result of an Illinois Supreme Court verdict Friday that, in effect, prevents the city from using its zoning power to block construction of the plant.

The city council's water-and-sewer committee decided Monday to delay consideration of an MSD request for a permit to begin construction of a number of sewer lines which will eventually be tied into the Des Plaines plant.

THE SUPREME COURT ruled the city was not entitled to a full hearing on its contention that under the city's home-rule authority it has the right to force the MSD to obey its zoning ordinances.

While Mayor Herbert Behrel indicated he thought delaying the MSD's latest request was in order, he hinted that he may seek city council action to help speed construction of the plant.

During the eight-year battle over the plant, some city officials have argued the facility is located too close to residential areas. The plant will be located at Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road.

"I think we have delayed things long enough, and I feel we should find some way or means to get that plant construction on the way," Behrel said.

"I had my say that the plant would probably be in operation by this time," Behrel added.

Besides obtaining the necessary permits from the city for the new sewer lines, which are part of a massive tunnel and reservoir plan being proposed by the MSD to handle storm and sanitary sewage in the future, the district must also comply with federal regulations concerning construction of sewage-treatment plants.

IN ADDITION, the MSD also will have to comply with a stringent new ordinance setting standards for sewage treatment plants before receiving building permits.

Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, has noted that the district must comply with all local regulations concerning the plant before it can fulfill all the requirements of federal regulations.

While recognizing the need for the plant, Ward, one of the most outspoken critics of the MSD's plan, also has cited the possible health hazards which could develop for area residents because of the close proximity of the plant to residential areas.

Behrel also declined to speculate whether the city might find itself in court again in the near future over other requirements it might try to enforce on the MSD regarding construction of the plant.

Post office here survives huge U.S. cut

Plans for a new main post office in Des Plaines have survived a massive cut in the U.S. Postal Service budget, a postal service spokesman said Tuesday.

The $2.6 million facility, to be located at Oakton Street and Executive Way, was not affected by a $120 million slash in the postal service's construction budget for the 1975 fiscal year.

Construction programs in Chicago, Atlanta, Dallas, Tex., Ford Wayne, Ind., and Trenton, N.J., have been delayed by the cutbacks.

"THE DES PLAINES facility is one of the few that has not been affected," the postal service spokesman said in Washington.

Rampant double-digit inflation has been cited as the reason behind the nationwide cutbacks. In addition to shelving plans for construction, the postal service has also dropped plans for the purchase of $123 million in delivery vehicles.

"Taking immediate and serious steps to check the problem of rising costs is the most effective way to prevent a worsening of our financial situation," said Postmaster General E. T. Klassen.

Plans for the Des Plaines facility have been stalled for several years. Spending cutbacks halted consideration for several years, but after the postal service was changed from a government agency to a quasi-public corporation the local facility was given a high priority.

THE POSTAL SERVICE'S capital improvements committee cleared one of the final roadblocks stalling the project last January and plans for the 57,000-square-foot building have been under consideration since then.

Postal service officials recently said that the plans should be completed about Dec. 1, and construction may be under way as soon as Feb. 15, 1975.

Current plans indicate the facility could be finished in 1976.

Postal service officials plan to consolidate local operations into the central facility when completed. Currently there are three post offices in Des Plaines and another in Rosemont which serve this area.

$14 million project

Planner sees Superblock groundbreaking in month

by STEVE BROWN

The project director for the downtown redevelopment project said Tuesday he still hopes to begin construction of the $14 million Superblock building this year.

Met Helms, director of the project for developer J. R. Gottleb and Co., said the company hopes to break ground within the next 30 to 60 days.

"We are now working out the final details with the insurance companies which will lend the funds for the project," Helms said.

HE ALSO NOTED that the new construction bids for the project were within the spending guidelines that have been established.

"We had to rebuild the job after the interior of the shopping mall was redesigned," Helms said.

He also said talks are being held with potential tenants for both the retail and office space within the structure, which will be built at Lee and Prairie streets.

Helms also noted that construction cost estimates for the development have increased to about $14 million. Initial plans for the complex set the price at about $12 million.

IN A RELATED development, costs for the Ellinwood Street parking garage will probably increase to about $4 million, Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said. Behrel said Tuesday he has been advised that increases in construction costs would see the price tag for the garage jump about $1 million.

"I'm not going to point any fingers, but there have been a number of delays by the city council which have resulted in the price of the garage going up," Behrel said.

The bulk of the parking spaces in the Woman could cost Kiwanis Club charter

by LUISA GINNETTI

The Elk Grove Kiwanis Club may be in danger of losing its charter for violating a Kiwanis International rule banning women members.

The international voted Sunday to lift the charter of the Cheyenne Mountains Kiwanis Club, Colorado Springs, Colo., because it failed to comply with a directive to revoke the membership of five women.

Although it has received no directive from the international, the Elk Grove Kiwanis technically is also in violation of the rules because one of its members is a woman.

MARY CLARK, librarian at the Elk Grove Village Public Library, was inducted into the local Kiwanis in February. Miss Clark said no attempt was made to conceal that she is a woman when her membership application was processed by the international.

"I received a formal invitation to join Kiwanis as part of some bulk mail," Miss Clark said Tuesday. She said she is a member of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce and surmised her invitation to join Kiwanis came from being on the association's mailing list.

"I would like to stay on as a member but if the local asked me to leave I would honor their request," Miss Clark said. "I would much prefer to stay and I would be willing to work with the local to try and work out an alternative if that's what they want."

A Kiwanis official who was an officer at the time Miss Clark was inducted said the local club was aware that the international rules barred women.

Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis, said Tuesday, "There is no doubt that Mary is a member in good standing." He said he has received no word from the international about the situation but he said the international technically was apprised of the situation when it approved Miss Clark's application.

Harrell said the matter will be brought up at Kiwanis meetings. The club meets each Friday at noon at the Salt Creek Country Club in Itasca.

A SPOKESMAN for the Kiwanis International said Tuesday no other cases of women membership in local clubs have come to the attention of the international.

The spokesman added that the situation with the Colorado Springs local arose this summer at the international's convention in Denver. An amendment to the charter seeking to permit women members was proposed but was defeated, he said, prompting the Colorado Springs local to declare its intention to defy the rule and continue to allow women members to remain in the club.

The international reacted by ordering the Colorado Springs Kiwanis charter be revoked, effective this week.

The spokesman added that the international would probably take similar action against any other local that defies the rule banning women members. "We have no choice but to take this action unless and until the bylaw is changed," he said.

Residents are asked to call 729-4783 for ticket information.

WHILE CONSTRUCTION continues on Euclid Avenue, motorists are asked to use the alternate Kensington-Foundry Road route. Officials said that the inconvenience is worth the trouble since the area around Euclid is hazardous.

Yippee! Worst part of work on Euclid Avenue completed

The biggest traffic headache is over for residents affected by the Euclid Avenue construction between Wolf and River roads in Mount Prospect.

County highway department officials said Tuesday the three-quarter-mile stretch is open to local traffic. Paving has been completed, although the road is not open to through traffic.

The widening of Euclid to a four-lane roadway has created numerous problems for residents in the area. Motorists have been forced to detour around the area since April when the road was closed at the railroad tracks. As work progressed, and the road was torn up, many residents had to use side streets to get to their homes because the main roads were impassable.

Highway department spokesman Francine B. Stuart said residents will not have the same access problem now that the paving of this section has been completed. She said, however, there will still be some traffic inconveniences because the contractor must install curbs and gutters, drainage and median strips.

CONTRACTORS ARE scheduled to complete work on the three-quarter-mile section early next year, but Miss Stuart said that a change in weather could delay the work even more.

The work originally was scheduled for completion this month. Miss Stuart said contractors are about three months behind schedule as a result of the nine-week cement truckdrivers' strike this summer.

Residents also can expect some relief from the traffic problems caused by construction at the intersection of Euclid Avenue and River Road. Contractors have completed the paving of the east side of River Road and have begun working on the west side of the road.

The intersection is being widened to allow a left turn lane, and curbs and gutters are being installed.

WORK ON THIS part of the project is scheduled for completion before the end of the year. Miss Stuart said that poor weather could also delay this work.

The project is part of an over-all plan to widen Euclid-Lake from Wolf Road in Mount Prospect east to Milwaukee Avenue near the Tri-State Tollway, then continuing east to a point between Landwehr and Pfingsten roads near Glenview.

The first phase of the work is being done by Rossi Contractors, Northlake, for $2.1 million. The total project is expected to cost $4 million.

The beams are valued at $150 each.

This winter's flu bug different—and more deadly

Elderly, ill may be especially susceptible to Port Chalmers strain, but there is a vaccine for it

It's coming out of New Zealand this winter, supposedly packing a bigger punch than usual and more potential for felling large numbers of people, especially the elderly and the chronically ill.

The annual flu season is approaching and reports that a deadlier strain of influenza is heading this way is being downplayed by the Cook County Dept. of Public Health.

Dr. Colette Rasmussen, chief of the division of preventive medicine, said that it is too early to tell exactly what kind of flu will hit the Chicago area or how widespread it will be.

Explaining that it is more important to determine the potency of a flu bug rather than what kind it is, Dr. Rasmussen predicted that if an epidemic hits the Midwest this year it likely would be caused by a Type A, or deadlier form of bug, as opposed to the Type B more common to this area.

The Type A expected is something called Port Chalmers Flu, initially located in New Zealand last year. It is similar to the London Flu that swept the United States in late 1972 and early 1973, causing more than 1,000 deaths a week at its peak.

THE NATIONAL CENTER for Disease Control reports a "significant" outbreak of Port Chalmers Flu is expected in most parts of the nation for the flu season, which normally runs from November to February.

Dr. Rasmussen recommends persons more than 65 years old and the chronically ill should get flu shots as soon as possible because it takes a while for the vaccine to take effect. She added she doesn't know how badly the flu will affect persons in the Midwest since it partly depends on when the last outbreak of this type of flu occurred. The mid-Atlantic and Northeast areas of the country are not expected to be hit hard because they had outbreaks of Type A flu last winter.

Flu bugs are transmitted from person to person, Dr. Rasmussen said, and usually brought to this country by travelers. O'Hare Airport is a logical place where flu bug carriers pass through but no special precautions are taken to check the disease.

Meanwhile, area doctors have enough vaccine available to handle any major flu problems. The cost of a flu shot by a physician is about $5 to $7, they say.

Plan in effect 'as soon as possible'

Centex to pay for furnace parts, share installation cost

Centex Homes Corp. has agreed to pay for replacement parts and for a share of the estimated $85 installation cost to repair defective furnaces in Elk Grove Village homes.

Village Pres. Charles Zettek announced Tuesday that Centex, whose previous remedies to the furnace problem had been rejected, "has indicated they will put a plan to remedy the furnace situation in effect as soon as possible."

"This will call for inspections of the some 1,700 Centex-built homes suspected of having furnace problems and replacement of defective heat exchangers and correction of exhaust systems vents or grills that are not up to code," said Zettek.

THE VILLAGE president had rejected the company's earlier offer of a $6 do-it-yourself repair kit consisting of a chimney-stack vent cap and furnace-closet intake grill.

Zettek told builder representatives Sept. 24 that they should come up with a better proposal, suggesting Centex share in the repair costs or face the possibility of not being allowed to build any more housing in Elk Grove Village.

"Centex now has agreed to share the cost of replacement of defective furnace parts, depending on the age of the furnace," he said Tuesday. Previous discussion on this point has indicated the company's share of the $85 cost would be pro-rated, depending on furnace age.

Zettek also said Tuesday that he has asked Centex to pay a share of repair costs for all brands of defective furnaces in Centex homes, not just Johnson Furnace Corp. furnaces. The Johnson brand makes up the bulk of furnaces found with corrosion-damaged heat exchangers, which allow dangerous fumes to be circulated in by heating systems.

NO PROCEDURE has been set up to conduct the Centex-financed repair program. Company officials could not be reached Tuesday for comment.

The Herald disclosed last June that a massive number of furnace failures was suspected in Elk Grove Village and that village officials had been aware of the situation for two years without informing residents.

A village-commissioned study determined that faulty heat exchangers in some Johnson models, contaminants in the air and building code violations contributed to the corrosion of furnace heat exchangers.

Insurer may appeal verdict for malpractice

Attorneys for the Hartford Insurance Co., representing Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in a malpractice suit, say they have not decided if they will appeal last week's jury verdict awarding a Wheeling couple more than $1.2 million in damages.

Richard French of the Chicago law firm of Howard and French said the hospital and five of its officials, named as defendants in the case, have 30 days to appeal the decision of Sept. 24 that granted Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barzycki what is believed to be the largest malpractice sum ever awarded in Illinois.

The Barzyckis' suit charged that the hospital was negligent in treating Mrs. Barzycki when it failed to cut down her dosage of cobalt treatments starting in January 1969, when the hospital's cobalt machine was increased in power.

The suit said other patients had their treatments correspondingly reduced when the machine's power was increased while Mrs. Barzycki was kept on the same dosage. She was being treated for Hodgkins Disease.

The excessive treatments caused Mrs. Barzycki, 31, to become permanently paralyzed from the waist down, the suit charged.

KIWANIAN MARY CLARK goes about her work at the Elk Grove Village Library. Miss Clark is one of the few women in the nation to be a member of Kiwanis International and when the organization's headquarters realizes, it may ask for the Elk Grove Village group's charter.

Kiwanis Club violating ban on women

by LUISA GINETTI

The Elk Grove Kiwanis Club may be in danger of losing its charter for violating a Kiwanis International rule banning woman members.

The international voted Sunday to lift the charter of the Cheyenne Mountains Kiwanis Club, Colorado Springs, Colo., because it failed to comply with a directive to revoke the membership of five women.

Although it has received no directive from the international, the Elk Grove Kiwanis technically is also in violation of the rules because one of its members is a woman.

MARY CLARK, librarian at the Elk Grove Village Public Library, was inducted into the local Kiwanis in February. Miss Clark said no attempt was made to conceal that she is a woman when her membership application was processed by the international.

"I received a formal invitation to join Kiwanis as part of some bulk mail," Miss Clark said Tuesday. She said she is a member of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce and surmised her invitation to join Kiwanis came from being on the association's mailing list.

"I would like to stay on as a member but if the local asked me to leave I would honor their request," Miss Clark said. "I would much prefer to stay and I would be willing to work with the local to try and work out an alternative if that's what they want."

A Kiwanis official who was an officer at the time Miss Clark was inducted said the local club was aware that the international rules barred women.

"We brought her in with our eyes wide open," said the former officer, who did not wish to be identified.

THE FORMER officer said he personally would support Miss Clark if an attempt were made to oust her. "I'll stick with Mary all the way and I would support her even if it meant my membership."

Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis, said Tuesday, "There is no doubt that Mary is a member in good standing." He said he has received no word from the international about the situation but he said the international technically was apprised of the situation when it approved Miss Clark's application.

Harrell said the matter will be brought (Continued on Page 5)

Med center offers prenatal classes to expectant parents

Expectant parents may register for a series of prenatal classes at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

The classes scheduled to begin the week of Oct. 28 are offered on Monday and Wednesday evenings for six weeks. The classes are open to expectant parents, whether or not they are planning to have their babies at Alexian Brothers.

The course is one method of fulfilling Alexian Brothers requirements for fathers who wish to be present in the delivery room for the birth of their children. Permission for the delivery room privilege for fathers must be obtained in advance from their own doctor.

The course discusses prenatal care for the mother, food for the pregnant and nursing mother, clothing needs of the newborn and techniques for bathing the baby.

It is based on the Red Cross program of prenatal instruction and covers conception through the first several months of life.

A film of the birth process also will be shown.

Members of the maternity department nursing staff conduct the classes which meet in the cafeteria on the ground floor of the center at 7:30 p.m. on the six consecutive Monday and Wednesday evenings at Alexian Brothers, 800 W. Biesterfield Rd.

Interested couples may register immediately by calling 437-5500, ext. 711.

by JOE SWICKARD

"I am so happy. There were millions of responses. I don't have time for my children or my housework, but I don't care because so many people have been just so good," said Maria McGowan.

Mrs. McGowan, 1014 Crab Tree Dr., Arlington Heights, has been overwhelmed with gifts and offers of aid for victims of hurricane Fifi that blasted through her native Honduras two weeks ago since the story of her relief efforts appeared in The Herald Friday.

With most communications cut off to her homeland, Mrs. McGowan had been unable to learn the fate of her family, which lives in San Pedro Sula, hard hit by the storm and floods that followed. Rather than spend her days stymied with worry, she began collecting food and clothing for the thousands of Hondurans left destitute.

Maria McGowan

IN THE MIDST OF the offers for Honduras came a personal one for Mrs. McGowan from Frank Atchison of Wheeling.

"I called Mrs. McGowan and asked her if she had been in contact with any ham radio operators to try to get in touch with her family," said Atchison, an amateur radio operator for five years.

"Mr. Atchison in Wheeling got through to Honduras and my family is all right. I can't believe it," Mrs. McGowan said, her voice cracking.

Atchison said he reached a woman operator in Honduras through an international amateur-radio network based in Miami. The woman, it turned out, worked with one of Mrs. McGowan's brothers and the word was they were alive.

Atchison's efforts for Mrs. McGowan are not finished yet, he said.

"Wednesday I have the relay scheduled with the operator so I can contact her mother directly," he said, adding that until Monday no personal messages were allowed through because of the emergency food and medical priorities.

MRS. MCGOWAN'S message did not stop there. The officers and wives at Glenview Naval Air Station heard the plea for help.

"We had an abundance of clothes at the thrift shop run by the officers' wives and we didn't know what to do with them. I saw the story of Mrs. McGowan in the paper and said why don't we donate them to Honduras," said Mrs. Stephanie Dunlavy of Buffalo Grove.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Dunlavy and Dottie Berk of Mount Prospect, the thrift shop's donation swelled to fill 15 boxes with clothing.

"We started out with primarily women's clothes but when we were finished we had clothes for just about everyone," said Mrs. Dunlavy.

THE BASE'S involvement does not end there, though. This morning at 10 a.m.

the Marine Air Reserve stationed there will fly out 30,000 pounds of food and clothes to New Orleans, where it will be forwarded to Honduras.

Maj. Greg Lee of Palatine, the operations officer, said the flight is being made with the cooperation of the Honduran Consulate and will double as a training mission. Another flight is tentatively planned for next week if details with Marine Command in Washington and the State Dept. are worked out.

"I can't believe this," Mrs. McGowan said. "We've had to move everything to the garage so we could walk in the house. All the churches have gotten behind us and all the people. One lady gave $200 worth of food. All these people wanting to help. I just can't believe it."

"I want to thank you so much. You have saved my life."

City committee delays giving sanitary district permits

Des Plaines looks for ways to fight sewage plant

Some Des Plaines officials appear to be laying plans for continued opposition to the Metropolitan Sanitary District Sewage treatment plant proposed for the city's west side.

The need for new strategy is the result of an Illinois Supreme Court verdict Friday that, in effect, prevents the city from using its zoning power to block construction of the plant.

The city council's water-and-sewer committee decided Monday to delay consideration of an MSD request for a permit to begin construction of a number of sewer lines which will eventually be tied into the Des Plaines plant.

THE SUPREME COURT ruled the city was not entitled to a full hearing on its contention that under the city's home-rule authority it has the right to force the MSD to obey its zoning ordinances.

While Mayor Herbert Behrel indicated he thought delaying the MSD's latest request was in order, he hinted that he may seek city council action to help speed construction of the plant.

During the eight-year battle over the plant, some city officials have argued the facility is located too close to residential areas. The plant will be located at Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road.

"I think we have delayed things long enough, and I feel we should find some way or means to get that plant construction on the way," Behrel said.

"I had my say that the plant would probably be in operation by this time," Behrel added.

Besides obtaining the necessary permits from the city for the new sewer lines, which are part of a massive tunnel and reservoir plan being proposed by the MSD to handle storm and sanitary sewage in the future, the district must also comply with federal regulations concerning construction of sewage-treatment plants.

IN ADDITION, the MSD also will have to comply with a stringent new ordinance setting standards for sewage treatment plants before receiving building permits.

Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, has noted that the district must comply with all local regulations concerning the plant before it can fulfill all the requirements of federal regulations.

While recognizing the need for the plant, Ward, one of the most outspoken critics of the MSD's plan, also has cited the possible health hazards which could develop for area residents because of the close proximity of the plant to residential areas.

Behrel also declined to speculate whether the city might find itself in court again in the near future over other requirements it might try to enforce on the MSD regarding construction of the plant.

Burger King gets drive-in whopper

A Hoffman Estates woman drove her car through the front of the Burger King restaurant in Hoffman Plaza Tuesday night, slightly injuring a restaurant patron.

Rolling Meadows official's practice 'not illegal'

by NANCY COWGER

A corporation owned by Mayor Roland J. Meyer of Rolling Meadows is using city equipment in sales demonstrations for its customers, a Herald investigation has disclosed.

The company, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., was started last December by Meyer and two associates, Harry Triunfol of Pompano Beach, Fla., and Eugene E. Campion, 4502 Sycamore Ln., Rolling Meadows.

Since then, the firm's customers have been shown city equipment at the city garage, 3200 Central Rd., and have examined trash-compacting mechanisms in garbage trucks and in the city compactor station during special tours.

The equipment, purchased before Meyer's company was formed, is "identical" to equipment now distributed by the firm.

Roland J. Meyer

James McFeggan

Meyer refused to discuss sales volume or previous customers, saying, "It's none of your business" but adding, "I didn't go into business to lose money." A spokesman for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., whose equipment Meyer sells, described Meyer's firm as a "successful operation," but referred specific questions on finances to Meyer.

POTENTIAL CUSTOMERS representing the municipality of Griffith, Ind., plan to visit Rolling Meadows this week or next. Glen Keyome, public works director for the Indiana community, said he hopes to examine everything from the compacting mechanism on city trucks to Rolling Meadows' records of manpower and operation costs.

The tour will be conducted by James McFeggan, former Rolling Meadows public works director, who quit that job two years ago. McFeggan now works as a salesman for Midwest Environmental Systems.

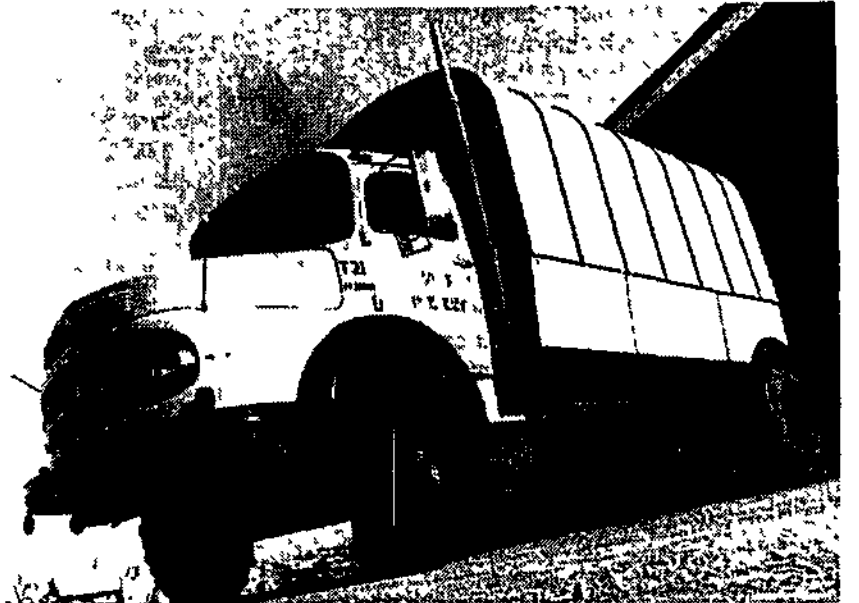

The city bought its three trucks in 1969 from St. Regis Paper Co. at $19,000 per vehicle, adding a compactor station in 1971 at a $103,000 cost. The total refuse system was originally proposed by McFeggan. Rolling Meadows' trucks used Mercedes Benz chassis, but Orbital's have American-made chassis. Both have German-made bodies.

WHEN THE CITY bought its trucks, the garbage system had been in use in Germany for 18 years, but it was new in the U.S. McFeggan recently said Rolling Meadows had "the first complete system of this type in the Western Hemisphere."

Midwest Environmental Systems Inc. has never purchased anything from or sold anything to the City of Rolling Meadows, said Meyer. If he brings prospective customers to city buildings to study the city's equipment, so do other salesmen, and he and McFeggan are treated no differently than any other sales representative, said Meyer. He said he has asked for no favors and received none.

Meyer's other business venture, R. J. Meyer & Co., a scrap paper brokerage firm, has not held any city sales or purchase contracts, he said. Meyer also is a self-employed private investigator.

Meyer said his business activities do not violate state conflict of interest or ethics laws. City Atty. Donald M. Rose, whom Meyer consulted before establishing the business, said there is no apparent violation of the law. A spokesman for the State's Attorney's Office agreed.

MEYER LAUGHED at any question of a conflict of interest, citing advice of Rose as his assurance no conflict exists, and saying he is not gaining financially because of his public office.

"To my knowledge, the activities of the mayor in that corporation do not constitute a conflict of interest," said Rose. Such a conflict arises when a government official buys or sells property, merchandise, equipment or services to the agency in which he holds office, and when the official has voting power over that agency's contract to buy or sell, said Rose.

The law states, "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws or constitution of this state, may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly, in his own name or in the name of any other person, association, trust or corporation, in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or vote."

up at Kiwanis meetings. The club meets each Friday at noon at the Salt Creek Country Club in Itasca.

A SPOKESMAN for the Kiwanis International said Tuesday no other cases of women membership in local clubs have come to the attention of the international.

The spokesman added that the situation with the Colorado Springs local arose this summer at the international's convention in Denver. An amendment to the charter seeking to permit women members was proposed but was defeated, he said, prompting the Colorado Springs local to declare its intention to defy the rule and continue to allow women members to remain in the club.

The international reacted by ordering the Colorado Springs' Kiwanis charter be revoked, effective this week.

The spokesman added that the international would probably take similar action against any other local that defies the rule banning women members. "We have no choice but to take this action unless and until the bylaw is changed," he said.

Hall promoted

T. A. Bolger, president of T. A. Bolger, Realtors, recently announced the promotion of Robert M. Hall to the position of vice president in the Bolger organization. Mr. Hall has been the assistant sales manager of T. A. Bolger's Elk Grove Village office, and advertising manager for Bolger Realtors.

Hall's new position will be sales manager for the newest Bolger office located at the corner of Schoonbock and Dundee Roads. This office will be servicing the rapidly expanding Wheeling-Elk Grove-North Arlington Heights area. Bob's primary duties will be the hiring and training of a sales staff as well as the supervision of the extensive remodeling now being done to the existing building, presently a service station. Tentative opening is scheduled for November 1, 1974.

Bob, his wife, Sandi, and son, Robby, are longtime residents of the northwest suburbs having lived in Elk Grove Village for the past 14 years. Joining the Bolger organization only 1 1/2 years ago, Hall is well on his way toward the exclusive $2 Million Dollar Sales Club for this year. Bob has also attended the Illinois Realtors Institute, is a former Jaycee, past president of the N.S.C.C. and is presently active in the Elk Grove Kiwanis.

This winter's flu bug different—and more deadly

Elderly, ill may be especially susceptible to Port Chalmers strain, but there is a vaccine for it

It's coming out of New Zealand this winter, supposedly packing a bigger punch than usual and more potential for felling large numbers of people, especially the elderly and the chronically ill.

The annual flu season is approaching and reports that a deadlier strain of influenza is heading this way is being downplayed by the Cook County Dept. of Public Health.

Dr. Colette Rasmussen, chief of the division of preventive medicine, said that it is too early to tell exactly what kind of flu will hit the Chicago area or how wide-spread it will be.

Explaining that it is more important to determine the potency of a flu bug rather than what kind it is, Dr. Rasmussen predicted that if an epidemic hits the Midwest this year it likely would be caused by a Type A, or deadlier form of bug, as opposed to the Type B more common to this area.

The Type A expected is something called Port Chalmers Flu, initially located in New Zealand last year. It is similar to the London Flu that swept the United States in late 1972 and early 1973, causing more than 1,000 deaths a week at its peak.

THE NATIONAL CENTER for Disease Control reports a "significant" outbreak of Port Chalmers Flu is expected in most parts of the nation for the flu season, which normally runs from November to February.

Dr. Rasmussen recommends persons more than 65 years old and the chronically ill should get flu shots as soon as possible because it takes a while for the vaccine to take effect. She added she doesn't know how badly the flu will affect persons in the Midwest since it partly depends on when the last outbreak of this type of flu occurred. The mid-Atlantic and Northeast areas of the country are not expected to be hit hard because they had outbreaks of Type A flu last winter.

Flu bugs are transmitted from person to person, Dr. Rasmussen said, and usually brought to this country by travelers. O'Hare Airport is a logical place where flu bug carriers pass through but no special precautions are taken to check the disease.

Meanwhile, area doctors have enough vaccine available to handle any major flu problems. The cost of a flu shot by a physician is about $5 to $7, they say.

Revenue bonds would finance '76' projects

Revenue bond financing for a transportation system, municipal garage and other improvements planned for a $250-million Schaumburg Metro Center would not impose any general obligation on the village, said Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel.

His remarks came during Tuesday night's continued annexation hearing on Woodfield 76, a commercial, residential and recreational facility. The project is being planned on 237 acres of Golf Road property north of Woodfield Shopping Center.

"It is clear to me that revenue bonds would incur no general obligation or tax money. The sole source of their repayment would be revenue from facilities the village constructed with money from those bonds," Siegel said.

AS A PARTNER in the proposed development, the village is being asked to:

- Annex and zone the property as a planned metro development.
- Provide all utilities.
- Provide a domestic water system.
- Design and construct all external roads necessary to the project.
- Design, construct, operate and maintain an expandable "people mover" to serve the development and link it initially with Woodfield.
- Provide public transportation between the project and nearby rail stations.
- Pay for design, construction, operation and maintenance of a 900-car municipal garage.

Siegel emphasized that revenue bonds cannot be issued unless a feasibility study proves need for the project it would finance. He said bonds cannot be issued by the village without a favorable opinion from "nationally recognized bond consultants."

Developers of the project include Union Oil Co. of California, the Pritzker family, owners of the Hyatt Hotel chain, and Bennett and Kahnweiler Associates, Chicago real estate brokers.

DEVELOPERS AGREED Tuesday to amend a proposed annexation ordinance to allow for construction of the garage and "people mover" within a "reasonable" amount of time after they notify the village that a need exists for the facility.

The village also must provide public transportation within a reasonable time after developers identify its needs to the village.

Trustees also agreed to allocate 25 liquor licenses for stores in the center whose principal business would be the sale of liquor. They will also reserve an additional 25 licenses for other stores and restaurants.

Burger King gets drive-in whopper

A Hoffman Estates woman drove her car through the front of the Burger King restaurant in Hoffman Plaza Tuesday night, slightly injuring a restaurant patron.

Police said a car driven by Dorothy Rowe, 50, of 411 Kingsdale Rd., went out of control in the restaurant parking lot, jumping the sidewalk, glancing off another auto and crashing through the brick-and-glass front of the restaurant.

Injured by flying glass was Thomas Deal, 16, of 133 Newark Ln., Hoffman Estates, who was inside the restaurant, police said.

He was given first aid by Hoffman Estates firefighters and later taken to Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Mrs. Rowe was charged with driving while intoxicated and was being held Tuesday night in lieu of $500 bond. She will appear Nov. 15 in the Hoffman Estates branch of Circuit Court.

A HELPING HAND. Sandy Norberge, 13, assists 6-year-old sister Suzy in tumbling practice in the Hoffman Estates Park District gymnastics program on Saturdays at Eisenhower School for children, grades first through eighth.

Village OKs fire station revised bids

A trimmed figure of $197,804, still 16 per cent more than had been anticipated for Hoffman Estates' fourth fire station, will be spent to construct the building.

Village trustees in a special meeting Tuesday night voted to accept revised bids for the project after consulting architect Andrew MacPherson recommended the move. The revised figure was derived after MacPherson's firm, Otis and Associates, proposed minor changes in some features of the proposed station in a cost-cutting effort.

The total cost is lower than the estimated $205,356 which preliminary low bids indicated last week but is still more than the $170,000 which the village had originally estimated would be required for the station at Mumford Drive and Freeman Boulevard.

The station is being built with $250,000 pledged by the Meridian Corp., developers of the Westbury project north of the Northwest Tollway near Palatine Road, which is the area the station will serve.

ABOUT $30,000 OF that total also will be needed for an ambulance for the station plus additional sums to equip the station with furnishings, communications equipment and other items.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said Tuesday night it will not be known for some time how much the equipment and furnishings will cost, but if more than the $250,000 pledged is needed, the village will bear the added cost. He said the funds would be available although the cost would be an added, unexpected expenditure.

"This is actually what buildings are costing today, especially buildings of this size," MacPherson told the board. "The cost of doing business today is one step ahead of everybody's thinking."

The architectural revision, which will be listed as work change orders to avoid the need to re-bid the project, produced a new general contracting low bidder, Pritcher and Erbach, for $127,243. The original low bidder, DRW Inc., submitted a revised cost of $128,754.

Other low bidders for related necessary work remained the Frank Saville Plumbing Co., Air-O-Flow Heating and Air Conditioning and Shoreline Electric Co.

The revisions were discussed during a committee of the whole meeting of the board preceding the special village board meeting.

by JOE SWICKARD

"I am so happy. There were millions of responses. I don't have time for my children or my housework, but I don't care because so many people have been just so good," said Maria McGowan.

Mrs. McGowan, 1014 Crab Tree Dr., Arlington Heights, has been overwhelmed with gifts and offers of aid for victims of hurricane Fifi that blasted through her native Honduras two weeks ago since the story of her relief efforts appeared in The Herald Friday.

With most communications cut off to her homeland, Mrs. McGowan had been unable to learn the fate of her family, which lives in San Pedro Sula, hard hit by the storm and floods that followed. Rather than spend her days stymied with worry, she began collecting food and clothing for the thousands of Hondurans left destitute.

Maria McGowan

IN THE MIDST OF the offers for Honduras came a personal one for Mrs. McGowan from Frank Atchison of Wheeling.

"I called Mrs. McGowan and asked her if she had been in contact with any ham radio operators to try to get in touch with her family," said Atchison, an amateur radio operator for five years.

"Mr. Atchison in Wheeling got through to Honduras and my family is all right. I can't believe it," Mrs. McGowan said, her voice cracking.

Atchison said he reached a woman operator in Honduras through an international amateur-radio network based in Miami. The woman, it turned out, worked with one of Mrs. McGowan's brothers and the word was they were alive.

Atchison's efforts for Mrs. McGowan are not finished yet, he said.

"Wednesday I have the relay scheduled with the operator so I can contact her mother directly," he said, adding that until Monday no personal messages were allowed through because of the emergency food and medical priorities.

MRS. MCGOWAN'S message did not stop there. The officers and wives at Glenview Naval Air Station heard the plea for help.

"We had an abundance of clothes at the thrift shop run by the officers' wives and we didn't know what to do with them. I saw the story of Mrs. McGowan in the paper and said why don't we donate them to Honduras," said Mrs. Stephanie Dunlavy of Buffalo Grove.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Dunlavy and Dottie Berk of Mount Prospect, the thrift shop's donation swelled to fill 15 boxes with clothing.

"We started out with primarily women's clothes but when we were finished we had clothes for just about everyone," said Mrs. Dunlavy.

THE BASE'S involvement does not end there, though. This morning at 10 a.m.

the Marine Air Reserve stationed there will fly out 30,000 to 35,000 pounds of food and clothes to New Orleans, where it will be forwarded to Honduras.

Maj. Greg Lee of Palatine, the operations officer, said the flight is being made with the cooperation of the Honduran Consulate and will double as a training mission. Another flight is tentatively planned for next week if details with Marine Command in Washington and the State Dept. are worked out.

"I can't believe this," Mrs. McGowan said. "We've had to move everything to the garage so we could walk in the house. All the churches have gotten behind us and all the people. One lady gave $200 worth of food. All these people wanting to help. I just can't believe it."

"I want to thank you so much. You have saved my life."

Woman could cost Kiwanis Club charter

by LUISA GINETTI

The Elk Grove Kiwanis Club may be in danger of losing its charter for violating a Kiwanis International rule banning woman members.

The international voted Sunday to lift the charter of the Voteden Mountains Kiwanis Club, Colorado Springs, Colo., because it failed to comply with a directive to revoke the membership of five women.

Although it has received no directive from the international, the Elk Grove Kiwanis technically is also in violation of the rules because one of its members is a woman.

MARY CLARK, librarian at the Elk Grove Village Public Library, was inducted into the local Kiwanis in February. Miss Clark said no attempt was made to conceal that she is a woman when her membership application was processed by the international.

"I received a formal invitation to join Kiwanis as part of some bulk mail," Miss Clark said Tuesday. She said she is a member of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce and surprised her invitation to join Kiwanis came from being on the association's mailing list.

"I would like to stay on as a member but if the local asked me to leave I would honor their request," Miss Clark said. "I would much prefer to stay and I would be willing to work with the local to try and work out an alternative if that's what they want."

A Kiwanis official who was an officer at the time Miss Clark was inducted said the local club was aware that the international rules barred women.

"We brought her in with our eyes wide open," said the former officer, who did not wish to be identified.

THE FORMER officer said he personally would support Miss Clark if an attempt were made to oust her. "I'll stick with Mary all the way and I would support her even if it meant my membership," he said.

Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis, said Tuesday, "There is no doubt that Mary is a member in good standing." He said he has received no word from the international about the situation but he said the international technically was apprised of the situation when it approved Miss Clark's application.

Harrell said the matter will be brought up at Kiwanis meetings. The club meets each Friday at noon at the Salt Creek Country Club in Itasca.

A SPOKESMAN for the Kiwanis International said Tuesday no other cases of women membership in local clubs have come to the attention of the international.

The spokesman added that the situation with the Colorado Springs local arose this summer at the international's convention in Denver. An amendment to the charter seeking to permit women members was proposed but was defeated, he said, prompting the Colorado Springs local to declare its intention to defy the rule and continue to allow women members to remain in the club.

The international reacted by ordering the Colorado Springs Kiwanis charter be revoked, effective this week.

The spokesman added that the international would probably take similar action against any other local that defies the rule banning women members. "We have no choice but to take this action unless and until the bylaw is changed," he said.

Transit official at meeting

The new transportation director at Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54, Fred Goering, attended the second annual meeting of the Pupil Transportation Supervisors in Effingham, Ill., last week.

During the two-day session Goering was elected to the organization's executive board representing the northern Illinois region of the state. Special emphasis was placed on recent safety laws in Illinois during the meeting.

$2,000 in copper stolen

About $2,000 worth of copper tubing and various tools were reported stolen Monday at a construction site on Albion Avenue between Mitchell and Wright boulevards in the Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park.

Police were told the materials were taken from a construction trailer belonging to Elmhurst Heating and Plumbing. Entry to the trailer was gained by breaking off the lock to a door, authorities said.

Awana meetings Thursday

The Schaumburg Covenant Church Awana will hold its first fall meeting Thursday. Girls' Awana will meet from 7 to 8:45 p.m. at Collins School, 407 S. Summit, Schaumburg, and boys' Awana will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. at Aldrin School, 617 Boxwood Dr., Schaumburg.

Awana is a nondenominational Christian youth group for children in third through eighth grades.

Airport study topic of panel

The first monthly report on Schaumburg's airport feasibility study is expected to be presented at tonight's meeting of the village mass transportation committee.

Curtis K. Wehling of Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, engineering consultants performing the $56,000 study, will outline progress at the meeting at 8 p.m. at the Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Dr.

The study, begun in mid-August, is being paid for by a federal grant covering two-thirds of its cost. Additional money is being provided by the Illinois Dept. of Transportation and the Village of Schaumburg as study sponsor.

IT IS EXPECTED to identify need for an expanded village-owned airport. The study represents the first step in master planning for a regional transportation center proposed several years ago by Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher.

The Chicago Area Transportation System (CATS) 1993 Plan, completed in June, recommends Schaumburg Airport be converted to a publicly-owned visual-flight rules airport but does not include Fire deficit to go public in a week

The Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District deficit will likely not be revealed for another week when the results of an audit of fire district records is expected, Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said Tuesday.

"They (auditors) are still trying to put it all together," Longmeyer said. He said auditors may complete the work within a week. The results will be forwarded to village officials.

A deficit of at least $250,000 and possibly as much as $500,000 by the end of fiscal 1975 has been estimated to exist in the fire district.

The village plans to assume control of the fire district this month to form a municipal fire department. The fire district's deficit will then be assumed by the village, which has already authorized the levy of a 5 per cent utility tax to begin Jan. 1 to attempt to erase the deficit.

THE TAX IS expected to cost most homeowners $20 to $50 yearly, with 5 cents on every dollar charged for telephone, gas and electric bills to be collected. An estimated $350,000 to $400,000 is expected to be generated by the tax.

Completion of the annexation is still hoped for by the end of the month, Longmeyer said. "Hopefully we are still shooting for the period between Oct. 15 and Nov. 15."

He said there are still some land areas on the fire district's western limits which remain to be annexed. The land parcels are owned in trusts and signatures from each owner in the trust are required for the annexation, he said.

Police in the village are represented by the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) which is not affiliated with a national union.

In a related matter, Longmeyer said there has been no discussion yet of what may be done with Fire Station No. 2 on Hassell Road, which is expected to be closed after the fire district annexation.

He said several groups, including the Schaumburg Township Library and the Hoffman Estates Park District, have asked for the building. A final decision on the station's use will come from the village board.

This winter's flu bug different—and more deadly

Elderly, ill may be especially susceptible to Port Chalmers strain, but there is a vaccine for it

It's coming out of New Zealand this winter, supposedly packing a bigger punch than usual and more potential for killing large numbers of people, especially the elderly and the chronically ill.

The annual flu season is approaching and reports that a deadlier strain of influenza is heading this way is being downplayed by the Cook County Dept. of Public Health.

Dr. Colette Rasmussen, chief of the division of preventive medicine, said that it is too early to tell exactly what kind of flu will hit the Chicago area or how widespread it will be.

Explaining that it is more important to determine the potency of a flu bug rather than what kind it is, Dr. Rasmussen predicted that if an epidemic hits the Midwest this year it likely would be caused by a Type A, or deadlier form of bug, as opposed to the Type B more common to this area.

The Type A expected is something called Port Chalmers Flu, initially located in New Zealand last year. It is similar to the London Flu that swept the United States in late 1972 and early 1973, causing more than 1,000 deaths a week at its peak.

THE NATIONAL CENTER for Disease Control reports a "significant" outbreak of Port Chalmers Flu is expected in most parts of the nation for the flu season, which normally runs from November to February.

Dr. Rasmussen recommends persons more than 65 years old and the chronically ill should get flu shots as soon as possible because it takes a while for the vaccine to take effect. She added she doesn't know how badly the flu will affect persons in the Midwest since it partly depends on when the last outbreak of this type of flu occurred. The mid-Atlantic and Northeast areas of the country are not expected to be hit hard because they had outbreaks of Type A flu last winter.

Flu bugs are transmitted from person to person, Dr. Rasmussen said, and usually brought to this country by travelers. O'Hare Airport is a logical place where flu bug carriers pass through but no special precautions are taken to check the disease.

Meanwhile, area doctors have enough vaccine available to handle any major flu problems. The cost of a flu shot by a physician is about $5 to $7, they say.

His corporation sells identical line

Mayor demonstrates city-owned equipment

by NANCY COWGER

A corporation owned by Mayor Roland J. Meyer of Rolling Meadows is using city equipment in sales demonstrations for its customers, a Herald investigation has disclosed.

The company, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., was started last December by Meyer and two associates, Harry Triunfo of Pompano Beach, Fla., and Eugene E. Campton, 4302 Sycamore Ln., Rolling Meadows.

Since then, the firm's customers have been shown city equipment at the city garage, 3200 Central Rd., and have examined trash-compacting mechanisms in garbage trucks and in the city compactor station during special tours.

The equipment, purchased before Meyer's company was formed, is "identical" to equipment now distributed by the firm.

Meyer refused to discuss sales volume or previous customers, saying, "It's none of your business" but adding, "I didn't go into business to lose money." A spokesman for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., whose equipment Meyer sells, described Meyer's firm as a "successful operation," but referred specific questions on finances to Meyer.

POTENTIAL CUSTOMERS representing the municipality of Griffith, Ind., plan to visit Rolling Meadows this week

Roland J. Meyer

or next. Glen Reyome, public works director for the Indiana community, said he hopes to examine everything from the compacting mechanism on city trucks to Rolling Meadows' records of manpower and operation costs.

The tour will be conducted by James McFeggan, former Rolling Meadows public works director, who quit that job two years ago. McFeggan now works as a salesman for Midwest Environmental Systems.

The city bought its three trucks in 1969 from St. Regis Paper Co. at $19,000 per vehicle, adding a compactor station in 1971 at a $100,000 cost. The total refuse system was originally proposed by McFeggan. Rolling Meadows' trucks used Mercedes Benz chassis, but Orbit-al's have American-made chassis. Both have German-made bodies.

WHEN THE CITY bought its trucks, the garbage system had been in use in Germany for 18 years, but it was new in the U.S. McFeggan recently said Rolling Meadows had "the first complete system of this type in the Western Hemisphere."

Midwest Environmental Systems Inc. has never purchased anything from or sold anything to the City of Rolling Meadows, said Meyer. If he brings prospective customers to city buildings to study the city's equipment, so do other salesmen, and he and McFeggan are treated no differently than any other sales representative, said Meyer. He said he has asked for no favors and received none.

Meyer's other business venture, R. J. Meyer & Co., a scrap paper brokerage firm, has not held any city sales or purchase contracts, he said. Meyer also is a self-employed private investigator.

Meyer said his business activities do not violate state conflict of interest or ethics laws. City Atty. Donald M. Rose, whom Meyer consulted before establishing the business, said there is no apparent violation of the law. A spokesman for the State's Attorney's Office agreed.

MEYER LAUGHED at any question of a conflict of interest, citing advice of Rose as his assurance no conflict exists, (continued on page 8)

Hearing on subdivision tonight

A hearing on final approval for subdividing seven acres near Golf, Algonquin and Elk Grove roads will be held by the Rolling Meadows Plan Commission today at 8:30 p.m.

Owner John Kretschmar's subdivision plan was approved by the commission in early May. The city council later withheld final approval because it did not want to subdivide a parcel of commercially zoned land. Instead, the city said the land should be developed by one interest to avoid multiple driveways.

Kretschmar filed suit against the city, but a court hearing has been delayed until Kretschmar resubmits his proposal to the plan commission and the city council.

City Atty. Donald Rose said this is being done to make sure the city fully understands the project and to allow the developer to correct any errors in his proposal that might block its approval.

THERE'S ONLY ROOM for one seamstress at a time in the new home economics class at St. Colette School in Rolling Meadows. Teacher Diane Kramer started sewing and cooking classes this year for seventh- and eighth-grade girls but is working with a limited budget.

New St. Colette course

Learning 'home skills' early

Fastening a button to a shirt becomes an impossible task if you don't have a needle and thread.

That's the situation seventh- and eighth-grade students at St. Colette School in Rolling Meadows are facing this year. A home economics course has been added to the school curriculum, but the board of education was able to budget only $375 for equipment. As a result everything from thimbles to frying pans is needed at the school.

"This is the first year we've offered home ec," said Diane Kramer, who directs the program. "There are between 50 and 75 girls taking home ec and we need just about everything."

THE FIRST PHASE of the course is sewing. Students begin with a basic apron and progress to a fitted garment.

At the end of the semester Mrs. Kramer is planning a fashion show for her students to show off their creations.

The second phase, starting in January, will be devoted to cooking, with units on basic nutrition and diet and lessons on planning and preparing meals.

Equipment for both courses is needed. The school has just one sewing machine and is expecting a second — an old fashion treadle machine donated by a woman in the parish.

THE ONLY EQUIPMENT Mrs. Kramer has so far for her cooking class is a combination sink, refrigerator and two-burner stove. "We don't even have an oven," she said.

"The list of needs is long — material, ironing boards, irons, needles, thread, scissors, pots, pans, utensils, I could go on and on," Mrs. Kramer added.

Donations can be made by calling 923-4096 or bringing items to the school, 3906 Pheasant.

by JOE SWICKARD

"I am so happy. There were millions of responses. I don't have time for my children or my housework, but I don't care because so many people have been just so good," said Maria McGowan.

Mrs. McGowan, 1014 Crab Tree Dr., Arlington Heights, has been overwhelmed with gifts and offers of aid for victims of hurricane Fifi that blasted through her native Honduras two weeks ago since the story of her relief efforts appeared in The Herald Friday.

With most communications cut off to her homeland, Mrs. McGowan had been unable to learn the fate of her family, which lives in San Pedro Sula, hard hit by the storm and floods that followed. Rather than spend her days stymied with worry, she began collecting food and clothing for the thousands of Hondurans left destitute.

Maria McGowan

IN THE MIDST of the offers for Honduras came a personal one for Mrs. McGowan from Frank Atchison of Wheeling.

"I called Mrs. McGowan and asked her if she had been in contact with any ham radio operators to try to get in touch with her family," said Atchison, an amateur radio operator for five years.

"Mr. Atchison in Wheeling got through to Honduras and my family is all right. I can't believe it," Mrs. McGowan said, her voice cracking.

Atchison said he reached a woman operator in Honduras through an international amateur-radio network based in Miami. The woman, it turned out, worked with one of Mrs. McGowan's brothers and the word was they were alive.

Atchison's efforts for Mrs. McGowan are not finished yet, he said.

"Wednesday I have the relay scheduled with the operator so I can contact her mother directly," he said, adding that until Monday no personal messages were allowed through because of the emergency food and medical priorities.

MRS. MCGOWAN'S message did not stop there. The officers and wives at Glenview Naval Air Station heard the plea for help.

"We had an abundance of clothes at the thrift shop run by the officers' wives and we didn't know what to do with them. I saw the story of Mrs. McGowan in the paper and said why don't we donate them to Honduras," said Mrs. Stephanie Dunlavy of Buffalo Grove.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Dunlavy and Dotie Berk of Mount Prospect, the thrift shop's donation swelled to fill 15 boxes with clothing.

"We started out with primarily women's clothes but when we were finished we had clothes for just about everyone," said Mrs. Dunlavy.

THE BASE'S involvement does not end there, though. This morning at 10 a.m.

the Marine Air Reserve stationed there will fly out 30,000 to 35,000 pounds of food and clothes to New Orleans, where it will be forwarded to Honduras.

Maj. Greg Lee of Palatine, the operations officer, said the flight is being made with the cooperation of the Honduran Consulate and will double as a training mission. Another flight is tentatively planned for next week if details with Marine Command in Washington and the State Dept. are worked out.

"I can't believe this," Mrs. McGowan said. "We've had to move everything to the garage so we could walk in the house. All the churches have gotten behind us and all the people. One lady gave $200 worth of food. All these people wanting to help. I just can't believe it."

"I want to thank you so much. You have saved my life."

Woman could cost Kiwanis Club charter

by LUISA GINETTI

The Elk Grove Kiwanis Club may be in danger of losing its charter for violating a Kiwanis international rule banning women members.

The international voted Sunday to lift the charter of the Cheyenne Mountains Kiwanis Club, Colorado Springs, Colo., because it failed to comply with a directive to revoke the membership of five women.

Although it has received no directive from the international, the Elk Grove Kiwanis technically is also in violation of the rules because one of its members is a woman.

MARY CLARK, librarian at the Elk Grove Village Public Library, was inducted into the local Kiwanis in February. Miss Clark said no attempt was made to conceal that she is a woman when her membership application was processed by the international.

"I received a formal invitation to join Kiwanis as part of some bulk mail," Miss Clark said Tuesday. She said she is a member of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce and surmised her invitation to join Kiwanis came from being on the association's mailing list.

"I would like to stay on as a member but if the local asked me to leave I would honor their request," Miss Clark said. "I would much prefer to stay and I would be willing to work with the local to try and work out an alternative if that's what they want."

A Kiwanis official who was an officer at the time Miss Clark was inducted said the local club was aware that the international rules barred women.

"We brought her in with our eyes wide open," said the former officer, who did not wish to be identified.

THE FORMER officer said he personally would support Miss Clark if an attempt were made to oust her. "I'll stick with Mary all the way and I would support her even if it meant my membership."

Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis, said Tuesday, "There is no doubt that Mary is a member in good standing." He said he has received no word from the international about the situation but he said the international technically was apprised of the situation when it approved Miss Clark's application.

Harrell said the matter will be brought up at Kiwanis meetings. The club meets each Friday at noon at the Salt Creek Country Club in Itasca.

A SPOKESMAN for the Kiwanis International said Tuesday no other cases of women membership in local clubs have come to the attention of the international.

The spokesman added that the situation with the Colorado Springs local arose this summer at the international's convention in Denver. An amendment to the charter seeking to permit women members was proposed but was defeated, he said, prompting the Colorado Springs local to declare its intention to defy the rule and continue to allow women members to remain in the club.

The international reacted by ordering the Colorado Springs' Kiwanis charter be revoked, effective this week.

The spokesman added that the international would probably take similar action against any other local that defies the rule banning women members. "We have no choice but to take this action unless and until the bylaw is changed," he said.

Under terms of annexation agreement

Race track will get break in building regulations

by KURT BAER

Land development at Arlington Park Race Track will proceed according to standards substantially different from those that apply to other properties in Arlington Heights, despite the expiration of the race track's annexation agreement Oct. 20.

The ordinance establishing zoning for the race track property and waiving height restrictions on buildings there will continue after the agreement lapses, unless it is amended by village board action, said Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel.

It remains uncertain whether that ordinance and the five-year-old annexation agreement will force village officials to approve a 5,000-unit housing development plan the race track has submitted. The plan, which includes 12 three-story buildings, is still pending before a special committee of the village board and plan commission.

BUT, SIEGEL SAID, "There is a substantial difference in the standards that will apply to development of this property."

The village board voted unanimously Monday night not to extend the annexation agreement with Arlington Park past its Oct. 20 expiration date. After the agreement lapses, the 400-acre race track complex will be a permanent part of Arlington Heights and will lose many of the special protections it has enjoyed while under the contract.

According to Siegel, the following conditions, all enumerated in the annexation agreement, will expire after Oct. 20:

- The obligation of the village to issue additional liquor licenses for Arlington Park, at a fee not higher than the 1969 rate. The race track may request additional licenses, however, the village is no longer bound to approve such an application.

- The obligation of the race track to provide, without cost, land for the village to build police and fire substations.

- The village's waiver of the right of eminent domain over race track property. Arlington Heights had agreed not to condemn any property at Arlington Park for the life of the annexation agreement.

- The waiver of subdivision requirements and the extension of preliminary plans of subdivision from the usual one to three years.

- The village's agreement to accept letters of credit rather than cash bonds for public improvements at the race track.

- The freezing of all ordinances, building codes, permit fees, sewer and water charges at 1969 standards, and the promise not to impose any new charges, taxes or other restrictions on race track operations.

- Arlington Park's commitment to donate a school site, or $50 for each apartment unit to be built at the race track. Development at Arlington Park may still be subject to Arlington Heights' land dedication ordinance, which requires public land contributions or cash in lieu of land from builders.

- The village's promise not to oppose night thoroughbred racing at Arlington Park.

- The village's obligation to supply additional water and sewer lines to the race track if requested, and to take over operation of water and sewer systems on the race track property. And the village's agreement to pay an appraised value for race track wells, pumps and reservoirs.

Siegel said the clause in the agreement permitting the race track to disannex from Arlington Heights if the village were to break any of the terms of the annexation has become moot. Arlington Heights has not breached the contract and the race track does not have time to furnish the 60 days' notice of any such offense as required by the agreement, he said.

Hanging in the balance is the future of the housing plan Arlington Park has submitted for village approval.

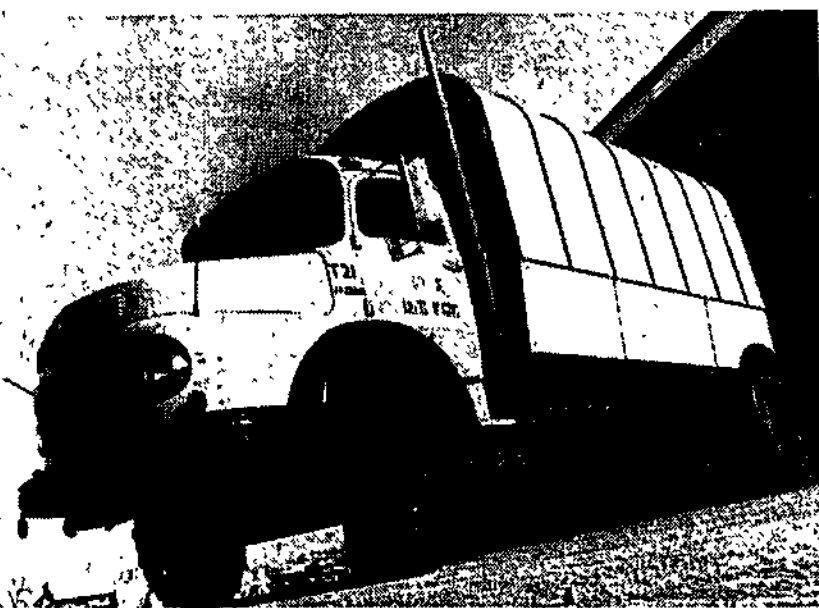

WHILE THE RACE track apparently is exempt from height limitations, and certain other building restrictions, it is not immune from the density limits that normally apply in Arlington Heights' multiple-family zoning district, Siegel said.

The number of units permitted depends on the total land area for the development and the number of bedrooms in each apartment unit.

Richard F. Babcock and R. Marlin Smith, attorneys for Arlington Park, have said they expect approval of the housing plan because it was filed before expiration of the annexation agreement.

Once a plan is filed, the annexation agreement states the contract "unreasonably withhold its approval."

BUT WHETHER the race track is entitled to automatic approval of the 5,000-unit plan it has submitted almost certainly will be the subject of meetings between Arlington Heights' special committee and the Richards Group of Illinois, prospective developer of the property.

GARBAGE TRUCKS in Rolling Meadows draw admirers from across the country to view their impact on health.

2nd paramedic ambulance weighed by city panel

The Rolling Meadows Fire Dept. may have another ambulance equipped for paramedic service next year.

Ald. Thomas W. Scanlan, 1st, said Tuesday the city council's license, police, health and fire committee will discuss purchase of a second paramedic ambulance when it meets at 8 p.m. Thursday in City Hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd. The city last purchased an ambulance in 1971 for about $14,300. Another ambulance, not equipped for paramedic service, is used to transport bodies to the Cook County Morgue, said Scanlan.

A committee recommendation will be considered in preparation of the 1975-76 city budget covering the fiscal year starting May 1. Scanlan said City Mgr. James Watson likely will prepare the first draft of the budget for city council review in December.

The city declined an offer earlier this year from Palatine Township for a $1,538 share of the township's federal revenue-sharing funds to have been used in the paramedic program. City officials said the township funds technically could be used only to serve Palatine Township residents. The city borders extend into Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships. The committee suggested the township use the funds to lower its own taxes, rather than sharing them with municipalities which receive their own revenue-sharing allotments. Mayor Roland J. Meyer also urged the council to decline the gift, calling it a "hand out."

and saying he is not gaining financially because of his public office.

"To my knowledge, the activities of the mayor in that corporation do not constitute a conflict of interest," said Rose. Such a conflict arises when a government official buys or sells property, merchandise, equipment or services to the agency in which he holds office, and when the official has voting power over that agency's contract to buy or sell, said Rose.

The law states, "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws or constitution of this state, may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly, in his own name or in the name of any other person, association, trust or corporation, in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or

THE NATIONAL CENTER for Disease Control reports a "significant" outbreak of Port Chalmers Flu is expected in most parts of the nation for the flu season, which normally runs from November to February.

Dr. Rasmussen recommends persons more than 65 years old and the chronically ill should get flu shots as soon as possible because it takes a while for the vaccine to take effect. She added she doesn't know how badly the flu will affect persons in the Midwest since it partly depends on when the last outbreak of this type of flu occurred. The mid-Atlantic and Northeast areas of the country are not expected to be hit hard because they had outbreaks of Type A flu last winter.

Flu bugs are transmitted from person to person, Dr. Rasmussen said, and usually brought to this country by travelers. O'Hare Airport is a logical place where flu bug carriers pass through but no special precautions are taken to check the disease.

Meanwhile, area doctors have enough vaccine available to handle any major flu problems. The cost of a flu shot by a physician is about $5 to $7, they say.

MSD still wants to omit village from tunnel plan

Metropolitan Sanitary District trustees Tuesday toughened their stand against including the Village of Palatine in the district's massive tunnel and reservoir plan.

Trustees appeared largely unwayed by arguments made by Palatine officials during a stormy session with MSD engineers.

If Palatine is omitted from the tunnel system, local taxpayers will be faced with an $11.1 million to $12.7 million bill to separate combined sewers in the older section of the village.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones implored MSD trustees to share the cost of separating the sewers. "We're not looking for a free ride," he said. "We're looking for a reasonable settlement."

THE TRUSTEES, HOWEVER, with the exception of Joanne Alter, appeared firm in their intention to leave Palatine out of the tunnel system. The system is designed to solve flooding and water pollution problems by building reservoirs and digging deep tunnels.

Mrs. Alter said she would attempt to postpone a vote on the tunnel-reservoir plan scheduled for Thursday in order to compare the cost of building separate sewers to the cost of enlarging the existing combined sanitary and storm sewer system.

However, other sanitary district trustees indicated their minds already are made up. Trustee Valentine Janicki said he would vote to drop Palatine from the tunnel system, and urged village officials to seek a federal grant to help finance separation of combined sewers.

Trustee James C. Kirie questioned whether the MSD could provide financial assistance to Palatine without short-changing other suburbs that are footing bills to upgrade sewer systems on their own.

JONES REPEATED a threat to remove Palatine from the sanitary district and raised anew the possibility of filing legal action to prevent the village from being dropped from the tunnel system. He charged that the MSD is discriminating against the village by denying relief while solving combined sewer problems for nearby Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines.

Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig concurred. "If we were two communities to the south you would solve our problem," he said. "Why should we be second class citizens?"

MSD Chief Engineer Forrest C. Nell countered that Palatine taxpayers already are benefiting from more than their share of MSD services. He cited construction of the Salt Creek sewage treatment plant in Schaumburg Township and $6 million in land purchases for the Upper Salt Creek Watershed plan in saying: "We have spent more money in the Salt Creek Valley than in any other area of the district. Now you want us to spend more?"

MSD ENGINEERS have contended that leaving Palatine in the tunnel-reservoir plan could jeopardize grants for the entire system. Both federal and state grants to provide 75 per cent of the tunnel costs are dependent on the "most cost effective" solution to the combined sewer problem.

The combined sewer area of Palatine is an irregularly-shaped area bounded roughly by Northwest Highway on the north, Gilbert Street on the south, Cedar Street on the west and Rohlwing Road on the east.

Palatine originally had been included in the MSD's tunnel-reservoir plan, but MSD engineers recommended dropping the village from the plan after studies showed separate sewers would be a cheaper solution than extending the tunnel.

Two Palatine residents were among 545 undergraduate students to receive degrees from the University of Illinois Chicago Circle Campus this spring.

Censors no more

A historic library that's keeping up with the times

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Mabel Ellering has been on the Palatine Library Board for more than a decade and remembers when the librarians used to censor books for sex and four-letter words.

In the early 1960s the library considered itself "the community's custodian of books." Also, Palatine's 9,000 residents were limited to take out two books for a two-week period, and the library board used to record its minutes in handwriting, Mrs. Ellering said.

The Palatine library has changed considerably in the 11 years that Mrs. Ellering has served as the board's president, secretary and present treasurer.

THE FORMATION of a library district, the construction of a new library, and the expanding of information sources are a part of the library's plans to serve the village's population of 28,000.

"It used to be the only people who used books in the library were students and when the kinds of reading material that the public was interested in was very limited," Mrs. Ellering said.

"Nowadays the community reads everything and all ages are interested in knowing about a wide variety of things. Parents no longer expect the librarian to serve as the censor of library books, and they realize that censorship begins in the home."

MRS. ELLERING HAS observed the change of the library's function in a community where the residents are better-read, are more highly educated and have more complex positions than they did 11 years ago.

The new library under construction at Benton Street and Northwest Highway will offer space for the use of visual aid equipment and resources, expanded magazine and book collections, and meeting areas that are unavailable in the library's present location.

A converted house at 149 N. Brockway St. now houses the library's 60,000 books and its periodical and record collection. The library intends to develop film, slide and art collections and make film and slide projectors available when the new library opens next June.

"Ten years ago it was unheard of that a library would offer these kinds of facilities because information was generally relayed through the book or magazine and that is all that people relied on," Mrs. Ellering said.

THE FACT THAT people have learned to rely on a "variety of media" for information has demanded that the library change its role, she said.

"I would like to see the new library become the hub of the community as I know it can. We can bring people into the library who wouldn't normally come to read books for other activities like meetings, craft classes, films and lectures with the new library's facilities," Mrs. Ellering said.

The library has "definitely developed" since it began serving the village 51 years ago, she said.

The library's first 300 books were contributed by Palatine's 2,000 residents in a Boy Scout service project in 1920. The library opened in September 1923, housed in a rear room of the H. C. Mathei Store that was furnished with 12 chairs, two tables and two oak wood shelves, according to newspaper accounts and written histories of the library available.

THE LIBRARY BEGAN taxing residents 1.8 cents per $100 assessed valuation in April 1923, after a library tax referendum was approved. In the days when Sinclair Lewis' "Babbitt" was on the bestseller list, and when Zane Grey was a favorite author of most Palatine housewives, the library prospered on a yearly budget of $700.

Following the Depression years, the library knew two other homes: one was a converted house at 55 W. Wood St. and another was the lower floor of the Palatine Masonic Lodge.

MABEL ELLERING, 11-year Palatine library member, recalls the library in the early 1960s, when "censorship of book orders" was exercised by the librarians, and cassette and recorded collections were unheard of.

by JOE SWICKARD

"I am so happy. There were millions of responses. I don't have time for my children or my housework, but I don't care because so many people have been just so good," said Maria McGowan.

Mrs. McGowan, 1014 Crab Tree Dr., Arlington Heights, has been overwhelmed with gifts and offers of aid for victims of hurricane Fifi that blasted through her native Honduras two weeks ago since the story of her relief efforts appeared in The Herald Friday.

With most communications cut off to her homeland, Mrs. McGowan had been unable to learn the fate of her family, which lives in San Pedro Sula, hard hit by the storm and floods that followed. Rather than spend her days stymied with worry, she began collecting food and clothing for the thousands of Hondurans left destitute.

Maria McGowan

IN THE MIDST of the offers for Honduras came a personal one for Mrs. McGowan from Frank Atchison of Wheeling.

"I called Mrs. McGowan and asked her if she had been in contact with any ham radio operators to try to get in touch with her family," said Atchison, an amateur radio operator for five years.

"Mr. Atchison in Wheeling got through to Honduras and my family is all right. I can't believe it," Mrs. McGowan said, her voice cracking.

Atchison said he reached a woman operator in Honduras through an international amateur-radio network based in Miami. The woman, it turned out, worked with one of Mrs. McGowan's brothers and the word was they were alive.

Atchison's efforts for Mrs. McGowan are not finished yet, he said.

"Wednesday I have the relay scheduled with the operator so I can contact her mother directly," he said, adding that until Monday no personal messages were allowed through because of the emergency food and medical priorities.

MRS. MCGOWAN'S message did not stop there. The officers and wives at Glenview Naval Air Station heard the plea for help.

"We had an abundance of clothes at the thrift shop run by the officers' wives and we didn't know what to do with them. I saw the story of Mrs. McGowan in the paper and said why don't we donate them to Honduras," said Mrs. Stephanie Dunlavy of Buffalo Grove.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Dunlavy and Dottie Berk of Mount Prospect, the thrift shop's donation swelled to fill 15 boxes with clothing.

"We started out with primarily women's clothes but when we were finished we had clothes for just about everyone," said Mrs. Dunlavy.

THE BASE'S involvement does not end there, though. This morning at 10 a.m.

the Marine Air Reserve stationed there will fly out 30,000 to 35,000 pounds of food and clothes to New Orleans, where it will be forwarded to Honduras.

Maj. Greg Lee of Palatine, the operations officer, said the flight is being made with the cooperation of the Honduran Consulate and will double as a training mission. Another flight is tentatively planned for next week if details with Marine Command in Washington and the State Dept. are worked out.

"I can't believe this," Mrs. McGowan said. "We've had to move everything to the garage so we could walk in the house. All the churches have gotten behind us and all the people. One lady gave $200 worth of food. All these people wanting to help. I just can't believe it."

"I want to thank you so much. You have saved my life."

Rolling Meadows official's practice 'not illegal'

by NANCY COWGER

A corporation owned by Mayor Roland J. Meyer of Rolling Meadows is using city equipment in sales demonstrations for its customers, a Herald investigation has disclosed.

The company, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., was started last December by Meyer and two associates, Harry Triunfo of Pompano Beach, Fla., and Eugene E. Camplin, 4502 Sycamore Ln., Rolling Meadows.

Since then, the firm's customers have been shown city equipment at the city garage, 3200 Central Rd., and have examined trash-compacting mechanisms in garbage trucks and in the city compactor station during special tours.

The equipment, purchased before Meyer's company was formed, is "identical" to equipment now distributed by the firm.

Meyer refused to discuss sales volume or previous customers, saying, "It's none of your business" but adding, "I didn't go into business to lose money." A spokesman for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., whose equipment Meyer sells, described Meyer's firm as a "successful operation," but referred specific questions on finances to Meyer.

POTENTIAL CUSTOMERS representing the municipality of Griffith, Ind., plan to visit Rolling Meadows this week or next. Glen Heyome, public works director for the Indiana community, said he hopes to examine everything from the compacting mechanism on city trucks to Rolling Meadows' records of manpower and operation costs.

The tour will be conducted by James McFeggan, former Rolling Meadows public works director, who quit that job two years ago. McFeggan now works as a salesman for Midwest Environmental Systems.

The city bought its three trucks in 1969

Roland J. Meyer

from St. Regis Paper Co. at $10,000 per vehicle, adding a compactor station in 1971 at a $103,000 cost. The total refuse system was originally proposed by McFeggan. Rolling Meadows' trucks used Mercedes Benz chassis, but Orbital's have American-made chassis. Both have German-made bodies.

WHEN THE CITY bought its trucks, the garbage system had been in use in Germany for 18 years, but it was new in the U.S. McFeggan recently said Rolling Meadows had "the first complete system of this type in the Western Hemisphere."

Midwest Environmental Systems Inc. has never purchased anything from or sold anything to the City of Rolling Meadows, said Meyer. If he brings prospective customers to city buildings to study the city's equipment, so do other salesmen, and he and McFeggan are treated no differently than any other sales representative, said Meyer. He said he has asked for no favors and received none.

Meyer's other business venture, R. J. Meyer & Co., a scrap paper brokerage firm, has not held any city sales or purchase contracts, he said. Meyer also is a self-employed private investigator.

Meyer said his business activities do not violate state conflict of interest or ethics laws. City Atty. Donald M. Rose, whom Meyer consulted before establishing the business, said there is no apparent violation of the law. A spokesman for the State's Attorney's Office agreed.

MEYER LAUGHED at any question of a conflict of interest, citing advice of Rose as his assurance no conflict exists, and saying he is not gaining financially because of his public office.

"To my knowledge, the activities of the mayor in that corporation do not constitute a conflict of interest," said Rose. Such a conflict arises when a governmental official buys or sells property, merchandise, equipment or services to the agency in which he holds office, and when the official has voting power over that agency's contract to buy or sell, said Rose.

The law states, "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws or constitution of this state, may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly, in his own name or in the name of any other person, association, trust or corporation, in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or vote."

GARBAGE TRUCKS in Rolling Meadows draw admirers from across the country to view their compactors and

Track will get break on development rules

by KURT BAER

Land development at Arlington Park Race Track will proceed according to standards substantially different from those that apply to other properties in Arlington Heights, despite the expiration of the race track's annexation agreement Oct. 20.

The ordinance establishing zoning for the race track property and waiving height restrictions on buildings there will continue after the agreement lapses, unless it is amended by village board action, said Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel.

It remains uncertain whether that ordinance and the five-year-old annexation agreement will force village officials to approve a 5,000-unit housing development plan the race track has submitted. The plan, which includes 12 three-story buildings, is still pending before a special committee of the village board and plan commission.

BUT, SIEGEL SAID, "There is a substantial difference in the standards that will apply to development of this property."

The village board voted unanimously Monday night not to extend the annexation agreement with Arlington Park past its Oct. 20 expiration date. After the agreement lapses, the 400-acre race track complex will be a permanent part of Arlington Heights and will lose many of the special protections it has enjoyed while under the contract.

According to Siegel, the following conditions, all enumerated in the annexation agreement, will expire after Oct. 20:

- The obligation of the village to issue additional liquor licenses for Arlington Park, at a fee not higher than the 1969 rate. The race track may request additional licenses, however, the village is no longer bound to approve such an application.

- The obligation of the race track to provide, without cost, land for the village to build police and fire substations.

- The village's waiver of the right of eminent domain over race track property. Arlington Heights had agreed not to condemn any property at Arlington Park for the life of the annexation agreement.

- The waiver of subdivision requirements and the extension of preliminary plans of subdivision from the usual one to three years.

- The village's agreement to accept letters of credit rather than cash bonds for public improvements at the race track.

- The freezing of all ordinances, building codes, permit fees, sewer and water charges at 1969 standards, and the promise not to impose any new charges, taxes or other restrictions on race track operations.

- Arlington Park's commitment to donate a school site, or $50 for each apartment unit to be built at the race track. Development at Arlington Park may still be subject to Arlington Heights' land dedication ordinance, which requires public land contributions or cash in lieu of land from builders.

- The village's promise not to oppose night thoroughbred racing at Arlington Park.

- The village's obligation to supply additional water and sewer lines to the race track if requested, and to take over operation of water and sewer systems on the race track property. And the village's agreement to pay an appraised value for race track wells, pumps and reservoirs.

Siegel said the clause in the agreement permitting the race track to disannex from Arlington Heights if the village were to break any of the terms of the annexation has become moot. Arlington Heights has not breached the contract and the race track does not have time to furnish the 60 days' notice of any such offense as required by the agreement, he said.

Hanging in the balance is the future of the housing plan Arlington Park has submitted for village approval.

Village board to award pact for repaving

The Palatine Village Board will hold a special meeting Thursday night to award a contract for repaving work to be completed before winter on portions of Illinois Avenue and Colfax Street.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. at the Village Hall, 54 S. Brockway Ave., to award Arrow Road Construction Co. of Mount Prospect the $60,680 contract for the repaving work on both roads. Repaving will be done on Colfax Street, between Smith and Clinton streets. A portion of Smith Street, 130 feet north and 277 feet south of Colfax Street, also will be repaved in the project. Illinois Avenue will be repaved between Plum Grove and Quentin roads.

Public bids were opened by the village for the repaving of the two roads Tuesday. Arrow Road Construction Co. was the low bidder.

'Fantasia' high school homecoming theme

'Disneyland' in our own backyards!

The world of Walt Disney has come to Palatine High School this week as students celebrate homecoming with the theme "Fantasia," after the famous animated motion picture.

Disney characters will appear on homemade floats at a parade Friday afternoon. Dumbo, the flying elephant will carry out the theme of the school choir float, "Crush Those Vikings," and the drama club float will advertise the school's fall play, "The Miracle Worker."

Eight floats and four decorated cars will appear in the parade along with pompon girls, baton twirlers, cheerleaders and the Palatine High School and Winston Park Junior High School bands. Parade marshal will be High School Dist. 211 Supt. Richard Kolze.

THE PARADE WILL begin at 3 p.m. at the school, 150 E. Wood St., and will go south on Oak Street, west on Slade Street, follow the railroad tracks to Broadway Street and then back to Wood Street and the school.

Homecoming festivities will reach a climax Friday night as the Palatine Pirates meet the Fremd High School Vikings. The two Palatine schools are traditional rivals and neither has won a game yet this year.

The homecoming queen will be presented at 1:30 p.m. Friday during the royal rally. Candidates are seniors Jill Caudill, Vicki Murdock, Karen Robbins and Mary Jo Ryther. Each of the other classes will have four attendants to the queen. They are juniors Barbara Dow, Marilyn Fisher, Debbie Stowe and Karen Westermann; sophomores Sara Lynch, Peggy Ryther, Gail Saladino and Jane Semler, and freshmen Valerie Karroll, Carolyn Christopher, Lisa Christensen and Karen Forbes.

The queen and her court also will be presented at 7:30 p.m. during the football game and will preside over the homecoming dance from 8 to 11 p.m. Saturday in the school cafeteria.

This winter's flu bug different—and more deadly

Elderly, ill may be especially susceptible to Port Chalmers strain, but there is a vaccine for it

It's coming out of New Zealand this winter, supposedly packing a bigger punch than usual and more potential for killing large numbers of people, especially the elderly and the chronically ill.

The annual flu season is approaching and reports that a deadlier strain of influenza is heading this way is being downplayed by the Cook County Dept. of Public Health.

Dr. Colette Rasmussen, chief of the division of preventive medicine, said that it is too early to tell exactly what kind of flu will hit the Chicago area or how widespread it will be.

Explaining that it is more important to determine the potency of a flu bug rather than what kind it is, Dr. Rasmussen predicted that if an epidemic hits the Midwest this year it likely would be caused by a Type A, or deadlier form of bug, as opposed to the Type B more common to this area.

The Type A expected is something called Port Chalmers Flu, initially located in New Zealand last year. It is similar to the London Flu that swept the United States in late 1972 and early 1973, causing more than 1,000 deaths a week at its peak.

THE NATIONAL CENTER for Disease Control reports a "significant" outbreak of Port Chalmers Flu is expected in most parts of the nation for the flu season, which normally runs from November to February.

Dr. Rasmussen recommends persons more than 65 years old and the chronically ill should get flu shots as soon as possible because it takes a while for the vaccine to take effect. She added she doesn't know how badly the flu will affect persons in the Midwest since it partly depends on when the last outbreak of this type of flu occurred. The mid-Atlantic and Northeast areas of the country are not expected to be hit hard because they had outbreaks of Type A flu last winter.

Flu bugs are transmitted from person to person, Dr. Rasmussen said, and usually brought to this country by travelers. O'Hare Airport is a logical place where flu bug carriers pass through but no special precautions are taken to check the disease.

Meanwhile, area doctors have enough vaccine available to handle any major flu problems. The cost of a flu shot by a physician is about $5 to $7, they say.

'No-referendum' library approved despite protests

by LYNN ASINOF

A group of about 30 Mount Prospect residents Tuesday night demonstrated against construction of a new public library and then were joined by dozens of other protesters at a village board meeting where a bond issue for the library was being considered.

Despite support from Trustee Richard N. Hendricks, the residents' request for a referendum on the issue was roundly defeated in a 6 to 1 board vote.

Hendricks moved for a reversal of the board's decision to issue bonds under the village's home rule powers after more than a dozen residents called for a referendum.

At Herald press time, the board had not decided on the size of the bond issue, which had been discussed in amounts ranging from $3 million to $4 million. The library is to be built on the Central School site at Central Road and Main Street.

HENDRICKS SUPPORTED the residents' committee, which was hastily formed over the weekend, saying that the village "cannot afford this particular bond issue" because of a recent $2 million flood control bond sale.

Moreover, Hendricks said, he disagreed that a referendum on the library would pass. "In my opinion, if this did go to the people of Mount Prospect, this issue would fail," he said.

The trustee said the residents are being taxed enough, and said that the library could be considered a luxury item.

Church exec to speak

The chief executive of the Assemblies of God will speak Oct. 6 at Northwest Assembly of God, 900 N. Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect.

The Rev. Thomas F. Zimmerman, who has been general superintendent of the Assemblies of God since 1960, will speak at 7 p.m. He is actively involved with many phases of the church.

The board previously had voted on the recommendation of Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten to bypass a referendum and save the expense of a special election.

Residents who filled the board room applauded Hendricks loudly and booed two residents who spoke in favor of the new library.

WHEN THE VOTE was taken, residents tried to continue debating the issue. The microphone, however, was cut off by Mayor Robert D. Teichert while committee spokesman Ed DuPlessis was speaking and residents grumbled and made catcalls as they left the board chamber.

Objectors to the new library grew more vocal as the session progressed. In the demonstration, they had earlier made sure that their picketing complied with village ordinances. The group was carefully limited in size to comply with an ordinance that requires permits for gatherings of more than 20 persons.

Only 12 picket signs were distributed among the protesters to help control the number of persons marching in front of the present library building at 14 E. Busse Ave.

Most of the picketers said they were opposed to the village board's not calling a referendum, although many said they did not think the money should be spent under current economic conditions.

The group ranged in makeup from senior citizens to school children.

Prior to the vote, Teichert restated his objections to referenda, saying elected officials must make their own decisions.

THE MAYOR SAID the village receives requests for referenda about once a month. He said that the people speak through their elected officials and not through referenda. "As long as I am an elected official, I will never vote for a referendum," Teichert said, saying he saw no governmental abuse in bypassing a referendum.

He said if people want a more direct voice in government, they can change from a republican to a democratic form of government.

PICKETERS MARCHED Tuesday night in front of the village library to demonstrate opposition to a new library bond issue. They called for a referendum vote on the bond issue, approved later. "As long as I'm an elected official, I'll never vote for a referendum," Mayor Robert Teichert said.

Housing needed, but not retail space

Downtown Mount Prospect has growth potential for multi-family housing and limited office development but is overbuilt with retail space.

That was the finding of a market analysis submitted Tuesday night to the village's ad hoc downtown planning committee.

"As far as the market goes, everything looks good for residential (development)," said Joan Walker, president of Property Consultants Inc. Her firm is one of two consultants hired at a total cost of $30,000 to prepare studies of the downtown area.

Mrs. Walker said apartments within walking distance of the commuter railroad stations are "almost completely unavailable in Chicago's North and Northwest suburbs." She added the closest such residential development would be the Wheaton Center in Wheaton.

SHE ESTIMATED THAT the village could absorb about 50 apartments a year in the downtown area. Discussions of locations were not mentioned, as that comes in the next two phases of the firm's study. However, high-rise apartments above commercial establishments was discussed as a possibility for the downtown area, which is considered as the triangle of property formed by Central Road, Maple Street and Prospect Avenue.

An estimated 10,000 square feet of office space was suggested for the downtown area, although more could be accommodated if a firm that would occupy most of the building would construct a larger office structure.

Mrs. Walker spoke most strongly on the retail aspect of the study. "We cannot recommend any more retail space for the downtown. It's just overbuilt in every retail category," she said.

ANY FURTHER retail expansion would only be drawing sales dollars from other retail areas in the village," she said. "The best thing would be to work with the retail that is here and strengthen it," she added. "It must be very hard on the merchants that are here already."

The market study was somewhat of a disappointment to the committee. Chairman Robert Bennett said, "What you are telling us isn't what we wanted to hear." He added that the report was not totally negative, however.

by JOE SWICKARD

"I am so happy. There were millions of responses. I don't have time for my children or my housework, but I don't care because so many people have been just so good," said Maria McGowan.

Mrs. McGowan, 1014 Crab Tree Dr., Arlington Heights, has been overwhelmed with gifts and offers of aid for victims of hurricane Fifi that blasted through her native Honduras two weeks ago since the story of her relief efforts appeared in The Herald Friday.

With most communications cut off to her homeland, Mrs. McGowan had been unable to learn the fate of her family, which lives in San Pedro Sula, hard hit by the storm and floods that followed. Rather than spend her days stymied with worry, she began collecting food and clothing for the thousands of Hondurans left destitute.

Maria McGowan

IN THE MIDST OF the offers for Honduras came a personal one for Mrs. McGowan from Frank Atchison of Wheeling.

"I called Mrs. McGowan and asked her if she had been in contact with any ham radio operators to try to get in touch with her family," said Atchison, an amateur radio operator for five years.

"Mr. Atchison in Wheeling got through to Honduras and my family is all right. I can't believe it," Mrs. McGowan said, her voice cracking.

Atchison said he reached a woman operator in Honduras through an international amateur-radio network based in Miami. The woman, it turned out, worked with one of Mrs. McGowan's brothers and the word was they were alive.

Atchison's efforts for Mrs. McGowan are not finished yet, he said.

"Wednesday I have the relay scheduled with the operator so I can contact her mother directly," he said, adding that until Monday no personal messages were allowed through because of the emergency food and medical priorities.

MRS. MCGOWAN'S message did not stop there. The officers and wives at Glenview Naval Air Station heard the plea for help.

"We had an abundance of clothes at the thrift shop run by the officers' wives and we didn't know what to do with them. I saw the story of Mrs. McGowan in the paper and said why don't we donate them to Honduras," said Mrs. Stephanie Dunlavy of Buffalo Grove.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Dunlavy and Dottie Berk of Mount Prospect, the thrift shop's donation swelled to fill 15 boxes with clothing.

"We started out with primarily women's clothes but when we were finished we had clothes for just about everyone," said Mrs. Dunlavy.

THE BASE'S involvement does not end there, though. This morning at 10 a.m.

the Marine Air Reserve stationed there will fly out 30,000 to 35,000 pounds of food and clothes to New Orleans, where it will be forwarded to Honduras.

Maj. Greg Lee of Palatine, the operations officer, said the flight is being made with the cooperation of the Honduran Consulate and will double as a training mission. Another flight is tentatively planned for next week if details with Marine Command in Washington and the State Dept. are worked out.

"I can't believe this," Mrs. McGowan said. "We've had to move everything to the garage so we could walk in the house. All the churches have gotten behind us and all the people. One lady gave $200 worth of food. All these people wanting to help. I just can't believe it."

Tom Tayler rugged at rugby

The new assistant director for the Mount Prospect Park District, Tom Tayler, is quite a guy! He spent last weekend at Montrose Park on the north side of Chicago participating in the Chicago Invitational Tournament of Rugby. He picked up interest in the sport while in the Fiji Islands with the Peace Corps.

This past summer, Tayler sailed a 21-foot sailboat across Lake Superior, over to Isle Royale, Mich.

A WHILE AGO, Bert Nyberg, publicity man for the Hersey High School band, sent out color brochures telling about the musicians and their accomplishments. It was an effort to drum up fund-raising projects to help pay for the group's trip to the Rose Bowl parade.

One brochure went to Michigan State University and a response came from them. It seems that the MSU band will be in our area on Friday, Nov. 1, and "would be glad to perform or whatever" to help.

Well, it develops that Nov. 1 could be quite a night for Hersey! If Hersey manages to take the North Division football title, they would meet the South Division winner in the Mid Suburban Conference championship game that night. And the Michigan State marching band could be on hand to perform!

Yippee! Worst part of work on Euclid Avenue completed

The biggest traffic headache is over for residents affected by the Euclid Avenue construction between Wolf and River roads in Mount Prospect.

County highway department officials said Tuesday the three-quarter-mile stretch is open to local traffic. Paving has been completed, although the road is not open to through traffic.

The widening of Euclid to a four-lane roadway has created numerous problems for residents in the area. Motorists have been forced to detour around the area since April when the road was closed at the railroad tracks. As work progressed, and the road was torn up, many residents had to use side streets to get to their homes because the main roads were impassable.

Highway department spokesman Francine B. Stuart said residents will not have the same access problem now that the paving of this section has been completed. She said, however, there will still be some traffic inconveniences because the contractor must install curbs and gutters, drainage and median strips.

CONTRACTORS ARE scheduled to complete work on the three-quarter-mile section early next year, but Miss Stuart said that a change in weather could delay the work even more.

The work originally was scheduled for completion this month. Miss Stuart said contractors are about three months behind schedule as a result of the nine-week cement truckdrivers' strike this summer.

Residents also can expect some relief from the traffic problems caused by construction at the intersection of Euclid Avenue and River Road. Contractors have completed the paving of the east side of River Road and have begun working on the west side of the road.

The intersection is being widened to allow a left turn lane, and curbs and gutters are being installed.

WORK ON THIS part of the project is scheduled for completion before the end of the year. Miss Stuart said that poor weather could also delay this work.

The project is part of an over-all plan to widen Euclid-Lake from Wolf Road in Mount Prospect east to Milwaukee Avenue near the Tri-State Tollway, then continuing east to a point between Landwehr and Pfingsten roads near Glenview.

The first phase of the work is being done by Rossi Contractors, Northlake, for $2.1 million. The total project is expected to cost $4 million.

MELTED ICE CREAM BARS were used by vandals Saturday to smear the front of the Prospect Heights Public Library, 12 N. Elm St. Library Board president Margaret Lusk, walks through the mess. She has offered a reward to find those responsible for the vandalism that has plagued the library.

Offer $3,000 reward for library vandals

The "ice-creaming" of the Prospect Heights Public Library Saturday night has prompted Library Board Pres. Margaret Lusk to offer a reward for finding the vandals who have done $3,000 damage to the building during the last two years.

Mrs. Lusk said melted ice cream bars, mixed with candy, was used to smear several windows and doors and was poured down the book return slot, damaging more than a dozen books.

Other acts of vandalism at the building, 12 N. Elm St., have included the breaking of all front windows and several thermopane windows, as well as outside lights.

"It is really getting out of hand," Mrs. Lusk said. "It is so discouraging when the community has such a nice building and they are paying taxes for it. It is disgusting."

She said the library has been put on an added security list, which means Sheriff's Police patrol the area more often. Mrs. Lusk said several residents living near the library have told her they see youths congregating in the area often, around midnight.

The only solution Mrs. Lusk could suggest was that the library hire a night-guard. However, she added the library board did not have enough tax money to hire a guard.

Drug suspect arrested in village courtroom

A 20-year-old Belleville, Ill., man was arrested Tuesday in the Mount Prospect branch of the Illinois Circuit Court.

John Pease was arrested on two outstanding warrants issued on behalf of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group. Pease is charged with the delivery of heroin on Sept. 4 in Stone Park, Ill., and with possession of a hypodermic syringe and needles.

Police said Pease had been in Mount Prospect court appearing for a state traffic citation. He was turned over to MEG agents and his new bond was set at $30,000 for the two charges.

The arrest was made by Patrolman Robert Barone, a Mount Prospect public liaison officer.

Village wants school windows boarded up

Mount Prospect Building Director Buell Dutton said he has asked that the village file suit against the owners of the old Central School for failing to board up windows in the 47-year-old building.

"We've turned that over to the village attorney and asked that he file a suit against them," Dutton said.

The building director said he last notified owners of the property, including Alexander Magnus, two weeks ago that they would either have to tear down the building or board it up properly. He said he turned the matter over to the village attorney last week.

River Trails parks get U.S. grant—$370,620

The River Trails Park District has received a $370,620 federal grant for partial reimbursement for its purchase of half of the Rob Roy Driving Range.

Plans for spending the money on general district improvements will be made during the winter. The grant was approved in May 1972. The total cost of the driving range, on Euclid Avenue west of Wolf Road, was $750,000.

"We have no definite plans yet," said Marvin Weiss, park director. He added that the money has been invested in six-month certificates of deposits at a bank.

The district's tentative plans for at least part of the money call for a new maintenance garage, one outer wall of which will be used for three outdoor handball courts if possible. Weiss said the neighborhood parks will get playground equipment, which they do not now have, and there will be "a great deal" of landscaping.

Other tentative plans call for an addition to the park office on Burning Bush Lane. Six tennis courts are under construction at Tamarack and Sycamore parks. Weiss said the district will welcome suggestions from residents on possible park improvements.

"This (grant) is a very sizable development in the park district history," Weiss said.

This winter's flu bug different—and more deadly

Elderly, ill may be especially susceptible to Port Chalmers strain, but there is a vaccine for it

It's coming out of New Zealand this winter, supposedly packing a bigger punch than usual and more potential for killing large numbers of people, especially the elderly and the chronically ill.

The annual flu season is approaching and reports that a deadlier strain of influenza is heading this way is being downplayed by the Cook County Dept. of Public Health.

Dr. Colette Rasmussen, chief of the division of preventive medicine, said that it is too early to tell exactly what kind of flu will hit the Chicago area or how widespread it will be.

Explaining that it is more important to determine the potency of a flu bug rather than what kind it is, Dr. Rasmussen predicted that if an epidemic hits the Midwest this year it likely would be caused by a Type A, or deadlier form of bug, as opposed to the Type B more common to this area.

The Type A expected is something called Port Chalmers Flu, initially located in New Zealand last year. It is similar to the London Flu that swept the United States in late 1972 and early 1973, causing more than 1,000 deaths a week at its peak.

THE NATIONAL CENTER for Disease Control reports a "significant" outbreak of Port Chalmers Flu is expected in most parts of the nation for the flu season, which normally runs from November to February.

Dr. Rasmussen recommends persons more than 65 years old and the chronically ill should get flu shots as soon as possible because it takes a while for the vaccine to take effect. She added she doesn't know how badly the flu will affect persons in the Midwest since it partly depends on when the last outbreak of this type of flu occurred. The mid-Atlantic and Northeast areas of the country are not expected to be hit hard because they had outbreaks of Type A flu last winter.

Flu bugs are transmitted from person to person, Dr. Rasmussen said, and usually brought to this country by travelers. O'Hare Airport is a logical place where flu bug carriers pass through but no special precautions are taken to check the disease.

Meanwhile, area doctors have enough vaccine available to handle any major flu problems. The cost of a flu shot by a physician is about $5 to $7, they say.

Under terms of annexation agreement

Race track will get break in building regulations

by KURT BAER

Land development at Arlington Park Race Track will proceed according to standards substantially different from those that apply to other properties in Arlington Heights, despite the expiration of the race track's annexation agreement Oct. 20.

The ordinance establishing zoning for the race track property and waiving height restrictions on buildings there will continue after the agreement lapses, unless it is amended by village board action, said Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel.

It remains uncertain whether that ordinance and the five-year-old annexation agreement will force village officials to approve a 3,000-unit housing development plan the race track has submitted. The plan, which includes 12 three-story buildings, is still pending before a special committee of the village board and plan commission.

BUT, SIEGEL SAID, "There is a substantial difference in the standards that will apply to development of this property."

The village board voted unanimously Monday night not to extend the annexation agreement with Arlington Park past its Oct. 20 expiration date. After the agreement lapses, the 400-acre race track complex will be a permanent part of Arlington Heights and will lose many of the special protections it has enjoyed while under the contract.

According to Siegel, the following conditions, all enumerated in the annexation agreement, will expire after Oct. 20:

- The obligation of the village to issue additional liquor licenses for Arlington Park, at a fee not higher than the 1969 rate. The race track may request additional licenses, however, the village is no longer bound to approve such an application.

- The obligation of the race track to provide, without cost, land for the village to build police and fire substations.

- The village's waiver of the right of eminent domain over race track property. Arlington Heights had agreed not to condemn any property at Arlington Park for the life of the annexation agreement.

- The waiver of subdivision requirements and the extension of preliminary plats of subdivision from the usual one to three years.

- The village's agreement to accept letters of credit rather than cash bonds for public improvements at the race track.

- The freezing of all ordinances, building codes, permit fees, sewer and water charges at 1969 standards, and the promise not to impose any new charges, taxes or other restrictions on race track operations.

- Arlington Park's commitment to donate a school site, or $50 for each apartment unit to be built at the race track. Development at Arlington Park may still be subject to Arlington Heights' land dedication ordinance, which requires public land contributions or cash in lieu of land from builders.

- The village's promise not to oppose night thoroughbred racing at Arlington Park.

- The village's obligation to supply additional water and sewer lines to the race track if requested, and to take over operation of water and sewer systems on the race track property. And the village's agreement to pay an appraised value for race track wells, pumps and reservoirs.

Siegel said the clause in the agreement permitting the race track to disannex from Arlington Heights if the village were to break any of the terms of the annexation has become moot. Arlington Heights has not breached the contract and the race track does not have time to furnish the 60 days' notice of any such offense as required by the agreement, he said.

Hanging in the balance is the future of the housing plan Arlington Park has submitted for village approval.

WHILE THE RACE TRACK apparently is exempt from height limitations, and certain other building restrictions, it is not immune from the density limits that normally apply in Arlington Heights' multiple-family zoning district, Siegel said.

The number of units permitted depends on the total land area for the development and the number of bedrooms in each apartment unit.

Richard F. Babcock and R. Marlin Smith, attorneys for Arlington Park, have said they expect approval of the housing plan because it was filed before expiration of the annexation agreement.

Once a plan is filed, the annexation agreement states the village cannot "unreasonably withhold its approval."

BUT WHETHER the race track is entitled to automatic approval of the 5,000-unit plan it has submitted almost certainly will be the subject of meetings between Arlington Heights' special committee and the Richards Group of Illinois, prospective developer of the property.

"It is unreasonable for anybody opposing this project to expect that the race track is going to remain undeveloped," Trustee James T. Ryan told an audience of 150 residents who turned out Monday night for a public hearing on the proposed extension of the annexation agreement.

"That was never the thought in 1969. The thought then and now is that it would be developed in a reasonable fashion, and the burden is still on the village board to see that the property is developed in the manner that it should be," he said.

Federal funds bonanza awaits village

However, to get the money, the village

will have to grapple with a complex battery of federal guidelines, regulations, deadlines and liabilities, some of which were outlined to the village board Tuesday night.

Creation of a special steering committee that would identify a top-priority use for the money and a three-year development program was proposed by Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson. It was suggested that the committee include Vill-

Family of Honduran woman reported 'all right'

by JOE SWICKARD

"I am so happy. There were millions of responses. I don't have time for my children or my housework, but I don't care because so many people have been just so good," said Maria McGowan.

Mrs. McGowan, 1014 Crab Tree Dr., Arlington Heights, has been overwhelmed with gifts and offers of aid for victims of hurricane Fifi that blasted through her native Honduras two weeks ago since the story of her relief efforts appeared in The Herald Friday.

With most communications cut off to her homeland, Mrs. McGowan had been unable to learn the fate of her family, which lives in San Pedro Sula, hard hit by the storm and floods that followed. Rather than spend her days stymied with worry, she began collecting food and clothing for the thousands of Hondurans left destitute.

Maria McGowan

IN THE MIDST OF the offers for Honduras came a personal one for Mrs. McGowan from Frank Atchison of Wheeling.

"I called Mrs. McGowan and asked her if she had been in contact with any ham radio operators to try to get in touch with her family," said Atchison, an amateur radio operator for five years.

"Mr. Atchison in Wheeling got through to Honduras and my family is all right. I can't believe it," Mrs. McGowan said, her voice cracking.

Atchison said he reached a woman operator in Honduras through an international amateur-radio network based in Miami. The woman, it turned out, worked with one of Mrs. McGowan's brothers and the word was they were alive.

Atchison's efforts for Mrs. McGowan are not finished yet, he said.

"Wednesday I have the relay scheduled with the operator so I can contact her mother directly," he said, adding that until Monday no personal messages were allowed through because of the emergency food and medical priorities.

MRS. MCGOWAN'S message did not stop there. The officers and wives at Glenview Naval Air Station heard the plea for help.

"We had an abundance of clothes at the thrift shop run by the officers' wives and we didn't know what to do with them. I saw the story of Mrs. McGowan in the paper and said why don't we donate them to Honduras," said Mrs. Stephanie Dunlavy of Buffalo Grove.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Dunlavy and Dottie Berk of Mount Prospect, the thrift shop's donation swelled to fill 15 boxes with clothing.

"We started out with primarily women's clothes but when we were finished we had clothes for just about everyone," said Mrs. Dunlavy.

THE BASE'S involvement does not end there, though. This morning at 10 a.m.

the Marine Air Reserve stationed there will fly out 30,000 to 35,000 pounds of food and clothes to New Orleans, where it will be forwarded to Honduras.

Maj. Greg Lee of Palatine, the operations officer, said the flight is being made with the cooperation of the Honduran Consulate and will double as a training mission. Another flight is tentatively planned for next week if details with Marine Command in Washington and the State Dept. are worked out.

"I can't believe this," Mrs. McGowan said. "We've had to move everything to the garage so we could walk in the house. All the churches have gotten behind us and all the people. One lady gave $200 worth of food. All these people wanting to help. I just can't believe it."

"I want to thank you so much. You have saved my life."

Rolling Meadows mayor 'demonstrating' city gear

by NANCY COWGER

A corporation owned by Mayor Roland J. Meyer of Rolling Meadows is using city equipment in sales demonstrations for its customers, a Herald investigation has disclosed.

The company, Midwest Environmental Systems Inc., was started last December by Meyer and two associates, Harry Triunfo of Pompano Beach, Fla., and Eugene E. Campion, 4502 Sycamore Ln., Rolling Meadows.

Since then, the firm's customers have been shown city equipment at the city garage, 3200 Central Rd., and have examined trash-compacting mechanisms in garbage trucks and in the city compactor station during special tours.

The equipment, purchased before Meyer's company was formed, is "identical" to equipment now distributed by the firm.

Meyer refused to discuss sales volume or previous customers, saying, "It's none of your business" but adding, "I didn't go into business to lose money." A spokesman for Orbital Collection Systems Inc., whose equipment Meyer sells, described Meyer's firm as a "successful operation," but referred specific questions on finances to Meyer.

POTENTIAL CUSTOMERS representing the municipality of Griffith, Ind., plan to visit Rolling Meadows this week or next. Glen Reymore, public works director for the Indiana community, said he hopes to examine everything from the compacting mechanism on city trucks to Rolling Meadows' records of manpower and operation costs.

The tour will be conducted by James McFeggan, former Rolling Meadows public works director, who quit that job two years ago. McFeggan now works as a salesman for Midwest Environmental Systems.

The city bought its three trucks in 1969 from St. Regis Paper Co. at $10,000 per vehicle, adding a compactor station in 1971 at a $103,000 cost. The total refuse system was originally proposed by McFeggan. Rolling Meadows' trucks used Mercedes Benz chassis, but Orbital als have American-made chassis. Both have German-made bodies.

WHEN THE CITY bought its trucks, the garbage system had been in use in Germany for 18 years, but it was new in the U.S. McFeggan recently said Rolling Meadows had "the first complete system of this type in the Western Hemisphere."

Midwest Environmental Systems Inc. has never purchased anything from or sold anything to the City of Rolling Meadows, said Meyer. If he brings prospective customers to city buildings to study the city's equipment, so do other salesmen, and he and McFeggan are treated no differently than any other sales representative, said Meyer. He said he has asked for no favors and received none.

Meyer's other business venture, R. J. Meyer & Co., a scrap paper brokerage firm, has not held any city sales or purchase contracts, he said. Meyer also is a self-employed private investigator.

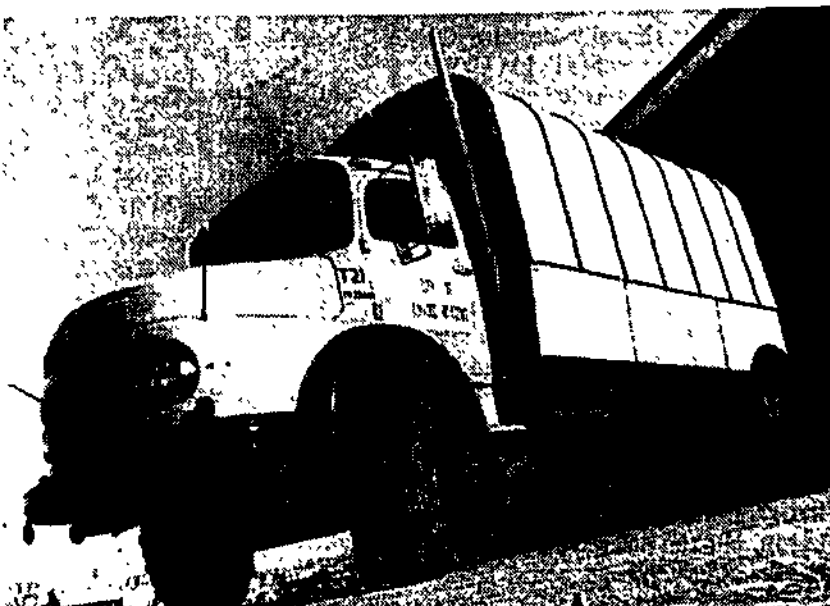

Meyer said his business activities do not violate state conflict of interest or ethics laws. City Atty. Donald M. Rose, whom Meyer consulted before establishing the business, said there is no apparent violation of the law. A spokesman for the State's Attorney's Office agreed.

MEYER LAUGHED at any question of a conflict of interest, citing advice of Rose as his assurance no conflict exists, and saying he is not gaining financially because of his public office.

"To my knowledge, the activities of the mayor in that corporation do not constitute a conflict of interest," said Rose. Such a conflict arises when a governmental official buys or sells property, merchandise, equipment or services to the agency in which he holds office, and when the official has voting power over that agency's contract to buy or sell, said Rose.

The law states, "No person holding any office, either by election or appointment under the laws or constitution of this state, may be in any manner interested, either directly or indirectly, in his own name or in the name of any other person, association, trust or corporation, in any contract or the performance of any work in the making or letting of which such officer may be called upon to act or vote."

GARBAGE TRUCKS in Rolling Meadows draw admirers from across the country to view their impact on the city. Some of the visitors also are customers of a corporation owned by Mayor Roland J. Meyer.

Trustees approve hospital bond sale

The Arlington Heights Village Board apparently is satisfied that a proposed $20.5 million hospital revenue-bond sale it is being asked to approve will not pose any liability to the village.

The trustees Monday night questioned William Kucera, attorney for Northwest Community Hospital, and Alex Cook of Smith, Barney & Co., which will buy the bonds, and also heard Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel say "the village is in fact fully protected."

Arlington Heights is being asked to issue the bonds because municipal securities are tax-exempt and thereby will save the hospital about 2 per cent in interest costs.

Northwest Community Hospital plans to use $10 million of the $20.5 million to pay off past debts. The rest of the money will be used to complete a recent addition to the hospital building, 800 W. Central Road.

COOK SAID THE hospital-revenue bonds will carry an 8.7 per cent net interest rate. By comparison, the $10 million worth of outstanding bonds issued privately by the hospital in past years have an average interest rate of 9.85 per cent.

Under terms of the proposed sale, the village will become the legal owner of the hospital for the 20-year life of the bond issue, leasing the facility back to hospital's board of directors which will continue to set policy for the institution.

The bond issue will be paid off solely by the hospital's operating revenue, and the village will be exempt from any claims which may be filed against the hospital. At the end of 20 years, the hospital board will "buy back" the facility for $1.

"I have made absolutely certain that the village has no obligation other than to serve as the issuing agent," Siegel said.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS is able to act in behalf of the hospital because of its standing as a home-rule municipality under the 1970 Illinois Constitution.

The village board agreed to formally enact the bond sale ordinance at its next regular meeting Monday. The $20.5 million issue is being sold in minimum

Kucera said Northwest Community Hospital received an excellent credit rating in connection with the bond sale, despite current plans to build five new hospitals in the Northwest suburban area.

As a hedge against a possible high vacancy rate at Northwest Community Hospital because of these planned facilities, Kucera said 80 beds could be converted to nursing care in order to ensure income to pay off the bonds.

An Arlington Heights man faces charges ranging from deviate sexual assault to impersonating a police officer after he allegedly abducted a 16-year-old Barrington boy Sept. 8.

Arrested was David J. Welch, 24, of 310 E. Clarendon Ave. He was charged by Sheriff's Police with deviate sexual assault, unlawful restraint, aggravated assault, unlawful use of a weapon and impersonating a police officer.

Police said Welch followed the car of the youth, whose name was not released, from a store in Arlington Heights. When both cars have left the village limits, police said Welch flashed his headlights signaling the youth to stop.

Welch then reportedly approached the youth's car identifying himself as a police officer. Saying he was taking the youth in "for questioning," Welch tied the youth's hands and forced him into his (Welch's) car, according to reports.

The youth was reportedly threatened repeatedly with a knife and sexually assaulted by Welch.

Welch was arrested after the youth supplied a license number and description of the vehicle involved in the incident, police said. Bond was set at $45,000; Welch is awaiting trial.

Federal funds await village

lage Pres. Ralph H. Clabour as chairman, the chairman of the village board's finance committee, Trustee Frank Palmatter; Hanson, and representatives of the chamber of commerce, housing commission, environmental control commission, village homeowners' associations and the Arlington Heights Park District.

IN ORDER to meet the deadlines for funds in 1975, estimated at $125,000, it probably would be necessary for the committee to meet weekly until February, Hanson said.

A key element of the Housing and Community Development Act is a requirement that the village develop a program of housing assistance for low and moderate-income persons. The burden of complying with that program falls squarely on the local government, Hanson told the trustees. Included in the housing-assistance plan is a requirement that the general location of subsidized housing for low and moderate-income persons be identified, as well as the number of persons or housing units needed to meet the community's needs.

The six trustees present at Tuesday night's briefing on the new federal program had different reactions to its applicability to Arlington Heights. Trustee Alice Harms said she was worried that the time and manpower needed to file for the funds would mean serious delays in other village projects.

CLABOUR SAID IT may actually cost more in administrative salaries to apply for the funds than would be paid back if the application were approved.

But Trustee Russell Colvin, David Griffin and Palmatter said they saw the Housing and Community Development Act as an important source of new income for Arlington Heights.

"We can't run away and hide from it when there's that much money to be gotten," Colvin said.

Palmatter said the federal program's requirements could force the village board to act on a number of unresolved issues, including the identified need for low and moderate-income housing in Arlington Heights.
